TARIFF RATES IN SENATE BILL ARE ATTACKED

NINE OBJECTIONS SEEN BY NORTH CAROLINIAN

Utah Member Denies He Discussed Measure With President.

INSISTS CONSUMERS WILL ENJOY BENEFITS

(Associated Press.)

Two participants of legislative clashes of a quarter of a century ago, one now 75 and the other 67, resumed their familiar stands in the Senate yesterday in conflict over the tariff.

The elder, Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, of North Carolina, belabored the "indefensible bill." His 12,000-word speech was made as senior Democrat on the finance committee, Republicans of which revised the House measure.

After listening two hours, Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, ahswered as chairman of that committee. He said the attack of Simmons and all others had been heard before.

Simmons for the first time in his public career read his speech, going through it with the aid of a clerk. He asked the Senate to excuse this because of his physical condition.

Fallacious, Smoot Contends.

Smoot took cognizance of many objections to the bill made by the North Carolina veteran, who was chairman of the finance committee in the Wilson administration. He contended Simmons was fallacious in claiming the proposed tariffs would add billions of dollars to the consumers' costs.

Before the Senate meeting ended the tariff debate was well on its way. Senator George, of Georgia, took up the Democratic case against the bill and argued for its modification.

Unlike Simmons, who asked that he not be interrupted, Smoot was questioned frequently during the reading of his prepared speech by Democrats. Senator Tydings, of Maryland, asked whether the President favored the bill.

"I haven't asked him, but I think he will sign it," Smoot replied.

Lists Nine Objections.

Simmons listed nine specific objections to the bill as follows:

"It contains many rates and increases upon agricultural products that are useless and ineffective.

"It is replete with exorbitant rates on articles which farmers buy.

"It contains numerous instances of higher rates on articles used by the masses than on articles of identical use, but purchased principally by persons of wealth or of more than average means.

"It does not conform to President Hoover's request for increases on industrial products only when there has been a slackening of employment due to imports. In many cases increases have been granted to industries which have been very prosperous under the present tariff act.

"It is full of inconsistencies and unfair discriminations.

"It increases rates on many articles, even though the imports under the present tariff act have been negligible.

"It encourages inefficiency by many of its increases in rates.

Cites Power Given President.

"By its liberalization of the flexible provisions, enlarging the powers and discretion of the President, the latitude allowed the President in the imposition of additional duties is dangerously expanded."

Charging that sectional forces and groups of Internationalists were aiding the Democrats to break down the Republican policy of protection, Smoot said prosperity "will inevitably follow the readjusted tariff of 1929 as was the case following the 1922 tariff."

Carrying on the theory advanced by Simmons that the tariff on farm commodities generally were not effective, Senator George said that while the framers of the measure did not intentionally discriminate against certain sections of the country their work amounted to that just the same.

Nearly every product of the South, he said, had either been passed up in the upward revision process or given a lower rate.

Points to Other Schedule.

George asked if the bill did not widen the existing disparity in protection between agriculture and other industries as claimed by the

30 Per Cent Increase In Water Rate Faces Capital's Taxpayers

Despite Additional Charge Instituted Two Years Ago Another Is Inevitable, Ladue Declares, and Plans to Call Department Officials Into Conference.

By AUSTIN T. ROGERS.

With the latest increase of 12½ per cent in water rates in effect only two years, taxpayers of Washington are now faced with an additional increase of about 30 per cent, it has been learned by The Post.

Although the new rate schedule proposed by D. W. Holton, acting superintendent of the Water Department, has not yet been approved by the District Commissioners, it was declared last night by Col. William B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner, that an increase in the rates "probably is inevitable," and officials of the Water Department are to be called into conference by Col. Ladue within the next few days when the whole water-rate situation will be gone into.

During the last year, the accounts of the Water Department show, the 94,311 taxpayers consuming water in Washington paid $1,508,678.74 for their water. If the proposed increase is approved, these same taxpayers will pay about $2,000,000 for their water next year.

There are two methods by which the District collects payments for the water used by its taxpayers. One method is by means of water meters, of which 79,846 were in operation, representing 84.6 per cent of the total number of water users, on June 30. The remaining 15.4 of the consumers, totaling 14,465, buy their water on a flat-rate basis dependent upon the size of the building for which the water is supplied and the area of the ground upon which the building stands.

Despite the fact that the records of the water department showed collections last year of $1,508,678.74, against which the department expended $1,195,175.35 for maintenance and extension of the water system, to which is added the $202,210 appropriated out of the water fund by Congress for use of the Washington aqueduct, it is contended by Holton that the proposed increase is necessary to cover a five-year program of expansion and development in various outlying sections of the District.

Under the law all funds accruing to the District from its water distribution systems must be retained in a special water fund, and the law provides further that "the water rates levied in Washington and Georgetown shall never be a source of revenue other than as a means of keeping up to said cities a supply of water, but shall constitute a fund exclusively for the management and repair of the system of water distribution."

CAPPER JOINS FIGHT AGAINST BUCKET SHOPS

VIRGINIANS PREPARE TO PRESENT CHARGES

One or More Washington Firms Soon to Face Fraud Counts.

CRUSADE IS PRAISED BY KANSAS SENATOR

Plans to Consider Statute Regulating Sales of Stocks Told.

Legislation to rid Washington of bucket shop operators and gamblers was indicated yesterday by Chairman Capper, of the Senate District committee as four Virginians prepared to make fraud charges against one or more local brokerage firms.

Senator Capper's promise to aid in obtaining corrective laws was contained in a letter which he sent to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover. He also took occasion to commend Rover for his crusade against bucket shop men and gamblers.

The announcement that the Virginia investors were about to take action against the local brokers was made by C. Victor Werne, counsel for the Virginia Better Trade Association. He said the complaints would be filed within a few days with Rover and United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Senator Deeply Interested.

Senator Capper has taken a deep interest in the situation here, and has followed closely the revelations that have been published day after day in The Post. In addition, he has conferred with persons who are familiar with the operations of the bucket shop men and the gamblers.

In his letter to United States Attorney Rover, Chairman Capper said:

"I have noted with interest and gratification your efforts to deal effectively with those who, under the guise of buying and selling stocks, have defrauded honest citizens.

"I am pleased to note also your activity in attempts to enforce the laws against gambling. Undoubtedly there is urgent need for vigorous effort to end the activities of bucket shop operators, as well as those who have been selling fradulent securities in the District of Columbia.

Efforts Are Commended.

"Such frauds are a menace to the public, and I can not commend too strongly your effort to put an end to a condition which is a disgrace to the National Capital.

"If you feel the need of additional legislation to deal with the bucket-shop type of swindler, I shall be glad to receive your recommendations, which I am sure will have the earnest consideration of every member of the District committee.

"The vigorous prosecution also of those who have made a business of gambling to the detriment of thousands of individuals and families who can ill afford the losses they have suffered is also to be commended.

"Our committee will give consideration early next session to the need for a law regulating the sale of securities; but, in the meantime, if additional legislation is needed to enable you to deal effectively with the bucket shop operators, gamblers and others of their class, we shall be glad to be advised."

Regulating Bill Introduced.

In the last Congress, Senator Capper introduced a bill which would require all firms dealing in stocks and securities to register with the District Commissioners and to post a bond. It also would authorize the United States Attorney to investigate issues of securities and to obtain an injunction to stop their sale if, in his opinion, they were fraudulent.

In the hearing on the bill, Washington was described as a paradise for fly-by-night salesmen, and an economic hell for their victims.

Werne, in a statement issued from the association's headquarters in Richmond, made public that charges of fraudulent stock transactions will be preferred by persons in Richmond, Beaverdam, Staunton and the Northern Neck section of Virginia, who, he said, plan to present their cases personally here likely next week. He added that more than $7,000 was involved.

Association Hears of Charges.

Werne disclosed the fact that the Virginia Better Trade Association had been apprised of numerous complaints recently against certain Washington stock brokerage houses suspected of bucket shop operations following the series of bucket shop articles which appeared in The Post during the last week in August.

Investors in all parts of the State have sought information regarding the integrity of various Washington brokerage concerns and the worth of stock they claimed they had been influenced to purchase by so-called "boiler house" high pressure sales methods by long-distance telephone.

He further declared that "other cases are likely to follow and that charges of using the mails to defraud may be pressed" against the alleged bucket shops.

ARMY AID WANTED IN GALLINGER QUIZ

REFUSAL WAS SURPRISE

The Board of Public Welfare of the District yesterday appealed to Secretary of War Good to reconsider his refusal to permit an Army medical officer to act as a member of a special committee to investigate Gallinger Hospital.

Good's decision was communicated to the board yesterday and came as a surprise, inasmuch as it was known that the surgeon general of the Army had approved the appointment of an Army medical officer to act as a member of the special committee.

The committee proposed by the welfare board was to be composed of four members, one each being named by the surgeon general of the Army, the surgeon general of the Navy, the surgeon general of the Public Health Service and a representative of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Three of the four already have been named. They are Assistant Surgeon General F. C. Smith, of the Public Health Service; Capt. Charles M. Oman, of the Navy Medical Corps, and Dr. Herbert C. Woolley, first assistant physician at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Surgeon General Ireland, of the Army, gave no explanation of the department's refusal to name a member of the committee, merely informing the board that Secretary Good had deemed it inadvisable to name an Army officer.

George S. Wilson, director of public welfare work, said that he was not prepared to discuss the probable result of Secretary Good's decision, but said that members of the board of welfare were hopeful that the difficulty would be "ironed out" today.

He added that he was not at liberty to say anything more. W. W.

HOUSE OWNERS SUE TO OUST GAMBLERS

Landlords Cooperate With Legal Forces in Drive Against Games.

NEW ADDRESSES GIVEN

As a result of the crusade against gaming establishments which has been launched by the United States attorney's office, several ouster proceedings have been instituted in Municipal Court by landlords, it was learned yesterday.

The United States attorney's office announced yesterday that a number of replies had been received to the letters sent out to 289 property owners, and that in every instance closest cooperation had been pledged. Three real estate firms notified Assistant United States Attorney Rena F. Camalier, in charge of the crusade, that they had begun ouster proceedings against tenants at addresses complained of. One bank, acting as trustee of an estate, and an individual who owns several houses said to house gaming establishments, also indicated that they had begun ouster proceedings.

In addition to the cooperation from the landlords and renting agencies the United States attorney's office has received several tips as to places as yet not listed as suspected of housing gaming establishments. Most of these tips, it was said, indicate that the game of numbers is being played at the premises complained of.

Only one gaming case was considered in Police Court yesterday and it did not involve the game of numbers. Carl Peters was the defendant. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of permitting gaming and demanded a jury trial.

Judge Gus A. Schuldt, who has announced he would accept no more forfeitures in numbers cases, asked if it were a numbers case and being assured that it was not fixed bond at $500.

Beau Brummel, Two More Held in Banker's Kidnaping

Elegantly Dressed Vice President of Financial Institution, Former Convict, and Unidentified Companion Jailed for Willard T. Elliott's Abduction.

Clifton, N. J., Sept. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Joseph Jackovics, an elegant young man whom Passaic gossip credits with possessing a fine automobile, two fur overcoats, 15 suits of clothes and a Japanese house-man, is a prisoner in the jail at Clifton tonight.

A vice president of the Hobart Trust Co. of Passaic, N. J., at the time of its closing by the State banking department last summer, he is held, for the time being, as a material witness in the kidnaping of Willard T. Elliott, his fellow vice president, last June.

The others, one a former convict known better as "Kid Steech" or "Kid Stitch" than by his rightful name of Joseph Bongiorno, are also in the hands of the police; they are prisoners in the Passaic jail, and Elliott is reported to have identified Bongiorno as one of his kidnapers.

Although the young banker, the former convict and the unidentified third man were picked up this morning, it was evening before the identities of Jackovics and "Steech" were grudgingly revealed.

Even then the police of both Passaic and Clifton and the Passaic County authorities would say little about the case.

They were notably silent when asked if any surmise should be drawn from the accepted belief that Jackovics was the principal lieutenant of Harry H. Weinberger, who organized the Service Trust Co., at Passaic with his aid, and who gave him his place in the Hobart Trust Co.

Weinberger was indicted last month for malfeasance in the collapse of the New Jersey Bankers Securities Co., of which the Hobart Trust was a subsidiary.

Nor would either the police or the officials of the county prosecutor's office explain whether any connec-

MAN ROBBED SEVEN HOMES, POLICE SAY

CHOSE TIME CAREFULLY

A confession that he robbed seven homes in the Capital's fashionable residential sections of valuable antiques was made yesterday by Joseph McGowan Daniell, 39 years old, of Hyattsville, Md., detectives of the central office claim.

Acting on Daniell's alleged confession, Detectives H. E. Brodie, James Collins, D. G. Fletcher and John Wise visited the prisoner's residence in Hyattsville and several local stores and obtained antique vases, clocks, trays and similar articles, which they valued at approximately $15,000.

Daniell was arrested Wednesday in the vicinity of Seventh and G streets northwest by Detective Collins. He was lodged in a cell at the First Precinct station house and, when questioned yesterday, freely admitted a systematic course of robbing residences of the Capital's elite, the detectives said.

According to the detectives, Daniell made certain that the residents of the fashionable homes were out of the city, usually enjoying a summer vacation, before he attempted the robberies. On some occasions he would visit the lavishly furnished homes as many as four times, it was said, each time carrying off additional loot in such a manner that caretakers and servants would not be likely to notice the missing articles.

Daniell, the detectives said, confessed to robbing the residence of John P. Hill, former representative from Maryland, at 1622 Eighteenth street northwest, of antique vases and trays valued at approximately $3,000. The detectives said their prisoner admitted visiting the Hill residence on two occasions.

He also admitted, the detectives said, looting the home of Mrs. Campbell Forrester, at 1700 Rhode Island avenue northwest, of three vases and two clocks totally valued at $550. When Mrs. Forrester returned to the Capital several weeks ago, after spending three years in Asiatic nations, she discovered her loss.

Daniell admitted that on four occasions he visited the vacant residence of Col. Robert L. Longstreet, at 1627 K street northwest, and on each occasion carried off antiques, the detectives said. In the Longstreet case, police said, they have had no report of a robbery.

The detectives said that Daniell also confessed robbing 1729 Nineteenth street northwest, 1810 Massachusetts avenue northwest, 1763 R street northwest and 1715 I street northwest, but the occupants of these residences are still absent from the Capital and no reports of robberies have been received by the police.

The detectives stated that Daniell declared his mode of entrance was usually by smashing a basement door or rear window with a brick and then unlocking the bolt. Once inside the lavishly furnished homes, the detective said, Daniell would take his time in selecting his loot.

In virtually all cases Daniell would take his ill-gotten articles to his Hyattsville home, the detectives said, and "when things quieted down" attempt to sell them at stores on Seventh street.

Kansan Is Spokesman of President and Knows Propaganda.

Shearer Expected to Be Called as Witness At Outset.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover's guiding hand in the naval lobby investigation was seen yesterday with the selection of Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, as a member of the subcommittee that will conduct the inquiry.

The subcommittee was named by Chairman Hale of the Senate naval affairs committee, and includes, besides Allen, Senators Shortridge, of California, who will serve as chairman, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

Allen is the spokesman for the President in the Senate. He is very probably the President's closest political friend in that body. Although not a naval expert, coming from the Western prairies as he does, the inquiry is not to have to do with technical naval matters but with propaganda. The senator, it is recalled, was director of Hoover publicity in the presidential campaign.

The subcommittee held its first session yesterday a few hours after its creation and decided to meet again Saturday, when it will definitely determine upon procedure.

In the meantime, it will study the question of just what witnesses it wants to call. The first witness will probably be William B. Shearer, around whom the whole investigation centers, and who admittedly was in the employ of shipbuilding companies at the Geneva naval limitations conference. But there is a question of just what other witnesses the committee wants, that is, just which of the shipbuilding officials it wants to appear. At Saturday's meeting it hopes to be ready to issue subpenas with a view to getting the actual hearing under way early next week.

The President has clearly shown his interest in the inquiry and has

$1,000 BAIL SET FOR EACH

Gastonia, N. C., Sept. 12 (A.P.)—Solicitor John G. Carpenter announced tonight that the fourteen men named in the bench warrant issued today by Judge Thomas J. Shaw at Charlotte in connection with his investigation into activities of an "anti-Communist" mob in this section Monday night, had been placed under arrest. Bond was set at $1,000 each.

The fourteen, he said, are to be brought before Judge Shaw for a hearing tomorrow morning at Charlotte at which the jurist will sit as a committing magistrate. The warrants were issued after Judge Shaw had questioned C. M. Lell and C. D. Saylor, two of the three men kidnaped by the mob.

The third, Ben Wells, was unable to appear in the judge's private office today because of a flogging given him by a section of the crowd.

Among the fourteen arrested on the warrant was A. G. Morehead, W. M. Pickering and C. Jollay, Loray Mill superintendents; A. J. Roach and C. A. Ferguson, Gastonia police officers and witnesses for the State in the trial of the sixteen labor leaders and strikers with the murder of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt; T. A. Gilbert, jr., Dewey Carver, Tom Carver, Smiley Lewis, John Hollaway, Horace Lane, Oscar Goodman, Lee Johnson and Carl Hollaway.

The public hearing into the mob activities, with Judge Shaw sitting as a committing magistrate, may begin tomorrow the solicitor said. This hearing is expected to place blame for the Monday night affari, in which Wells, British labor agitator, was spirited from Gastonia to Ca-

Sculptor, Failing to Kill Self Once, Found in River

Edmond T. Quinn, Who Took Poison Last May Only to Live by Freak of Chance, Is Discovered Drowned, Although No Records Are Made by Officials.

New York, Sept. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Edmond T. Quinn, widely known American sculptor, died "suddenly" last Monday, according to death notices sent to newspapers today by his wife, Mrs. Emily Bradley Quinn, of this city.

Friends of the family, who have been aiding in a quiet three-day search for the sculptor since he disappeared Monday, asserted that his body had been found today in the East River and had been identified by an attorney representing Mrs. Quinn. His widow was reported to be satisfied that the identification was correct.

Tonight, however, there was no record, either at the morgue or the medical examiner's office, of any such body having been found and identified.

Quinn was 60 years old, successful in his profession and apparently prosperous. Four months ago he dissolved oxalic acid salts in whisky and sat down in his handsome studio to wait for death. He was saved by a freak of circumstance—the fact that he had mixed his poison with one of its most effective antidotes.

His wife and his friends assert that the sculptor had been suffering from melancholia for some time, and that his disappearance was the culmination of a long period of despondency.

Last Monday Quinn left his home to go to a bank, according to friends, and never returned. Investigation revealed that he had actually been to the bank, but his whereabouts after that were unknown.

Just before his death he was at work on a statue of Henry Clay for the government of Venezuela. The 3-foot model for the figure had been completed between the unsuccessful and the successful attempts to end week, but cancelled his passage and returned to Washington, where he conferred on the premier's plans with both American and British officials.

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

While the strictest secrecy was maintained as to the contents of the note from the American Government which reached London yesterday, there were indications that it contained some suggestions in the nature of counter proposals to the British viewpoint as to the precise means of attaining parity, or cruiser equality.

Both Sides Make Concessions.

Both governments have made broad concessions since the inception of the negotiations several months ago, when Ambassador Dawes arrived in England. Great Britain is believed to have agreed to a reduction of its planned cruiser fleet from 70 to 50 ships after it accepted the fundamental principle of parity in this class of war craft.

On the other hand, it is understood that the United States has foregone a large part of the reduction policy which President Hoover had hoped to be able to effect. Under such an agreement the American Navy would have to be built up to any limitation which unanimously might be agreed upon.

Should Hoover and MacDonald be able to iron out difficulties at their personal conferences here, the next step toward a plan for limitation of naval strength of the chief powers would be a conference to be participated in by the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy.

Premier Arrives in London.

London, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Official announcement this evening that Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister, would sail September 20 for the United States to visit President Hoover revealed hopeful definite evidence that the two governments virtually had reached agreement of naval armaments.

Well-informed circles indicated that a question involving three cruisers of the 8-inch gun type was the point on which full accord has not been reached.

The development came swiftly after a late afternoon conference between MacDonald and Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador, and it was then made clear that the United States Government had submitted its proposals and they were received in London.

Dawes and Premier Confer.

It was announced that Dawes carried this answer to Number Ten Downing street when he called on the premier. He remained closeted for an hour. The cordiality of the Macdonald welcome was emphasized immediately after the ambassador had departed.

It was after such conversations as this which had taken place since the ambassador disembarked from the steamer which carried him to England and had his initial meeting with Mr. MacDonald at Plymouth on June 12. By the middle of August certain preliminary conclusions had been reached which were tentatively submitted and which formed Today's conversations. The American capital completed what many believed the most important step toward agreement.

Mississippi State Inquiry Launched

Secretary's Office Is to Be Investigated From 1901 to Date.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Investigation into the office of secretary of State from 1901 to date was started today by a joint legislative committee.

The inquiry was suggested by Gov. Bilbo in a special message to the extra session of the legislature recently, in which allegations were made of a $56,000 shortage during the term of the late Joseph W. Power, Democrat, who died in 1926. Mr. Power died in office.

The governor's message also reported alleged illegal requisitioning by Walker Wood, present secretary, of approximately $3,000.

Senator M. J. Gregory, Attalla County, chairman of the Senate standing committee to investigate State charges, called the joint meeting to order. Representative Dan R. McCrehee, of Franklin County, chairman of the House standing committee, not present.

The Senate standing committee was authorized to investigate the secretary of state's department and "other State offices" and an invitation extended to the House standing committee to take part.

demanded that it be a thorough one, going to the very bottom of lobbyists' activities in behalf of a big Navy. Secretary of State Stimson declared yesterday that the inquiry should not be confined to Shearer's activities at Geneva but to his past and present activities.

There has been some speculation as to whether the Borah resolution authorizing the inquiry did not limit it to the Geneva conference, but it has been explained that it was worded as it was to keep the inquiry from spreading to the activities of pacifists and others who have worked against a big navy. There have been demands that the inquiry be so extended, but its sponsors are determined that it is to be confined to the part which shipbuilding firms, standing to profit from a big navy, have engaged in the big navy propaganda.

The three men chosen for the subcommittee are believed to be the pick of the naval affairs committee from which they were drawn. Senator Borah had planned to have his foreign affairs committee conduct the inquiry had the naval affairs committee agreed that the subject came within its scope.

Hale Sidesteps Inquiry.

Friends of Senator Hale sought to prevail upon him that the inquiry offered him a wonderful opportunity, inasmuch as it is likely to be before the country in big headlines for several months. For some reason, however, the senator did not relish the idea. It is not that he has any love for Shearer, either. His attitude toward the lobbyist is born of Shearer's activity in the big navy here, at the last session of Congress as well as the session before, extending, as a matter of fact, over the past several years.

With the selection of a subcommittee to make the inquiry Hale announced that he had washed his hands of it. All further information on the subject will come from Senator Shortridge, he explained.

Unlike many other investigations that the Senate has undertaken the subcommittee will have the hearty cooperation of the administration in this instance. It will have ready access to the files of the Naval Intelligence as well as the assistance of Department of Justice counselors.

Justice Agents Active.

The department is, at the same time, making a separate investigation to determine if the Logan act can be applied in the case, or if any other law can be.

The Logan act treats with those who interfere in this country's intercourse with foreign nations.

Of more importance, from the administration angle, however, is the Senate investigation. It will be this inquiry that will be depended upon to educate the country in the wiles of sinister big navy influences, and tend to make it more sympathetic with the present efforts at naval limitation.

Bank Robbery Suspects File Not Guilty Pleas

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Five men, charged with robbing the Bank of Cottonwood at Cottonwood, Ala., August 3, entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned in circuit court here today. Trial was set for September 20. Three of the group, J. L. Holland, Richard E. Harrison and William G. Taylor, were enlisted men at Fort Benning, Ga. The other two are Henry Newman and Al Gibson, of Houston County.

Solicitor J. Norton Mullins previously had announced that Holland had confessed and implicated the others. The bank was held up at the noon hour, the bandits escaping with approximately $700 in cash after locking the cashier in the vault.

CHINESE AND RED FIGHTING RESUMED

GENEVA IS SENT THREAT

Mukden, Manchuria, Sept. 12 (A. P.).—A Chinese official communique today stated fighting was resumed this morning at Pogranichn, eastern terminal of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Russian forces were repulsed, it was stated.

Moscow, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Official Moscow was frankly perplexed tonight by the continuation of Chinese attacks on the Siberian-Manchurian border. The Soviet spokesmen said that this course could gain China nothing except the bitter resentment of the Russian people and the government of the Soviet Union, whose one desire, they emphasized, is for peace.

New Attack Reported.

A dispatch from Vladivostok late tonight said that the Chinese troops at Pogranichnaya had opened a furious attack on Soviet border detachments. The report related that they were forced to retreat after a 20-minute battle. A dispatch from Chita to Tass, the official Russian news agency, said that the Chinese had opened artillery and rifle fire on Soviet frontier guards in the regions of Dalai-Nor and Post 86, 5 miles west of Manchuria Station. A similar raid was reported to the same agency by Vladivostok as having taken place 35 miles southwest of Pogranichnaya, where a large band of white Russians crossed the border and terrified the local population.

While these sporadic attacks continue to aggravate and puzzle the Soviet government, they are treated here as constituting nothing more than guerilla warfare in widely scattered districts.

Chinese reports which depict the Manchurian hostilities as on a big scale, are ridiculed by Soviet authorities.

Trouble at Geneva.

Geneva, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—China still faces trouble on the Geneva diplomatic front as well as on her Manchurian frontier. The meeting of the program committee of the assembly of the League of Nations was the focus of great interest today as deliberations were continued to decide whether the committee would stand by its decision not to present for consideration in the assembly China's demand that the league make operative article 19 of the covenant. This article deals with the possibility of revision of treaties which are considered no longer applicable.

The committee discussed the Chinese proposals for an hour, but failed to arrive at a decision and will resume the study of the question at noon tomorrow.

Meanwhile China, through her spokesman, Dr. C. C. Wu, threatened to create a "most serious situation" if the Chinese demand is not met. Dr. Wu has cabled his government for instructions and still holds in reserve his threat to withdraw the Chinese delegation from the league proceedings.

Women Are Enlisted.

Moscow, Sept. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A woman's battalion was enlisted today, ready to give up factory jobs and go to the Chinese front if necessary. They were among 6,000 workers of Odessa who volunteered. From all parts of the country came reports of thousands of volunteers declaring themselves mobilized.

The Soviet press is reserved about the Chinese state of affairs, however, though all reports reaching here from the Manchurian frontier indicate repetition of clashes along the line, with casualties on both sides.

Printers Name Houston As 1930 Convention City

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Houston, Tex., was selected as the 1930 convention city by the International Typographical Union in convention here today.

Boston withdrew its request for the next meeting, leaving only Houston and Montreal in the field. The vote for Houston was 166 and for Montreal 78. The vote later was made unanimous.

Cloth Comes Off Plane; Two Saved by Leaps

Hampton, Va., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Lieut. T. S. Power, of Langley Field, and H. E. R. Hall, of Gloucester, Va., joined the Caterpillar Club in parachute jumps from an airplane which went into a hopeless tailspin as the fabric of the top wings came off. Neither was injured.

VOLSTEAD ELECTION TO HOUSE POSSIBLE

WAS DEFEATED IN 1920

The deeath of Representative O. J. Kvale, Farmer-Labor party, of the Seventh Minnesota District, opens the way for the return of Andrew J. Volstead (Republican), author of the dry law that bears his name.

Friends of Volstead predicted that the prohibition leaders of the Nation will support him for the place which he once held here.

In a Farmer-Labor upheaval in Minnesota, in 1920, Volstead was defeated by Kvale by about 14,000 plurality. It was charged at the time that the wets of the country contributed to the downfall of the dry leader.

The effort on the part of the prohibitionists to reelect Volstead to Congress would not be with the hope of getting additional legislation, but they think that his election now would indicate that the country is grateful to him for his labors for the dry cause.

Volstead will be 60 years old October 30. He has repeatedly said he had no ambition for further congressional honors. At present he is legal adviser to the prohibition administrator of his district.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Sept. 12 (A.P.). County officials, after reopening an investigation into the death of Congressman O. J. Kvale, who died Tuesday night when his cottage near Battle Lake burned, decided late today that no inquest would be held.

Scrutinizing depositions, which they took from witnesses in the neighborhood of the Kvale cottage, County Attorney John L. Townley, Jr., Sheriff O. J. Twenten and Coroner J. G. Vigen were convinced that the death of Mr. Kvale was accidental.

The investigation was reopened when it was learned that there had been disagreement between Mr. Kvale and a tenant on his farm. The congressman, the deposition revealed, apparently had made arrangements with a third party to move onto the farm September 27 in place of the present tenant.

Mr. Kvale's body was released by the county officials and sent to Benson, where the funeral will be held Sunday.

New York Reserve Bank Is Silent on Loan Rate

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank made no announcement regarding its rediscount rate, which is 6 per cent.

Failure to make an announcement is regarded in Wall street as indicating that the prevailing rate will continue.

TENTATIVE DRAFT MADE

With members of the Interstate Commerce Commission returning from their summer vacations, the commission is preparing to turn to the troublesome problem of railroad consolidations and will give it immediate attention, although it will be early winter before a proposed plan is made public.

Members of the commission now have before them the tentative plan drafted by Commissioner Claude R. Porter. Although it is shrouded in secrecy, it is being carefully studied and will be considered by the entire body early in October.

Ernest Lewis, chairman of I. C. C., said yesterday that the plan may be expected to be made public before January 1, 1930. In the meantime, there is considerable speculation as to what Congress may do toward facilitating railroad consolidations.

Plan Long Delayed.

The I. C. C. plan, which is required under the interstate commerce act and has been delayed for about nine years, will simply outline one which the commission thinks will be for the best interest of the public. There will be no effort to force consolidations, but any merger applications would necessarily have to be in line with the I. C. C. plan.

Under legislation proposed in Congress, an effort would be made to make the terms for consolidations so attractive that the railroads would voluntarily agree among themselves on proper allocation of the various secondary lines.

Conflicting Pleas Filed.

Conflicting petitions for approval of trunk line consolidations have been placed before the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Baltimore & Ohio, Van Sweringens and the Wabash. These, however, will be held in abeyance until the commission's plan is made public.

L. F. Loree, who has been a conspicuous figure in the various moves for rail consolidations, is working out a plan of its own, but it is not expected to be placed before the I. C. C. until the veteran railroad magnate and his associates have had an opportunity to see what the commission thinks will be in the public interest.

The I. C. C. published a tentative consolidation plan about eight years ago, but it was never brought to a definite status, and will have to be considerably changed to meet new conditions in the railroad world.

British Flier Sets New Speed Record

Calshot, England, Sept. 12 (A.P.). The world's air speed record was raised today to 357.7 miles an hour by squadron leader Orlebar, captain of the British Schneider Cup team. This is 1.9 more miles per hour than he flew when he set a world's record Tuesday.

It was hours after the British flier had shot over the three-kilometer course six different times, before the fact that a new record had been made was announced. It took a rechecking of the calculations to establish that fact. The first announcements were that the flights had been made at a fraction of a mile per hour slower than the Tuesday mark of 355.8. The error was discovered after figures recorded by the electrical timing apparatus had been compared with a film taken by the instruments.

Orlebar made his attempt today in the Thunderbolt, the supermarine Rolls Royce S-6, in which he made his record Tuesday. This is the same craft with which Flying Officer Waghorn won the Schneider Cup trophy for Great Britain last Saturday.

Americans May Plan International Bank

Paris, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The newspaper L'Information said today that governors of the central banks of Europe had agreed to a proposal that Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York, and Melvin A. Traylor, of the First National Bank of Chicago, be recommended by Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan as American members of the committee which is to draft statutes for the new bank of international settlements.

The bank is to be founded under the Young plan for reparations payments.

BEDLAM HALTS DEBATE

Portland, Me., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Gray-haired men, who as lads in the sixties battled with those of the South who served under the flag of the Confederacy, surged to their feet today and shouted their opposition to a proposed reunion of the soldiers of the North and South. The sixty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic "disapproved" and rejected a resolution favoring such a joint encampment.

Edwin J. Foster, of Worcester, Mass., was elected commander in chief to succeed John Reese, of Broken Bow, Nebr. His election came on the third ballot after Silas H. Towler, of Minneapolis, Minn; James E. Jewell, of Fort Morgan, Colo., and Samuel P. Town, of Philadelphia, withdrew and moved that the election be made unanimous.

Cincinnati Is Selected.

The encampment selected Cincinnati, Ohio, for next year's meeting.

The reunion plan, which has the support of President Hoover and the governors of 31 States, brought forth spirited debate from the aged men who at times threw the city hall auditorium, where they were meeting, into a bedlam as they shouted for the privilege of speaking.

The committee on resolutions "disapproved" the resolution and recommended that it be tabled, but a minority report by Leroy T. Carleton, of Winthrop, Me., favoring adoption of the resolution sounded the battle call for many of the 500 delegates.

Must Admit Fault.

"They were wrong back in 1861," Frank O. Cole, of New Jersey, in a voice which broke at times, said in favoring the committee's recommendation, "and when they admit they were wrong, and not until then will we join with them.

"Let them fold up their battle flags, the flag we fought against and carried Old Glory against to victory. When they put those flags in museums then we will believe they want reunion."

Carleton, in introducing the minority report, said he touched on the subject with "fear and trembling," but declared that slavery was "dead and dead forever."

"Don't Mar Record."

"We are all Americans today and for God's sake don't mar your record," Maj. Gage, of Chicago, said.

His remarks brought some order and the delegates tabled the minority report and then approved the action of the committee on resolutions.

Among other resolutions which the delegates tabled on recommendation of the committee was one which would have put the organization on record as favoring enforcement of the Volstead act and opposing modification. There was no discussion of the resolution. The committee termed it "political in nature."

Other officers elected just before adjournment of the encampment were:

Senior vice commander in chief, Charles E. Nason, of Gray, Me.; junior vice commander, James W. Shields, of Boise, Idaho; surgeon general, Dr. Edward G. Carson, of Crawfordsville, Ind.; chaplain, the Rev. J. King Gibson, of Dayton, Ohio (reelection); trustee of permanent fund, John R. King, Baltimore, Md.

Louis Marshall's Body To Be Shipped to U. S.

Zurich, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Arrangements were made here today to ship the body of Louis Marshall to New York on a steamer sailing September 18. It was decided there should be no public funeral service in Europe.

Formalities of sealing the coffin and mailing the passport took place today in the Friesemberg Jewish cemetery in the presence of American consular officials. A strictly private memorial service was held in the cemetery. The body was then taken to the University of Zurich, where it was embalmed.

New Moslem Raids Reported by Jews

Arabs Retaliate, Charging Foes With Bombing Famous Mosque.

Jerusalem, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency today gave out a report that the Colony Mishmar Hayardon, in northern Galilee, was raided last night and 25 cattle stolen. The same source said that two Jews were wounded at Mahnayim, but it was uncertain whether an Arab attack was responsible for their hurts.

The Palestine Arab executive, in a notice issued by its chairman, denied rumors prevalent among Moslems in northern Palestine to the effect that Jews had damaged the Mosque of Omar by bomb attacks. The notice called on all Arabs to keep the peace. Jewish sources said that this notice was issued at the behest of the Palestine government.

The same sources explained the failure of examiners to find mutilations on the bodies of victims of the Hebron massacre by saying the corpses had been exposed for two days before burial and therefore were in such condition it was impossible to ascertain whether the tales of Arab ferocity were true. Examination of the bodies was discontinued.

Discharged, Man Slays Woman, 62

Ohioan Admits Killing; Says He Lost Head During Talk.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Incensed because he had been discharged as a gardener, Michael Ditirro today shot and killed his former employer, Mrs. Barbara Diebolt Irr, 62, according to police.

Mrs. Irr was the wife of Joseph Irr, of the Cleveland billiard supply house, and heiress to the fortune accumulated before prohibition by the Diebolt Brewing Co.

Ditiro, police said, admitted that he fired three times when he was refused reemployment by Mrs. Irr. He had visited the Irr home several times since his dismissal two weeks ago and threatened members of the family, servants said.

The gardener, according to his story to police, went to the Irr home in Euclid village today and found Mrs. Irr in the kitchen. He said he asked for his job back, but she refused. "I lost my head," Ditirro said. "I shot her once, and when she fell I shot her twice more."

He walked to the village police station and confessed the killing.

Real Diamond, Produced From Sugar, Is Exhibited

Kansas Professor Declares Gem Is Largest of Kind in World; Scientists Watch Him Make Tests at Convention; Size Amazes Chemists.

Minneapolis, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Prediction that "large and beautiful" real diamonds can be made by man was made to the American Chemical Society today by Professor J. Willard Hershey, of McPherson College, McPherson, Kans.

He laid on a glass slide a tiny crystal, the size of a grain of sand. He said it was a real diamond, produced in his laboratory at McPherson. It was made from ordinary pure table sugar, subjected to pressure estimated at 10 tons to the square inch. He said further that it was the largest man-made diamond in the world, four times the size of the biggest one produced in the '90s by the French chemist, Moissan, whose method of manufacture he copied. He cited tests to show the audience of chemists that the diamond is real.

Chemists have been Doubting Thomases about making real diamonds. None of those who questioned Prof. Hershey spoke of doubt as to whether he is making real gems. Their attitude, disclosed in conversation afterward, was that the Moissan method is unpromising for making large diamonds.

Despite their doubts of commercial practicability, the ages-old lure of the word "diamond" apparently was strong in their imaginations, for they lined up to have a look through a microscope at the object on Prof. Hershey's slide. It was a clear, transparent crystal, somewhat irregular, with evidence of reflecting light here and there from its uneut, unpolished surface.

Prof. Hershey said he melted iron filings and sugar in graphite crucibles the size of fists. They were cooked in an electrical furnace at temperatures up to nearly 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit. When white hot they were plunged into ice cold brine, the theory being that the immense pressure created by fast cooling would turn the sugar into diamonds. Sugar is one form of the pure carbon of which real diamonds are made.

Next he dissolved the iron balls with various acids. After a week he had dissolved everything except some dust, which was the sugar-carbon product. Some of this dust was graphite, another form of carbon. It was searched with microscopes, and Prof. Hershey said:

"Hundreds of microscopic particles and some larger diamonds so far have been produced at McPherson College. I believe that the artificial construction of diamonds from the scientific point of view is no longer an unattainable goal."

Making every woman in the United States a chemist was announced as a goal by the division of chemical education. A campaign was mapped to spread chemical knowledge by study courses in women's clubs.

It is proposed to reorganize the teaching of chemistry in schools and colleges on a better and more effective basis. Dr. Harrison Hale, of the University of Arkansas, was appointed chairman of the women's club study course committee. The division of chemical education chose as officers Prof. John M. Swan, of the University of Mississippi, and Prof. M. B. McGill, of Lakewood, Ohio, High School.

METALLIC DIRIGIBLE PIERCED BY BULLETS

PRECIOUS HELIUM LOST

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A metallic stranger wounded in the line of duty was tucked under the covers of the naval air hangar here today—an odd bedfellow for the majestic Los Angeles and the two baby blimps of the United States Navy's lighter-than-air craft.

It was the ZMC-2, the world's first successful all-metal dirigible, which arrived from Detroit and is due to have a permanent bed in the hangar after another test flight, when it may be formally accepted by the Navy for use in training student fliers.

Crew Unaware of Hole.

The "tin bubble's" 550-mile flight from Detroit in charge of Capt. William Kepner, of the U. S. Army, was so uneventful that its crew of three was unaware of two bullet holes in the ship's huge metal gas chamber that were allowing the precious helium to escape.

Members of the ground crew that brought the ship to earth discovered the bullet holes as they were walking the craft into the hangar. From the angle at which the bullet entered the metal bag and passed out through the other side, Capt. Kepner expressed the belief that the shot had been fired while the ZMC-2 was passing low over a mountain, probably somewere in Pennsylvania.

Bags Plug Holes.

Bags were stuffed in the holes to prevent further gas leakage, pending permanent repairs.

The craft averaged slightly more than 40 miles an hour on its flight, despite the fact that it bucked strong head winds most of the way.

A brisk wind tossed the ZMC-2 about as it was being lowered to the ground crew because of its lightness, as most of its gasoline had been consumed in its flight. Several attempts were made before it was low enough for the ground crew to grasp its ropes.

Three Men Are Killed When Plane Tailspins

San Francisco, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Three men were killed at Mills Field here today when an airplane went into a tail spin and crashed, bursting into flames as it fell.

The dead: Pilot Albert J. Hansel, Walter Nelson and Robert Parker, all of San Francisco.

The three men had started on a pleasure ride over San Francisco. Parker and Nelson were automobile salesmen, employed by a San Francisco company.

RAIN IS ONLY HOPE IN FOREST BLAZES

OTHER FLAMES REPORTED

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Having swept over 2,500 acres of valuable fir and cedar timber, the Rock Creek fire in Camas valley between Marshfield and Roseburg still was out of control tonight with more than 400 men on the fire line retreating before the flames.

All other fires in that district were reported under control. Fire wardens said rain appeared to be the only hope of checking the Rock Creek conflagration.

Conditions in the Siuslaw National Forest were regarded as alarming with a thousand-acre fire burning in the Waldport area.

Telephone communication with fire lines has been severed in many instances by the burning of poles carrying the wires. Three or four groups of ranch buildings in Lane County have been destroyed by the flames. Reports from the fire fighters yesterday described these groups of buildings as "settlements."

No loss of life has been reported. Cecil Hickey, mill worker, was in a Eugene hospital today with a fractured skull suffered when a pile of lumber fell on him as he was helping save a mill from destruction at Oren.

Two serious fires were said to have broken out in the Siskiyou National Forest. One was in Coos County and the other in Curry.

The only new fire in Washington was on Siouxon Ridge on the upper Lewis River in the Columbia National Forest. The Dole fire was burning fiercely in the Little Washougal district.

Chicago-New Orleans Air Line Announced

Chicago, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A new passenger airplane service connecting Chicago, Memphis and New Orleans will be inaugurated within three weeks by Continental Air Services Inc., it was announced today by Maj. M. D. Mann, president of the organization.

Approximately four and one-half hours will be required for each leg of the journey. Amphibian planes will be used between Memphis and New Orleans, the route following the Mississippi River.

STATE RESTS CASE OF PANTAGES' WIFE

DEFENSE RAPS EVIDENCE

Los Angeles, Sept. 13 (A.P.).—After presenting testimony that Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of the theatrical magnate, was intoxicated and disorderly at the time her motor car crashed into another machine here on June 16, the State rested today in the trial of the wife of the theatrical magnate on a charge of second degree murder growing out of the accident.

Mrs. Pantages cursed police officers and struggled with them when they put her into an ambulance following the wreck, it was testified.

The prosecution rested without calling Mrs. Teruko Rokumoto, widow of Juro Rokumoto, a Japanese, with whose murder the defendant is charged. The State alleges Rokumoto died of injuries received when Mrs. Pantages' car collided with Rokumoto's automobile.

Robert S. Dicey and Jacob Pine testified they arrived on the scene soon after the crash. Both testified to having seen Mrs. Pantages lying on the grass near the street curb, and both said they believed she was intoxicated.

Smelled Liquor, Claim.

"I could smell liquor on her breath," Pine testified, "when I kneeled down and told her, 'Lady, don't worry, the ambulance is coming and it will take you to the hospital.'"

Pine said Mrs. Pantages shouted that she was not going to any hospital and that she kicked at and cursed policemen as they were putting her in the ambulance.

Cross-examination of the witnesses was brief.

A missing mystery witness, who failed to appear after making an appointment with district attorney's investigators, was being sought. Prosecutor James P. Costello withheld information concerning the nature of the testimony the mystery witness might give, but said it was of "highest value" to the State.

Two Deny Odor of Liquor.

The attack began with two witnesses who testified they had not noticed any odor of alcohol on the woman's breath after the accident. The testimony followed immediately after the State had rested shortly before noon.

The two defense witnesses were Dr. C. A. MacDonald and Mrs. Edna Taylor, respectively physician and nurse at a private hospital in Hollywood to which Mrs. Pantages was taken after the crash. Both testified they had been very close to the defendant's face while they treated her for cuts and bruises. Both said they did not smell alcohol on her breath.

When the defense opened its case, Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy asked Chief Defense Counsel Max Steuer if he did not wish to make the usual opening statement to the jury. He replied in the negative, explaining, "I think the jury understands the situation."

Steuer then made a motion for dismissal of the case, basing it on the contention that "the State has failed to prove the charges in the information."

Judge Hardy promptly denied the motion.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE is not taking the talk of a "Coolidge specter hanging over the White House" very seriously.

"Tell my friends in Washington," she said to a recent visitor at Northampton, "that Mr. Coolidge has no idea of ever running for President again."

She indicated that Mr. Coolidge felt as though a load had been lifted off his shoulders on March 4 last, and was tremendously relieved at no longer having the responsibility of being the head of the Government. Certainly, she made it clear to this old friend, Mr. Coolidge had no desire ever to put his neck in the White House yoke again.

Mr. Coolidge is said to have commented, dryly, to an inquirer that if everything went well nothing could stop Mr. Hoover's renomination, and that if things didn't happen to go well the Republican nomination might not be worth very much.

* * * * *

THIS is almost exactly the idea expressed by Champ Clark to admiring friends during the early days of Woodrow Wilson's first administration. If there was a chance of Democratic victory in 1916, Mr. Clark said, then nothing could prevent the renomination of Wilson. Otherwise, he said, the Democratic nomination would not be worth having.

A visitor to Northampton within a few days after the inauguration quotes Mr. Coolidge as saying, with an air of great relief, that he would let Mr. Hoover "wrestle with the farm problem."

Nothing seems to be clearer than that Mr. Coolidge has no ambitions with respect to his own return to the White House. Yet the story keeps bobbing up that he may do so, either in 1932 or in 1936. As to the latter, of course, anything is possible in politics, but it is contrary to any act of which there is public knowledge in Mr. Coolidge's life to imagine that he would be laying plans now for a definite development nearly seven years in the future.

Even the movement to nominate Coolidge for President in 1920, directed by James B. Reynolds, which paved the way for his nomination as Vice President, was carried on almost without his approval, and certainly without his sanction.

* * * * *

MEANWHILE, every indication is that Mr. Hoover has increased his strength and prestige in the country. The South is a little disappointed at not having a Cabinet member, and would not have the incentive to support Hoover should he be opposed by a dry Protestant Democratic candidate, but every sign in other sections is that Hoover is stronger now than he was election time.

Almost continuously since inauguration he has had what amounted to unanimous newspaper support. Democratic newspapers in New York, Cleveland and Baltimore, to mention three outstanding examples, have seemed to compete with the Republican press in praising his positions on various issues.

The Republican national committee has just carried out his wishes as to its new chairman, Claudius H. Houston, and in other respects by unanimous votes. There are rumblings about patronage, of course, but there always are, and usually they mean very little.

* * * * *

IT may be that he will not achieve his ambition to build up a real Republican party in the South, but so far the President has gotten the votes of Southern senators when he needed them. The two Florida senators, for example, though both had voted in favor of the farm-export debenture subsidy, changed their votes when Mr. Hoover most earnestly desired it. Many of the Southern senators will support all of the farm tariff increases, and there will be scattering support for other schedules of the bill.

* * * *

THE fact is that the Republican party has no issue at the moment on which to make a fight in the South, any more than the Democratic party has at the moment an issue on which to fight Mr. Hoover. Both may develop; but with the utter disappearance of party lines on the tariff on both sides of the Senate aisle, with the South wanting many schedules made higher and the Northwestern Republicans wanting most of the manufacturing schedules made lower, it is difficult to see just what all the political maneuvering on Capitol Hill is going to mean by the time the next national conventions roll round.

Incidentally, the "paramount issue" of the last campaign, prohibition, is effectively sidetracked for the present. There has been less debate on prohibition on the floors of the two houses of Congress in this entire extra session than in any ten days of any session in the last fifteen years. Whether this is temporary, due to waiting to see what the Wickersham Commission will do, or not, the fact is that Congress has wasted no time on this particular topic since March 4.

BALTIMORE BEGINS BICENTENARY FETES

STUDENTS PARTICIPATE

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Pealing of bells, shrieks of whistles, the music of many bands and the tramp of marching feet resounded among the crowds that filled bunting-bedecked streets today, as Baltimore took a holiday to observe the 200th anniversary of the chartering of the city.

The day was the first of four designated for the bicentenary observance, and the biggest feature was a military parade through the business part of the city. Today was also the 115th anniversary of the bombardment of Fort McHenry, which inspired the writing of the national lyric, "The Star-Spangled Banner," and in the celebration program were exercises at the fort at which Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the Army, delivered the main address.

Never Been Invaded.

Of colonial cities, Baltimore, he said, "is a military city unviolated by foreign invasion. This makes the city unique in the history of the country."

Not only did high officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps come here to do honor to the city's anniversary, but representatives of a dozen foreign governments, members of Congress and official delegations from many other cities were among Baltimore's guests for the day. The battleship New York headed a flotilla of naval ships visiting the city and sailors and marines joined infantry, artillery, cavalry and tanks in the parade, which was remarkable for the number of bands in line, virtually every military organization bringing its musicians.

Guard Units March.

Maryland National Guard units and veterans' organizations also found places in the long line for the parade.

The day's celebration, which began with 200 strokes on the city hall bell at noon, included beside the parade and exercises at Fort McHenry the unveiling of markers for the boundaries of the original city and a display of flying maneuvers by Army, Navy and Marine planes over the city. Fireworks depicting bombardment of the fort by the naval ships was a feature of the night's program.

Tomorrow a play festival for school children and a fraternal parade were to be the main events, and a pageant of the city's history and progress will be the major attraction Saturday.

Maryland Turkey Group Is Proposed

U. S. Expert Tells Growers That West Has Real Market System.

Chestertown, Md., Sept. 12.—Though there is hope for the ultimate cooperative marketing of Maryland turkeys, it is not likely the process will attain the large-scale marketing practiced in Idaho, California, Utah and Montana, Gordon Sprague, expert of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture, told 100 turkey growers of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, assembled here today.

Eastern Maryland is too near the great marketing centers of the East and good prices are too certain to secure hearty cooperation as in the West, where large flocks of birds are turned loose and gathered in at Thanksgiving and Christmas after having run wild on the ranches, it was explained.

The speaker has just returned from a turkey tour of nine Western States. Efforts are being made here to create an Eastern Shore cooperative turkey marketing association.

Aged Colored Man Paid Honor by All at Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 12.—The body of George Ferguson, an honored old colored man, was buried in the cemetery near his old home yesterday evening with a large crowd in attendance both at the church and at the grave.

He was in his eighty-ninth year and had lived all that time on the place on which he was born and reared and among his white neighbors and friends and all thought well of him as he ministered in cases of sickness, distress and death among all and all called him "Uncle George."

HIGHER WATER RATE FACES TAXPAYERS

system of distribution, but also toward the system of supply, which is the Washington aqueduct, in such sums as Congress may appropriate each year.

Where water charges are computed by meter, the minimum rate is $6.36 per year, allowing consumption of 7,500 cubic feet, with an extra charge of 6 cents for each additional 100 cubic feet. However, all consumers using $25 or more worth of water annually are required to install and maintain private meters at their own expense, but not, however, with any proportionate reduction in rates to allow for such expense.

More Meters Would Be Needed.

Ratification of the proposed increase of 30 per cent will mean that a vast number of water users in the District, now being served through meters installed and maintained by the District Water Department out of the water fund, will not only have to pay the higher rate, but by reason of that higher rate will come into the private-meter class, which will place upon them the added burden of buying water meters and paying for their installation and maintenance. A good water meter costs from $12 to $15, and the cost of installation averages around $5.

There are already 4,782 such private meters in operation in the District, each paying at least $25 annually for water, while many of the larger consumers, such as laundries, hotels and other such business enterprises using water in large quantities, pay as much as $25,000 to $30,000 yearly, and some as high as $35,000. The increase in operation costs which the proposed water-rate increase would mean to such business houses would constitute a sizable item of overhead which would have to be overcome by means of proportionate increases in prices paid for their commodities or services by the consumer.

The proposed increase would bring the minimum metered water rent for the average householder and taxpayer up from its present level of $6.36 to a level of $8 or more, while the excess charge would move up from the present basis of 6 cents to 9 cents or more per 100 cubic feet.

SENATE TARIFF BILL ATTACKS ARE BEGUN

American Farm Bureau Federation, and Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, said the latter's calculations did not take into account farm commodities classified in other than agricultural schedule.

If the latter were considered, Reed added, the percentage increased on farm products would show more than double that on mine and manufactured goods.

The Georgia senator inquired of Chairman Smoot whether he favored the still higher farm duties proposed by the farm organizations and the Utahan replied that some might stand further boosts.

Smoot told Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, that he had not discussed tariff rates with the President—not even sugar.

"No candy passed between you, then?" observed the Mississippian.

Acts Indirectly, He Contends.

Taking up the claim of Simmons that the bill would add billions of dollars to consumers' costs, Smoot said this was "fallacy."

"The tariff acts on price levels only indirectly," Smoot said, adding it was "misleading and false to measure either benefit or injury of a tariff by the amount of the tariff."

The Republican tariff chieftain denied the proposed increases in farm rates were more than offset by raises in duties on manufactured goods, asserting that the ad valorem increases on the former "far outweigh increases in manufactures based on 1928 imports."

Referring to the bolt of the Republican independents from the West on the bill, Smoot said the "threatened jealousy between the West and East growing out of the tariff is nothing new."

"The same arguments used now by the leaders in the agricultural West," he continued, "were used in every tariff battle before and after the Civil War. The fact that hundreds of petitions are coming from agricultural interests in the West and from legislatures of Middle West States urging higher tariff duties on agricultural products is a demonstration that agriculture admits the benefits of national protection."

GOOD IS REQUESTED TO CHANGE DECISION

Millan, head of the welfare board committee which investigated charges against the conduct of the hospital, is absent from Washington and, it was said, is not expected to return until October 1.

Members of the medical committee of the board held a meeting yesterday afternoon, but the meeting dealt with routine matters and did not do anything about Gallinger Hospital, Wilson said. He added that the committee would wait final decision by Secretary Good before they would take any further action.

BANKER'S KIDNAPING LANDS TRIO IN JAIL

tion was presumed to exist between Jackovics and the thugs who kidnaped Elliot. They contented themselves, instead, by pointing out that Jackovics was being held in a different jail.

It is known, however, that acting Prosecutor James M. Dunn and Passaic detectives, who investigated the abduction of Elliott, have had no doubt of the truth of his assertion that his kidnaping resulted from his connection with the bank and was in some way related to the fact that, as he said at the time of his liberation, "Weinberger had been making life hell for him" at the trust company.

Elliott's difficulties derived, reputedly, from his unwillingness to O. K. loans which he suspected were to bootleggers. The State banking department's investigation revealed that many loans had been made without sufficient or proper collateral to guarantee their repayment.

Elliott was kidnaped in Clifton on June 26, while driving from his home at East Orange to the bank in Passaic. Five or six men in two automobiles, jockeyed his car to the curb, hauled him into theirs and carried him, blindfolded, to a deserted house he said he thought was somewhere in Bergen County.

Six days later he was released.

While his abduction was still being investigated the three subsidiaries of the Bankers Securities Co. were closed by the banking department. The Hobart Trust Co. was sold recently by order of the banking department to a group of Passaic business men, who reopened it last week.

Jackovics was not reemployed by the new group of owners.

barrus County, where he was beaten, and Saylor and Lell were kidnaped.

Ten witnesses were called today to appear before Judge Shaw. This number included Saylor and Lell. R. B. McDonald, of Cabarrus County, who was fox hunting and disturbed the men as they were beating Wells; Rural Police Chief Vic P. Fesherman, of Mecklenburg County, and Tom P. Jimison, chief counsel for the defense in the trial of the sixteen labor leaders and strikers now awaiting trial for murder of Police Chief O. F. Aderholt.

None of the witnesses would talk on leaving the judge's chamber with the exception of Saylor, who said he was certain that prominent members of the prosecution in the trial of the 16 men and women headed the parade which later turned into the mob.

After leaving Gastonia Monday night where a labor headquarters was broken into and literature scattered, the mob visited Bessemer City and Charlotte, where similar action was taken. In Gastonia, Wells, Saylor and Lell were seized, and were carried to a spot more than 50 miles distant, near Concord, where Wells was beaten.

The action of the mob followed the mistrial of the 16 labor leaders and strikers Monday, occasioned when one of the jurors suddenly became insane and had to be removed to a cell.

Wells, who has been kept in a hotel here since he was beaten, was examined by the Mecklenburg County physician yesterday and was found unable to be present at the hearing.

COURT IN VIRGINIA TO RULE ON RIVER

Garden Club Seeks to Have Permit for Dam Reinstated.

ARGUMENT DATE IS SET

Staunton, Va., Sept. 12.—In granting today a petition persented by the Garden Club of Virginia, the State supreme court of appeals took upon itself the obligation of deciding whether or not the State corporation commission has jurisdiction over the waters of North River in Rockbridge County.

Argument will be heard at the November term of the court in Richmond. Some months ago the Virginia Public Service Co. applied to the State corporation commission for permission to construct a dam across North River in Goshen Pass, the dam being one unit of a power development project.

Many Protests Voiced.

Goshen Pass is widely noted for scenic and historic value, and when the plans of the company became known there arose protests from various sections and various organizations in the State. This opposition found its principal champion in the Garden Club of Virginia.

Heated arguments were staged when the State corporation commission held its hearings in Richmond. The result was that the commission held that it "has not the power and authority under the Virginia water-power act to either grant or refuse the license applied for by the Virginia Public Service Co., and its application for a license to construct a dam across North River in Rockbridge County is hereby dismissed."

This order entered July 24, last, was the opinion of Commissioners Epes, the chairman, and Fletcher. Due to illness, Commissioner Hooker did not participate in this case. The commission based its ruling on the view that the waters of North River are not included in "waters of the State."

Defense Plea Offered.

The Garden Club of Virginia, however, represented by Christian and Barton, of Richmond, declares that the commission is in error and that waters in North River are "waters of the State," and that as such, the commission has jurisdiction to rule on the application for license to construct a dam.

A. D. Christian, of Richmond, represented the Garden Club and presented the appeal here today from the order of the commission. The V. P. S. C. was not represented.

The case of Sager vs. the Raleigh Co., from Judge Bertram's twenty-fifth circuit, was completed today, and the first case from Judge Glasgow's eighteenth circuit court, that of Bawden vs. American Central Insurance Co., was argued and submitted.

E. T. QUINN, FAMOUS SCULPTOR, DROWNED

his life. Those who had seen it described the work as excellent.

Quinn was one of the foremost of contemporary sculptors in the United States. An academic artist, he was widely known for his thorough, painstaking work. One critic described him as a "sternly truthful portraitist." Examples of his work are in the Metropolitan Museum, in the Hall of Fame at New York University, and in many other cities.

His first attempt at suicide occurred the night of last May 10. Brooding alone as his wife slept upstairs, the sculptor concocted what he thought was a fatal drink and then telephoned the police.

"I'm going to commit suicide," he told the desk lieutenant. "I don't want my wife to find my body in the house when she wakes up. Please send some one to take it away." He opened all the doors, so that police could walk in without disturbing any one and then drank the poisoned whisky.

Sorry of Attempt.

But instead of death, there came an ambulance which hurried the sculptor off to the Metropolitan Hospital. A day or two later, when he was out of danger, he said that his act was due to a momentary despondency arising from overwork, and that he was glad it had failed of its purpose.

Only a few days before that his bronze bust of Oliver Wendell Holmes had been unveiled in the Hall of Fame.

Quinn was married to Miss Emily Bradley, of Newport, R. I., in 1917. They had no children. Mrs. Quinn and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Emily Bradley, were the only other members of his family living in the four-story brownstone house which the sculptor had remodeled for his studio.

Born in Philadelphia in 1868, Quinn studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and under Thomas Eakins; in Paris he was a pupil of Injalbert. Some of his important works include the statue of John Howard at Williamsport, Pa.; figures on the battle monument at Kings Mountain, S. C., and the statue of Zoroaster in the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Many Other Works.

The bust of Edgar Allen Poe in Poe Park, this city, is by him, as is the statue of Hamlet in Gramercy Park and the Swanstorm Memorial in Borough Hall, Brooklyn. He executed the Victor Herbert Memorial in Central Park and the World War Memorial in New Rochelle, N. Y.

He won the silver medal of the Panama Pacific exposition in 1915. In 1918-19 he served as sculptor member of the municipal art commission of this city.

Quinn was a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, the National Sculpture Society, Architectural League of America, New Society of Artists. His clubs were the Players and the National Arts.

Brother Rogatus, the Rev. Brother Sylvin, the Rev. Brother Lucious, the Rev. Brother Joseph Herman, the Rev. Brother Mienard, the Rev. Brother Eustacious, the Rev. Brother Hilliaran.

Auto Accidents Claim Two Lives

Young Man Dies When Car Misses Bridge; Woman Killed in Collision.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 12.—Two unusual automobile accidents claimed two lives near here today. Frank Everett Johnson, 22, was returning to his home at South Boston after a dance when his car missed the bridge spanning the Norfolk & Western Railroad tracks in Halifax County and hurtled 30 feet to the rails below. A farmer heard the crash at 4 a. m. and at daylight found the splintered car and the body.

The second victim was Mrs. A. C. Nelson, 26, of Augusta, Ga., who was being driven by her husband through the principal street of Reidsville, N. C., near here, when a car said to have been driven by S. Schulman emerged from a side street and collided with the Nelson car, turning it over and pinning the woman underneath. Despite ready help in lifting the car she died before being moved to a nearby house. Schulman was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and gave a $5,000 bond.

Railroad Gets Tax Abatement.

(Associated Press.)

An abatement of $20,801 to the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co., Wilmington, N. C., for overassessment of income tax in 1918 was announced yesterday by the Internal Revenue Bureau. The overassessment was due to a decision of the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

Attempt to Open Bank Vault Fails

Two Holes Drilled in Safe, but Criminals Leave Without Money.

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 12.—Bank and police officials are without a clew that would aid investigation of the attempted robbery of Citizens Bank of Hurlock early today, it was stated by police. "We have not the slightest idea who did it," Marion C. Smith, cashier of the institution, declared The attempted robbery was discovered by Smith as he entered the bank early this morning. Two big holes had been drilled in the door of the vault in a vain effort by the would-be robbers to gain access to $20,000 in cash placed there at the close of business yesterday. No other papers, file or furniture in the banking room had been disturbed, Smith said. Edgar H. Simmons, president of the bank, today asked aid of Baltimore City fingerprint experts in the investigation.

Entry to the banking room had been obtained through a side window under glare of a traffic and street light. Public view of this window is unobstructed, the bank being located at a street corner in the center of the town. Smith stated he believed the entry had been made after 1 a. m.

Petersburg School Records Smashed

5,459 Pupils Enroll as Doors Are Opened for 1929-30 Session.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 12.—The public schools of Petersburg opened this morning for the 1929-1930 term with a record-breaking enrollment. The first day's enrollment for both white and colored schools was 5,459, of which 3,499 are in the white schools and 1,960 in the colored schools.

Today's registration shows that 582 more pupils enrolled for the first day than did on the first day last year. The public schools of Petersburg employ 124 white teachers, principals and supervisors in the white schools, and 49 colored teachers.

There is a daily average of eight teachers from the Virginia Normal and Industrial Institute teaching in the Negro schools.

Culpeper District Votes for School

Bond Issue of $35,000 Is Indorsed by Citizens of Cedar Mountain.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 12.—By order of the Circuit Court of Culpeper County an election was held yesterday in Cedar Mountain District, this county, for a bond issue of not more than $35,000 for the purpose of building at Mitchells Station a new public schoolhouse, with the result that the bond issue carried by a majority of 26.

The county school board will now advertise for bids for the building of a schoolhouse which also will serve as the high school for that district.

The enrollment of pupils for the district is twice what it was for the last scholastic year. The public schools of the county opened today with an unusual increased enrollment.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

ALEXANDRIA ADDS ANOTHER PRECINCT

LIQUOR FINE IS IMPOSED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
317 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

At a meeting of the city council yesterday, it was decided to organize another voting precinct, to be known as Rosemont Precinct. This will include the territory west of the tracks of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad and north of King street, which was formerly a part of the Third Ward.

This action was taken by the council on account of the fact that at the last general election there was considerable congestion in the Third Ward, many voters being unable to cast their ballots after having stood in line for a long time.

Before voting on this action, the council heard the views of Frederick L. Flynn, Richard Sweeney, Richard B. English and Frank R. Monroe, all these except Mr. Flynn being members of the city electoral board.

An appropriation of $150 for rewriting the registration books and election expenses for the new ward was also made.

An ordinance providing for a temporary loan of $60,000, in anticipation of the issuance of annexation bonds, which was introduced at a recent meeting, was approved.

The booth construction committee of the American Legion Style Show, headed by Powell Roberts, finished its work yesterday, and the booths are now ready for decorating by the merchants who will occupy them. The decorations of the armory for the show will be under the direction of F. Clinton Knight.

G. Fred Birrell, chairman of the entertainment committee, is preparing an elaborate program which will include moving pictures taken of local scenes by Legionnaire John L. Arnold.

The final meeting of the style show committee, of which Jones Cox is general chairman, will be held tonight at Armory Hall in order that final details may be completed.

Miss Greta Ludwig, noble grand, has called a meeting of Liberty Rebekah Lodge, No. 16, Odd Fellows, for tonight in the assembly room at Odd Fellows Temple, when the teams which are to take part in the display of the district Rebekah meeting at Warrenton October 9 will be drilled and rehearsed.

The work of removing the old ties and rails in the tracks of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway on King street, is progressing rapidly, the work being done without interruption to train service. The latter part of this week the city will begin to follow up the work of the railroad company, digging up the vitrified brick paving, which will be replaced with a bituminous macadam roadway.

Wade E. Snipes, 23 years old, of Sanford, N. C., was fined $270.50, including costs, in police court yesterday on a charge of transporting liquor, and the automobile which he was driving at the time of his arrest will be confiscated. Harold Gilmore and John Underwood, of the same address, who were arrested with Snipes, were acquitted.

The three men were arrested several days ago by Policemen Wesley Snoots and Virgil Williams. The officers claim to have found 48 half-pints of whisky in the car.

Funeral services for Dr. George T. Klipstein, who died Friday in Los Angeles, Calif., will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Wallis. Interment will be in St. Paul's Cemetery. Honorary pallbearers will be chosen from the staff of the Alexandria Hospital, and the local physicians.

Frostburg Drum Corps Is Second in Contests

Special to The Washington Post.

Frostburg, Md., Sept. 12.—The drum corps of Farrady Post, No. 24, American Legion, won second prize of $75 at the Uniontown Trades Display celebration, Uniontown, Pa., last night in the street parade. First prize of $100 went to the drum corps of Charlerol Post. The Frostburg boys were surprised when the judges announced they had won second prize, for, having less than half their original number in line, they did not expect to do as well.

The prize won at Uniontown makes the seventh taken in 10 months. This is considered an unusual record, as the drum corps was only organized in November of last year.

CHURCH AND COUNTY AGREE ON PROPERTY

ZONE MEETING CALLED

An agreement on a price for the Rockville Presbyterian Church property between the trustees of the church and the Montgomery County courthouse building committee was reached last night at an executive session of the representatives at the old courthouse. The matter will have to be submitted to the congregation of the Rockville Church, however, before the deal is consummated.

After much haggling, the price of $35,000 was settled on as a compromise between the $42,000, originally asked for the property, and the $30,000 offered by the Montgomery commissioners.

If the church agrees to this price, the county building committee believes it will be able to make a deal with the only other property holder in the way of acquiring the block on the west side of the present courthouse and will then be able to continue with plans for erecting a $500,000 building covering the two blocks.

The only other part of the block which the county has not been able to get is the house and lot owned by Otto W. Anderson, county agent, who asks $38,000 for his property, though the county offered only $23,500.

The price of $35,000 was agreed on at the executive meeting last night after the church trustees had reduced their demand to $37,204. The county then raised its bid to $35,000.

Residents along the Rockville pike between Rockville and Bethesda have been invited to attend a meeting at the Bethesda police building at 8 o'clock tonight to protest against the commercializing and industrializing of the property along the highway. Dr. Benjamin Perry, chairman of the Montgomery county commissioners, will preside.

POLLARD TO START ELECTION CAMPAIGN

15,000 Persons Expected to Attend Ceremonies of Notification.

SPEAKING TOUR FOLLOWS

Williamsburg, Va., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Dr. John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee for governor, will formally open his campaign for the State's highest political office here Saturday afternoon in an affirmative address setting forth the principles and policies on which he is making the race. The Democratic nominee in his opening address will make no effort to answer claims made by Dr William Moseley Brown, anti-Smith and Republican nominee for governor, Democratic leaders have announced.

Dr. Pollard's address will follow the official notification ceremony and will be delivered on the courthouse green. The Pollard-Dovell Club of Williamsburg, sponsors of the event, predicts an attendance of 15,000 people.

Plans have been made for a chorus of 1,500 girls from Williamsburg and vicinity to sing "America" after the invocation by a Williamsburg minister. Vernon Geddy, president of the Williamsburg Pollard Club, will welcome the visitors, and Ashton Dovell, Democratic nominee for the House of Delegates, will present the distinguished visitors, including Senators Claude Swanson and Carter Glass and Gov. Harry F. Byrd. Those introduced will not speak, but will rise in recognition.

J. Murray Hooker, State Democratic chairman, will present the notifications of nomination, first, to Attorney General John R. Saunders, then to James H. Price, nominee for lieutenant governor, and, finally, to Dr. Pollard. The first two are to make short addresses of approximately five or ten minutes, leaving the platform to the gubernatorial nominee.

Radio Station WRVA, of Richmond, will broadcast Dr. Pollard's speech.

While the address at Williamsburg will be a declaration of principles and policies, Dr. Pollard will begin a stumping tour next week that will continue, with a few rest periods, until the November election. The nominee will reply to Dr. Brown's speeches in his campaign addresses after the opening at Williamsburg, his supporters say.

Democratic chieftains will endeavor to make the Williamsburg address a rallying of Democratic forces, and motorcades will form in several cities for the trip to the colonial capital. The Pollard-Dovell Club expects to give the Williamsburg candidate a rousing reception as he comes to his home town for the first speech.

MASONS TO HONOR EDMUND RANDOLPH

GOV. BYRD TO BE GUEST

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Edmund Randolph will be honored at unveiling of a memorial stone at Old Chapel, Clarke County, tomorrow afternoon, with members of Virginia Masonic lodges participating in the ceremony. The program is to begin early in the afternoon, after a communication of the Grand Lodge of Virginia in the lodge room of Treadwell Lodge, No. 213, of Berryville.

John T. Cochran, most worshipful grand master of the grand lodge, will preside. Gov. Harry F. Byrd will be a speaker. Others on the program are the Rev. Thomas W. Hooper, D. D., grand chaplain; Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Virginia; Arthur R. Robinson, of Capital City Lodge, Indianapolis, and Edmund Randolph Williams, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ennion G. Williams, of Richmond, who will unveil the monument.

Williams Is Descendant.

Young Williams is a direct descendant of Randolph.

Placing of wreaths by representatives of the Society of Colonial Dames of Virginia and the Fort Loudoun Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will conclude the program.

The inscription on the face of the monument recites the place and date of Edmund Randolph's birth and death. An inscription on a bronze tablet at the base of the granite tells that the memorial is erected by the Grand Lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Virginia and several subordinate lodges in the year 1929.

Bronze Tablet on Grave.

An inscription on a separate bronze tablet, located on the grave in front of the monument, will recall the public offices of distinction, both in the service of Virginia and of the Federal Government, filled by Randolph.

The completion of the monument marks the culmination of a movement begun several months ago by members of Richmond Randolph Lodge, which was chartered in 1787 by Randolph, who was at that time grand master of the Grand Lodge of Virginia.

The Grand Lodge of Virginia, at its February communication, made an appropriation to mark suitably the grave of its former grand master, and appointed a committee to carry out the wishes of the lodge.

16 Years Without New Suit, Man Goes to Jail

Special to The Washington Post.

Webster Springs, W. Va., Sept. 12. Bert Claypool, 32, alleged member of the notorious Ben Thorp robber gang, declared on the stand in circuit court here that he had not worn a new suit of clothes since he was 16.

The jury would not believe him and found him guilty yesterday of a store burglary. He insisted today that he had told the truth about the clothes.

Banker Is Married.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 12 (Special).—Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Arthur Lee Siebert, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Siebert, and Miss Dorothy Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Johnson, at Frederick, Md., on June 15 last by the Rev. G. Ellis Williams, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Siebert is connected with the Liberty Trust Company bank.

Y. M. C. A. Plans to Sell Lynchburg Island Park

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 12.—Directors of the Y. M. C. A. here today appointed a committee and delegated it with authority to make plans to place the association's Island Park on sale at auction. The island, composed of 26 acres, in the James River, has not had attendance commensurate with the operating expenses.

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin Genuine

To Identify Genuine Aspirin

THE increasing use of Bayer Aspirin every year is proof that it has no ill effects. It is the accepted antidote for pain. It always helps; it never harms. Quick relief when you've a headache, or cold; or are suffering from neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatic pains yield, too, if you'll only give these tablets a chance. But you want genuine Aspirin, so look for the Bayer Cross on every tablet. The box always bears the name Bayer and the word genuine printed in red.

Miss Florence Trumbull, the fiancee of John Coolidge, gives excellent advice to young women in an interview with Marguerite M. Marshall recently.

Miss Trumbull says if young couples beginning married life have not a lot of money it is more sensible and comfortable to live simply and save up for what they want instead of going into debt.

And our advice, if you are in debt, is to get out—consolidate all your debts and pay them off with the proceeds of a Morris Plan loan, which in turn may be liquidated by you through the means of small easy monthly deposits.

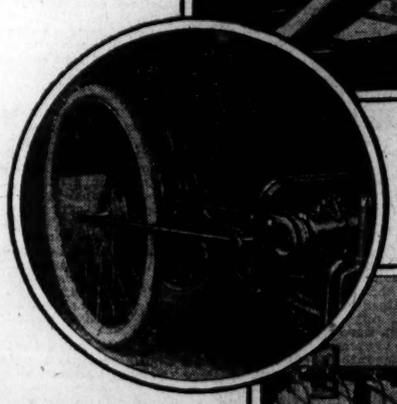
JUDGING GASOLINE quality by its action in a motor. This mani s reading dials on the control board of one of the dynamometers in the "Standard" Testing Laboratories where performance of motors is accurately tested with "Standard" Gasoline.



THIS "GEORGE WASHINGTON" speedometer always tells the truth about mileage. It is the one used by the "Standard" Proving Laboratories when test cars are driven over the public highways.

OUT of all the conflicting claims for gasoline, what is the motorist to believe?

Here's a fact that means something:

Throughout the territory where "Standard" improved Gasoline is sold it is now preferred by more than twice as many motorists as the leading competitive brand.

Only this better all-'round gasoline could win such an overwhelming preference. The average motorist who buys gasoline twice a week doesn't stick blindly to one brand. He tries them all. He is pretty wide-awake to the real difference in power, mileage, easy-starting qualities.

Back of every gallon of "Standard" improved Gasoline are the facilities for producing the best gasoline ever devised. A large staff of scientists has the single-track job of putting "Standard" quality in the lead—and keeping it there!

Compare "Standard" improved Gasoline with any other gasoline selling at regular prices—regardless of color or claims. Find out for yourself why it has won such a tremendous lead over all other brands.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

ARLINGTON JUDGE WARS ON SPEEDING

Opening of County Schools Monday Will Aggravate Autoists' Offense.

G. O. P. PLANS CHANGES

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

"Jail sentences, in addition to fines face motorists who are daily converting the highways of Arlington County into race tracks," declared Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday after leaving police court.

"With one man dead and seven other persons in hospitals in Washington as results of automobile accidents early yesterday morning, something has to be done to curb the ever-increasing danger to the lives of pedestrians and motorists using the county highways who respect the law," Judge Thomas said, and added:

"The Arlington County Jail is not very large, but unless the reckless driving stops I shall fill it to overflowing."

Sheriff Howard B. Fields declared he is in full sympathy with the views expressed by Judge Thomas, but said his staff of assistants is inadequate to cope with the situation. He said he has six motorcycle police in daytime and two at night to watch 50 miles of main highways and 400 miles of other roads. The men, he said, lose sleep by being called out for special duty and at night the men are forced to use their own automobiles and pay for all repairs.

"In the face of this condition," he added, "the county board of supervisors saw fit at a recent meeting to cut the salary of one of my deputy sheriffs and I cannot ask him to do traffic duty without pay."

Next Monday the opening of 22 public schools, with more than 5,000 children, will make the situation worse.

"On two of the main highways, Wilson boulevard and the Lee highway, there are seven of the 22 schools with only six motorcycle men to police the schools and at the same time be ready to answer calls from all sections of the county," the sheriff said. "Since 1920 the population of Arlington County has more than doubled, until today it is more than 34,000, yet the police department has not been increased to any degree."

Robert S. Krezell, of 1926 New Hampshire avenue, Washington, who is held in the Arlington County jail without bond in connection with the death of William C. Robinson, 124 North Pitt street, Alexandria, who it is alleged was thrown from the automobile operated by Krezell early yesterday morning on the Washington-Richmond highway, will be heard at an inquest to be held at the courthouse today at 9:30 a. m., according to Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth.

Huston F. Reynolds, 52 years old, of Glencarlyn, is in Emergency Hospital, Washington. His skull is said to have been fractured when his automobile crashed into a telephone pole on Columbia pike yesterday afternoon. Policeman John R. Burke, who investigated the accident, reported that Reynolds lost control of his car. He was taken to the hospital by an unidentified motorist.

Election instead of appointment of a local police court judge, members of the school board and a judge of the circuit court of the sixteenth judicial circuit, are called for in the Arlington County Republican platform, on which Louis A. MacMahon, Republican nominee, will make the race for the Virginia House of Delegates this fall. The platform was completed yesterday by a legislative committee appointed by J. Eliot Spaulding, county chairman, in pursuance to a resolution adopted at the recent Republican convention. Members of the committee are J. Foster Hagan, chairman; Arthur Orr and Edgar W. Pumphrey, with MacMahon as a member by reason of his nomination.

The planks calling for the election by the people of the justice of the police court and of members of the school board are expected to prove a lively issue in the campaign.

In addition to these planks, the local Republican platform declares in favor of a referendum on the form of government the people may wish to adopt. Counties in Virginia have a newly conferred constitutional power to choose their own form of government, and the plank recognizes the necessity of a law to enable the people of the county to indicate their preference. The planks commit the party's candidate to introduce and work for the passage of a bill providing for a referendum which would permit taxpayers of the county to vote for the adoption of any form of government provided for by the State constitution.

The platform favors such legislation as may be desirable or necessary to popularize the use of county water, to prevent further encroachments on county territory through annexation and to effect needed revision in the election laws.

In matters of general or State-wide interest the local platform is in accord with the Republican State platform.

Bushrod Garrison, the one-armed watchman at the Virginia Auto Parts Co., on the Washington-Richmond highway, who has been sought by the Arlington County and Washington police in connection with the claim that he was held up and robbed by three men last Saturday night, gave himself up to Arlington County police yesterday and was ordered locked up in the county jail by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth on a charge of grand larceny.

Garrison is said to have told his employer, H. L. Hemminger, owner of the plant that three men tied and beat him. The police say he made no complaint to them.

The three men who are held at the county jail, Nathan G. Armel, of Arlington County; Odie Ponthieux and W. B. Raker, of Washington, on a charge of grand larceny with Garrison, will be given a hearing today before Police Judge Harry R. Thomas.

Harry B. Mason was elected high priest of Arlington Royal Arch Chapter at the meeting held in the Masonic Temple at Cherrydale last night. Other officers are A. B. Honts, king; John E. Oliver, scribe; Stanton C. Moore, captain of the host; William E. Robey, principal sojourner; I. H. Arnold, captain; Fred H. Doe, first grand master of vells; John M. Stewart, second grand master of vells; Frank U. Sanderson, third grand master of vells; Louis Bulicek, secretary; Samuel F. Cooper, treasurer; H. W. Dickson, tiler, and John R. McCormick, steward.

The newly elected officers were installed by John T. Cochran, grand lecturer, Royal Arch Chapter of Virginia, and Grand Master of Masons in Virginia. He was assisted by Herbert H. Porter, district deputy high priest.

Commonwealth's Attorney Gloth last night announced he will call upon the county board of supervisors, at its meeting tomorrow morning at the courthouse, to have traffic stop signs erected at all principal highway crossings in Arlington County.

At the intersection of Garrison and Clements avenue, where several serious accidents have occurred recently, there was a stop sign, but when the Garrison road was taken over as a part of the State highway system, the sign was removed. Gloth states that he will make an effort to have the sign replaced either by the county or the State.

Constitution Week, which is being sponsored throughout the country by the American Bar Association, will be observed with the holding of a mass meeting at the Washington-Lee High School, Friday night, September 20, according to W. Thomas French, county chairman in charge of arrangements.

Seth W. Richards, assistant United States Attorney General, will be the speaker. The program will be educational.

According to Town Sergt. A. F. Driscoll, of Potomac, a warrant has been issued for arrest of Aylett B. Nicol, former associate police justice of the City of Alexandria, for failing to answer to a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct placed against him last week by Sergt. Driscoll, when his name was called at the mayor's court Wednesday night. Nicol was arrested last week and detained in the jail overnight on failing to raise $32.50.

Failing to appear to answer the charge Wednesday night, Mayor Walter B. Fulton ordered him arrested and held until the next regular court night.

Water service in Rosslyn will be cut off tonight from 7 o'clock to 4 o'clock tomorrow morning to allow for extension in Rosslyn, according to an announcement last night by the county water department.

Suit for $20,000 damages for injuries suffered when, it is claimed, a truck of the Southern Storage Warehouse Co. struck an automobile in which she was a passenger early yesterday morning on Mount Vernon avenue near the Little Tea House was filed by Emma Ellis, colored, through her counsel, Reese Duncan, against the warehouse company. Attorney Duncan also filed suit for Sherman Majors, colored, owner of the automobile, for $1,000.

The woman suffered two fractured legs. Majors escaped with slight injuries. The truck was operated by James Walker, colored.

Resignation of Harry B. Mason, chairman of the Cherrydale Precinct and member of the county Republican committee, has been accepted by the county chairman, J. E. Spaulding, it was announced last night. The vacancy will be filled within the next few days.

Pleading not guilty to a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Vincent Walsh was held for action of the grand jury by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday. He was later released on $500 bond for his appearance at the opening of the October term of the Circuit Court of Arlington County.

Charges of reckless driving placed against Albert White and Fred Stepney resulted in each being fined $14.25, including costs, by Judge Thomas.

Barn Near Millville Is Destroyed by Fire

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Sept. 12.—The barn on the farm of the Standard Lime & Stone Co., known as the Henkle place, near Millville, was destroyed by fire this afternoon, entailing a loss of about $7,000. J. S. Henkle, tenant, lost all of his crops and other contents of the barn except the live stock. A gasoline tractor is supposed to have been the cause.

FIRST-AID EXPERTS GO TO KANSAS CITY

Maryland Team to Compete With Others From All Parts of World.

ALREADY HAVE HONORS

Special to The Washington Post.

Frostburg, Md., Sept. 12.—Maryland's champion first-aid team, awarded the silver loving cup at the first-aid meet at Frostburg recently, has gone to Kansas City, Mo., to compete with 800 teams from every section of the globe in the international first-aid meet. This team competed with 25 at the State-wide meet and averaged 97.8 per cent. At the meeting in Pittsburgh two years ago, it won fourth prize and became the Maryland champion.

The members of this team, Edward G. Baker, captain; George Finzel, James Warner, Charles Baker, Roy E. Crowe and Frank M. Kenzie, patients, are fire clay miners, employed by the Union Mining Co., of Mount Savage, and residents of Finzel, Garrett County, several miles from Frostburg.

The team contested with coal mining teams here last month. It was accompanied to Kansas City by Maxwell Mathias, chief engineer of the Union Mining Co.

The international meet is similar to any first-aid meeting and because of the numerous teams entered the process of elimination may take the greater part of a week. The tests involve the principles of rescue work in mines, treating on resuscitation, bandaging and placing of splints.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 12.—Fifty Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn steers, owned by 4-H Club members of Washington, Frederick, Carroll, Montgomery, Baltimore and Howard counties, will compose this year's Baby Beef Club exhibit at the great Hagerstown Fair, October 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.

The exhibit is expected again to be a leading feature of the live stock show of the fair, as will the appearance of Maryland high school students from nineteen high schools of Western Maryland in the roles of exhibitors and judges.

1929 Tobacco Crop Good in Virginia

Huge Increase for Year Is Noted in Report by Statistician.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Virginia tobacco crop for the 1929 season is one of the best in several years, the flue cured or bright tobacco, which was 75 per cent harvested September 1, having an unusually good color, Henry M. Taylor, Federal statistician for Virginia, reported today. Taylor estimated the tobacco crop, all types included, at 125,280,000 pounds.

This crop estimate for 1929 is compared with the production of 104,894,000 pounds in 1928 and with the five year average of 136,373,000 pounds. The bright tobacco showed the principal increase over types harvested in 1928, the estimated production for 1929 being 90,000,000 pounds as compared with a production of 37,437,000 in 1928.

Bright tobacco in Virginia, Taylor said, was damaged in 1928 by the wet August season, but with dry weather this year the color was unusually good.

Production of dark fired tobacco for this year was estimated by Mr. Taylor at 24,000,000 pounds as compared with 21,965,000 pounds in 1928.

Petersburg Hears Blue Law Charges

Jury Upholds Sale of Oil and Gasoline on the Sabbath Day.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 12.—The Circuit Court of Prince George County, Judge Marshall Peterson, presiding, was engaged today hearing the case of 1 of the 43 defendant dealers in gasoline and oil and soft drinks in Prince George County, charged with selling these articles on Sunday in violation of the Sunday blue laws. The trial today was for the alleged sale of gasoline and oil and was a test case.

The jury held that the accused was not guilty, inasmuch as automobile gasoline and oil were a necessity on Sunday and therefore its sale was not a violation of law.

The jury, however, held that the sale of soft drinks on Sunday was a violation of law. Those charged with the latter paid the minimum fine of $5 and costs and were discharged. The defendants were represented by O. A. Pollard, an attorney of Petersburg.

SIMMONS' OPENING GUN.

The first salvo of the Democratic bombardment of the tariff bill was fired yesterday by Senator Simmons, ranking minority member of the finance committee. His discharge was a curious compound of solid shot, grape and canister, buckshot, squirrel shot and noxious gases. The next Democratic assailant of the bill will be ingenious indeed if he finds a kind of ammunition not already used by Senator Simmons.

The tariff bill drafted by the Republicans is objectionable in nine distinct particulars, according to Senator Simmons. These nine are: It contains increases in farm products that are ineffective; it is full of exorbitant rates on articles which farmers buy; it favors the rich at the expense of the poor; it grants increased duties to industries that are already prosperous; it is full of inconsistencies and discriminations; it raises rates on articles that are not heavily imported; it encourages inefficiency; it imperils American trade abroad; it dangerously expands the power of the President.

If this were all perhaps the country might survive enactment of the bill, but Senator Simmons throws in a few more objections for good measure. He objects to the provision which seeks to equalize conditions of competition; he insists that the bill makes no distinction between economically managed concerns and their opposite in determining the spread between foreign and domestic production costs. Mr. Simmons declared that he stood upon the Democratic platform, which favored equalization of production costs, and nothing more. He attacked the Republican bill for setting up a comparison of transportation costs to ports of entry.

For a beginning this is a good resume of the iniquities of the tariff bill from the Democratic viewpoint. There is ample time in which to detect and expose other iniquities, but again we suggest that Senator Simmons has set a pace that will tax the powers of the youngest and toughest of his party colleagues.

No tariff law has ever been enacted by unanimous consent. Tariff legislation necessarily calls for party collisions, and the harder the fight the better the resulting legislation will be.

The Republican party is staking its immediate future upon this tariff bill. The Democratic party is bound to convince the country that the bill is bad, if there is to be a change of control in Congress. If the battle now beginning were conducted on strict party lines it might be expected that the Republicans would win, for they have a nominal majority in each house and doubtless have done their best to frame a bill that will bring the greatest good to the greatest number. But the nominal majority is broken by defections that promise to do more than offset the votes of the few Democrats who may favor the bill. Abundant opportunities are offered for drastic amendments, to be forced through by the Democratic-insurgent coalition.

The weakness of the Democratic assault lies in the fact that no substitute for the Republican bill is offered or can be offered. The country wants tariff revision, and to get it the Republican bill must be the basis of legislation. Honest protection of American industry demands that foreign competitors shall be held down to fair competition. Since that can not be accomplished by a comparison of production costs, it must be accomplished by arbitrary equalization of conditions of competition, taking into account the cost of transportation. The Republican bill has the merit of boldly taking a stand in behalf of Americans rather than foreigners. Unless the Democratic-insurgent combine is careful it will drift into a position in which it will be favoring foreigners as against Americans. The public will watch this contest with keen interest.

TRAFFIC CHANGES.

When the traffic act for the District of Columbia was approved in March, 1925, it was looked upon as a model that the entire country might do well to copy. With conditions as they existed at that time the act was satisfactory, but traffic conditions are in a constant state of flux, and within a short time it was realized that the act needed amendment. In July, 1926, certain amendments were approved. Steadily, however, the problems facing the traffic director have changed, and now Mr. Harland suggests, in his annual report, certain further amendments to the act. Among them are: Enactment of a certificate of title provision; abolition of all-night parking in certain sections of the city and the prohibtion of parking in certain additional streets during morning and evening rush periods; further study looking toward improvement of the left-turn regulation; liberalization of the compulsory jail penalty for certain classes of offenders, and the enactment of a safety-responsibility law.

The suggested amendments are neither radical nor new. Each has been tested in practice elsewhere. Many States enforce certificate of title laws designed to prevent trafficking in stolen machines. Most cities as large as Washington prohibit all-night parking, at least in certain areas, and safety-responsibility legislation is looked upon as an effective aid in the collection of just damage claims, besides helping to eliminate irresponsible drivers.

The public is reluctant to accept alteration of traffic regulations. Motorists become used to driving in certain ways and they are opposed to innovations that will force them to change their habits. Rarely, indeed, do motorists realize that the traffic situation is not fixed, and that, because of the very nature of the so-called traffic problem, progressive modification of regulations is necessary. This morning Mr. Harland will appear before a Senate committee created to study local traffic conditions, and he will, no doubt, enlarge upon the recommendations made in his annual report. The public should be liberal in its attitude toward such traffic changes as may be found advantageous in safeguarding life and property.

LOUIS MARSHALL.

Louis Marshall dies at a time when Jewry stands in need of his great influence. For this reason, his passing is the more lamented. But were there no persecutions in Palestine; were Zionism further advanced toward its goal, the death of Louis Marshall would be widely lamented. He was not only a great leader of the Jewish people, but he was also an outstanding American, a philanthropist worthy of emulation, and a lawyer of exceptional capability.

Mr. Marshall died on Wednesday in Zurich, Switzerland, where he was stricken ill on August 23. He had gone to Zurich to attend the Zionist Congress, during which he was elected chairman of the Jewish Agency Council for uniting Zionists and non-Zionists in the task of making Palestine the Jewish homeland. It was a task for which he was peculiarly fitted, and his death creates a vacancy in the council that can not easily be filled.

A native of New York, Mr. Marshall played an important part in the business, intellectual and philanthropic life of that State. As a lawyer he was recognized as an authority on the Constitution. In his later life he was an able champion of the rights of racial, religious and linguistic minorities, and he played an important part in the making of treaties with Poland, Roumania, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and other countries protecting the rights of minorities.

BRITISH COMMUNISTS.

The sixth annual conference of the National Minority Movement, held recently in the Town Hall, Shoreditch, London, was remarkable for many things. Foremost among the points to be noted was the paucity of the attendance. Some 700 "comrades" were expected to be present, but not quite half that number were actually in the hall. No delegate wore a red tie, but the cards of admission were red, as were the draperies and banners which festooned the platform. The chairman, "Comrade" Tom Mann, took off his coat and rolled up his shirt sleeves, not so much, perhaps, in deference to the heat as to show his earnestness. The resolutions submitted and adopted were mostly of inordinate length. That on the "Tasks of the Minority Movement"—virtually a synopsis of future policy—needed four and one-half pages of close type to set it forth.

Aside from these externals, the most significant feature of the gathering was the rank admission that the tactics hitherto employed by British Communists had signally failed in their object, and that an entirely new plan of campaign must be initiated if success is to be achieved. This means that the policy of "boring from within"—that is, in this case, the formation of "cells" in industrial enterprises and in trade unions for propaganda purposes—is to be scrapped, because it proved to be utterly futile and got nowhere. In its stead there are to be substituted independent Communist trade unions in addition to "committees of action" for stirring up strikes in factories and mines. It was further decided that the communist body should attach itself to the organization of unemployed workers, and should also make strenuous efforts to "penetrate" the cooperative movement.

It was, of course, to be expected that the conference would attack not only capitalists and capitalism, but also the British Labor administration and the regular trade unions, and this the various speakers did with a gusto that was scathing and bitter. "The reformist bureaucracy," "capitalist appendages," "betrayers of the proletariat" were among the terms used to describe the two latter bodies. Equally certain was it that, at such a meeting, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics would be held up for admiration and all opposition to it decried and condemned. One resolution professed to see in the recent events in Manchuria "a direct threat of war upon the U. S. S. R." Mr. A. M. Trikhon, who was introduced as having come specially direct from Moscow, and who was in consequence received with tumultuous applause, accused the present British Labor administration of not having yet redeemed its promise to adopt a policy of friendship toward Russia—an accusation which he based upon the alleged fact that that administration had made upon the U. S. S. R. exactly the same demands as had been formerly made by Lord Curzon and Sir Austen Chamberlain.

What clearly emerges from these multifarious deliberations, resolutions and expressions of opinion, is that British communism is as yet a negligible quantity and an impotent political factor, but that it is aggressive, persevering and determined, and that, in the event of any national or international cataclysm, it might easily become, through its ramifications and foreign connections, a most disturbing element in the body politic not of Britain alone but of other countries as well.

ENTER FOOTBALL.

Although summer lingers on, the football season is at hand. The league leaderships in baseball are practically decided, and there remains only the world series to whet the appetite of baseball enthusiasts. In the meantime, college football squads have gone into their preseason training camps and the land resounds with the dull thud of shoe leather against pigskin. These are exciting moments for true football fans. Teams are in the making, campaigns are being planned and potential stars are receiving their baptism of action.

Which is the favorite American sport, baseball or football? In a season over four months long, during which games are scheduled every day, many thousands attend baseball games. In a season two months long, during which games are scheduled only on week-ends, vast hords wend their way to college stadia. In the last decade attendance at college football games has rapidly increased, until there no longer can be doubt that football equals baseball, if it does not excel it, in popularity.

The popularity of football is easily explained. Despite its critics, it is an amateur sport in which participants engage for love and not for money. It is replete with action and is surrounded with such color that each engagement becomes a vivid spectacle. Furthermore, it combines prowess with strength, skill with stamina, unity of team action with flashes of individual brilliance. It is both primitive and complex, and stirs in the heart of the spectator the thrill of battle.

As summer languishes the football enthusiast's heart beats a bit faster, and he follows assiduously the progress of the squads in their training camps. Within a fortnight or so, the first games will have been played, and the 1929 season, promising to be bigger and better than ever before, will be officially under way.

HIGHER MILK PRICES.

The extreme drought which has affected every section of the country is likely to have a very decided effect upon the price of vegetables and fruits this winter. Already there is an enforced increase in the price of milk. In many sections, notably in New York and New England, dairymen are preparing to demand an advance in price that will seriously affect family budgets. It is not because of a disposition to gouge their patrons that the milk producers and milk dealers will exact higher prices. On the contrary they point out that the cost of production at the present time is, in many sections, 50 per cent higher than during normal seasons. In the first place, pasturage has absolutely disappeared in some of the principal dairy sections. This means that grain must be fed; but the shortage of pasturage is equaled by the shortage in the growth of silo corn and other green fodders, while the hay crop is far below normal throughout the country.

There has been a steady advance in the price of grains for feed, and most dairymen, especially in the neighborhood of the principal centers of population, depend upon the corn belt and the grain-growing States for their stock feed. This year such feed will cost at least 10 per cent more than last year, and at the same time the demand will be far greater. Therefore, higher prices for milk in all the cities of the East is to be expected.

WAGGONER OF TELLURIDE.

The C. D. Waggoner bank case will go down as one of the most amusing and interesting in financial history. Here was a country bank president, shrewd and audacious enough to go into the financial heart of the Nation and, on the strength of fake telegrams, obtain a cool $500,000 from six of the largest banks in New York City. The money was not for himself. Today Waggoner sits in a jail cell, happy in the belief that he obtained "from the wealthy East" a fund large enough to protect the depositors of the little country bank of which he was president. In the meantime a most confused situation has developed. Was the crime committed in Denver, where the forged telegrams were filed, or in New York, where the money was paid? Is there a legal way by which the funds now in possession of a commissioner in Colorado may be repossessed by the New York banks?

In one way or another the legal and financial puzzle that followed as a result of Waggoner's foray probably will be straightened out. Unquestionably a swindle was perpetrated and some legal means can be found to identify the guilty. But it is possible that the depositors of the bank may receive this money before the New York banks can get action.

Further developments in the case will be awaited with interest. The episode emphasizes the necessity of using caution in dealing with telegrams, which are only too easily faked.

LINES ON RECEIVING AND READING A CONTRACT.

Why don't they write it in simple phrases?
Why do they tangle me up with clauses?
Straight and open and clear our cause is,
Why do they fashion such verbal mazes?

I have agreed to a certain labor,
They have agreed to a certain payment.
They knew what I meant; I knew what they meant.
Why can't we deal as neighbor to neighbor?

Why can't they write it the way we said it?
Why do the lawyers impose conditions
Befuddling the clearest of propositions?

If He Discusses the Town Hall's Need of Cuspidors, He Isn't a Candidate for Governor.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE last quarter of a century has developed in America a new kind of business man—the professional executive. He did not work up from the ranks, and he has little knowledge of the problems solved by his subordinates.

Today he makes a leather business successful and tomorrow he is drafted by a new financial group and placed in charge of a steamship line or an automobile plant.

He directs a big business successfully because he thinks in big terms. He has found the secret of success—that a man is as big as the terms he thinks in.

Thinking in big terms requires no more effort and no more ability than thinking in small terms.

The corporal directing eight privates and the general directing eight divisions have problems that are identical in kind if not in magnitude. Each has to deal with eight units. Each must give an order and trust the units to obey.

The general orders his units forward and trusts subordinates to relay the command from grade to grade until the last private is in motion. The corporal orders his units forward and trusts each of them to gather up his equipment and obey.

The general does not see details. The corporal is annoyed because one of his eight privates carries an unclean gun; the general is worried because one of his eight divisions falls short of its objective. They are executives of different calibre because they think in different terms.

The rich man who controls many industries must think in terms of millions; but when he makes a trade involving material worth millions of dollars, his mental processes and purposes and reactions are identical with the mental processes, purposes and reactions of the itinerant merchant who makes a trade involving no more than a bushel of raw peanuts.

Small men are awed by bulk; but great and small think in terms of units, and whether the units are divisions or privates, tons or pounds, States or precincts, the thinking is done in the same way if done to the same end. Adding ten elephants requires no more mental effort than adding ten fleas.

The man who learns to think in terms of nickels may be as capable as the man who learns to think in terms of thousands of dollars, but his achievements will be small because his energies are expended in small matters.

The man with the hoe will give more careful attention to individual plants, but the man with a steam tractor will harvest a greater crop.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE CIRCUS TRUST.

John Ringling, the big elephant and behemoth man, has bought and taken over all the other big circuses in the United States. This gives him a monopoly of all the three-syllable adjectives and double-barreled superlatives in the land.

* * * *

The big attraction on the circus lot next season may be Mr. Ringling himself in flesh-colored tights, and with a curly wig, billed as "positively the one and only genuine wild and ferocious circus swallower in captivity, ladies and gennulmen! He eats 'em alive, folks, bites their heads off and eats 'em alive!"

* * * *

This is the era of big business, even in the menagerie, the sideshow and the "big top." Tough as it may be on romance, a "trust" now controls the tinselled bareback riders, the cavorting clowns, the prancing steeds, the aerial acrobats and the wild animals of the land.

* * * *

The "fat ladies" are under one management. The sword swallowers are eating under one boss. The living skeletons are starving cooperatively for a common cause. There is hardly an elephant in the country that isn't working for Ringling. every tiger's howl is positively a Ringling operated howl.

* * * *

Time was when several independent circuses came to town each season and the owner of each, a colorful old fellow with an enormous mustache, rode ahead of the big parade in his gold and silver chariot drawn by four white horses. There was intense rivalry. Each circus owner fought the other for the title of "the greatest show on earth." If one show announced it had two blood-sweating behemoths, the next one declared it had four. If one circus advertised a herd of 30 pachyderms, the next one advertised 40. It was great bunk and the people liked it.

* * * *

Now the merger craze has caught the circus people. The circus trust has arrived, and how! Instead of colorful talk of "man-eating terrors of the African jungles," "the world's greatest herd of full-grown and monster pachyderms," "Bosco the Bushman" and "freaks of all nations," we may hear drab chatter about operating efficiency, lowered production costs, maximum results and gross receipts.

* * * *

More and more efficiency is to be expected. The lions will roar on signal only, the Bengal tigers will snarl in strict accordance with a schedule, the elephant-washing will be done by electricity and the big flea-hunt in the monkey cage will be run on a sysetm.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Senator Blease Entitled to Credit for Legislation Providing for Awards to World War Veterans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice an editorial in The Post of September 10 entitled "Belated Honors," relating to the award of medals and decorations to World War veterans by the United States Government.

In the editorial it is stated: "But some one in Congress or in the War Department saw a light." And farther down: "But while these decorations and citations may be appreciated by the recipients or their heirs, the general public would appreciate information as to why it should take ten years or more to find out that a veteran has earned the right to wear a silver star for his gallantry in 1918."

In this connection your attention is respectfully called to page 3497 of the Congressional Record for September 4, 1929, where, under the caption, "Award of Medals to World War Veterans," will be found a complete history of the subject of your editorial. The consideration and award of the citations in question have been made by virtue of the authority contained in an amendment offered by Senator Cole L. Blease, of South Carolina, to H. R. 5898, which was finally adopted by the Senate and House of Representatives and approved May 26, 1928.

I am quite sure that you will agree with me that Senator Blease is entitled to the credit for this commendable legislation. JOHN D. LONG.

Crime Wave Among Radio Users Who Destroy Neighbors' Peace—"An Old Crank."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having just read Mr. J. Woodrow Eliot's letter in The Post regarding his radio, I am just wondering if he is not the man from whom I rent an apartment. From the minute he enters the house until he retires that radio is going full force, regardless of whether he is in the house or out in the alley working on his car. He has even had the nerve to turn it on and then go off where he can not possibly hear it, but all the neighbors must suffer just the same. He advised me not to buy a radio for a year or so because at that time they would be perfected to a greater extent, and yet bought himself one the very next month.

I gather from his letter that he is an old crank and is doing it to spite his neighbors, because he states "I despise and defy them." I sympathize with his neighbors because more than once I have been awakened after midnight due to the radio being turned on upon the owner's return.

MARY STONER.

Let Senators See Vast Imports From Abroad and They Will Understand Need for Protection.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I observe by newspaper reports that the majority of senators who are opposed to the protective tariff are from the Western States, and I suppose they are like the people of Missouri; you have got to show them. I can not conceive of a better plan than to let them visit New York City docks for one week and see the many millions of dollars' worth of merchandise that enters this one port in one week. Every dollar's worth could be manufactured in this country and give employment to thousands of our unemployed. It would save a lot of time, trouble and expense to the taxpayers. W. M. SHEIMER.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 11.

Nuisance Legislation Necessary to Stop Radio Fiends Who Impose Upon Their Neighbors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since I do not have the pleasure of personally knowing J. Woodrow Eliot, Ph. D., and as I do not happen to live in his neighborhood, it follows that I am not one of the writers of "anonymous sneaky letters" to whom his remarks on the subject of loud speakers in The Post are directed. Nevertheless, I can assure you that I can appreciate the viewpoint of some of the complainants.

I, too, own a radio set and I therefore agree with Dr. Eliot that the radio is both entertaining and educational. Fortunately or unfortunately, however, most people are not deaf, and in many cases the combination of open windows plus a loud speaker turned on at maximum volume in the late hours of the night is just a bit too much for some ears and nerves.

With all due respect to Dr. Eliot, I think the time is rapidly approaching when some sort of "nuisance legislation" will have to be enacted to protect the ears and nerves of tired people who want to rest at hours when they are entitled to do so in peace and quiet.

MAURICE RABINOVITZ, LL. B.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I say a few words in behalf of those who do not agree with the radio fan's letter in yesterday's Post?

I have a so-called neighbor who takes the same attitude as this Ph.D. After I had listened for days and nights to the endless monotony of that radio, I called him up several times around midnight, and asked him to be considerate of his neighbors by turning off his radio. He said that his radio did not disturb anybody; and went right on with it until he was ready to close the doors. Another educator! Even if the radio be an educator, nobody, excepting Ph. D's, perhaps, can endure hours on a stretch of such educating. Their nerves scream for relief. The machine part is death to musical people.

But I suppose there is no use in mentioning the Golden Rule to such fans. "My enjoyment," to quote the Ph. D., "is the only consideration." It is because of these inconsiderate persons that we have war. The time comes when the other side takes a hand. The worm that turns—sometimes is found to be a python.

There is a place for everything; and the place for this gentry is on a farm, where they may "educate" the drove to which they belong.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Final Decision In Social Row Forecast Soon

Premier's Visit May Cause Executive Ruling on Mrs. Gann's Place.

By JEAN ELIOT.

IT seems evident that the long discussed question of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann's place in the social scheme as "the Vice President's official hostess" will be decided when Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, comes to Washington. It was announced yesterday at No. 10 Downing street that he will sail September 28.

Inevitably at that time there will be official functions at which the Vice President and his lady, at least one ambassador and his lady, the Speaker of the House and his wife, and the various other officials involved will be guests. The White House will of necessity make some ruling, if there is a White House party for the distinguished visitor, which is certainly on the cards. And presumably the rest of the social world will be content to follow the White House lead.

So, with a decision imminent in this all-absorbing social contest, it is interesting to learn what London has done in the matter of its own particular social problem. When Mrs. Sidney Webb refused to be known as Lady Passfield there was something of a furore, since her husband, the secretary of the dominions in the new Labor government, had not balked at being raised to the peerage. What to do about seating Lord Passfield and Mrs. Sidney Webb became something of a conundrum.

However, the difficulty seems to have been solved—and to the lady's satisfaction. Recently invitations to a government reception were issued and stated: "The Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs and Mrs. Sidney Webb will receive the guests." And if court authorities accept the lady's decision, presumably London society will.

Mrs. Webb has vouchsafed no formal explanation as to why she acquiesced when her husband assumed a title of nobility but refused it for herself. But to friends she has said, "I am 70 now, and I desire no other name than Mrs. Sidney Webb."

It is expected that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald will bring his own "official hostess" with him in the charming person of his daughter, Miss Ishbell MacDonald. But, while she will share in the festivities for her father, it is not likely that there will be any to-do over the place of this young and pretty girl at official parties.

Mrs. H. P. Wright Reopens Capital Home.

Mrs. Henry Price Wright has reopened her house in Washington after passing two months at Bar Harbor, Me. Mr. and Mrs. Wright's daughter, Miss Margaretta Wright, will be a debutante this season.

Mrs. Wright is a member of the board of governors of the new National Women's Country Club. This organization has secured the old Montgomery Country Club in Bradley Hills as its headquarters and the work of remodeling is nearing completion. A roof garden has been added and a swimming pool and golf course will be constructed before next summer.

Dr. and Mrs. Larkin W. Glazebrook and their debutante daughter, Miss Virginia Glazebrook, are now in Madison, Conn., for a visit. They have recently completed a motor tour through the mountain sections of North Carolina and Tennessee.

Midshipman Richard C. Drum Hunt, who passed his vacation at his home on Sixteenth street, has returned to the United States Naval Academy. As manager of the football team, it was necessary for him to arrive before the main body of midshipmen. In addition to other honors won by Midshipman Hunt, he has just been given two stripes and a place on the regimental staff, which thrills a "middy's" heart.

Mr. Fred Drum Hunt will leave on Monday for the Severn School, near Annapolis, where he will be a student this winter. He has just returned from Greensburg, Pa., where he was a member of a house party entertained by Representative and Mrs. Adam Wyant for their daughter, Miss Anne Wyant. Miss Polly Cooke and Miss Amy Chandler, who were also members of the house party, are staying a while longer with Miss Wyant.

Miss Clairmon Bride of Mr. N. L. Watkins.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Celeste Clairmont, daughter of Mrs. Joseph St. John Clairmont, and Mr. Nathaniel Lee Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Watkins, of Palmyra, Va., took place last evening at 8 o'clock in the picturesque little Episcopal Church of St. Agnes, the Rev. V. O. Anderson officiating. The church was beautifully decorated and lighted only by candles. Before the ceremony, George Burton Cowles sang "Hide Thou Me," and Schubert's "Ave Maria."

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Burton G. Cowles, and wore a gown of white chiffon fashioned along straight lines, with a long train. Her veil, of tulle, was arranged with a cap of old lace caught with orange blossoms at the back. She carried a sheaf of calla lillies.

Miss Fanita C. Clairmont was maid of honor and her sister's only attendant. She wore a gown of heavily embroidered creme crepe, with a close fitting headdress of pearls and rhinestones over a foundation of fuschia chiffon and cloth of silver. She carried fuschia colored dahlias.

Mr. Watkins had as best man, Mr. William Eliot Hudmon, and the ushers were Mr. William George James and Mr. DeWitt Mullen.

A reception at the home of the bride followed the wedding. She was assisted in receiving by her mother, who wore a gown of eggshell crepe, the panels of which were appliqued with beige panne velvet petals.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs George L. Cowles and Mrs. Clifford B. Dykeman, of New York; Mr. and Mrs Goodwin C. Cowles, of Stamford, Conn., and Mr. Roy L. McLaughlin, of Providence, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Watkins left for a wedding trip, and will be at home in Chicago after October 1.

The Minister of Poland, Mr. Tytus Filipowicz, who has been in Warsaw on leave, is expected to sail for this country on September 18 on the Ile de France.

To Study Art This Winter

Underwood & Underwood.

MISS MARY ELIZABETH THOMAS, daughter of Senator and Mrs. John Thomas, of Idaho. She will be a student of art at the King-Smith School this winter.

Vice President Curtis to Be on Mendota.

Vice President Curtis will be a guest this afternoon aboard the Coast Guard craft Mendota, on which the committee for the President's Cup regatta will entertain a group of distinguished official guests for the races both today and tomorrow. It had been hoped that the Vice President's daughter, Mrs. Charles P. George, would also be present to view the opening of the regatta, but she left town last night for Fort Sill, Okla., after a brief visit with the Vice President on her way home from Siasconset, Mass. However, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann will be in the group aboard the Mendota, the Vice President's sister receiving with Mrs. F. C. Billard, wife of the commandant of the Coast Guard, and the wives of several Coast Guard officers.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Good are also expected to be in the receiving line. They have accepted an invitation to view the races, accompanied by their young son. Others recently added to the long list of those who have accepted are the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Senator and Mrs. David A. Reed, Senator and Mrs. Lawrence C. Phipps, Senator and Mrs. Frederick Sackett, Surgeon General and Mrs. Hugh Cumming, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Count Marchetti, of the Italian Embassy, and Mr. Walter Rufenacht, of the Swiss Legation.

Dominican Official and Wife Complimented.

The Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Morales entertained informally at a reception and tea dance yesterday in the Chinese room of the Mayflower in compliment to Senor Felice A. Vicini, chief of the Department of Commerce of the Dominican Republic, and Senora de Vicini. Approximately 100 persons were present.

Mrs. M. F. Gage Sails Today for England.

Mrs. Moreton Foley Gage, daughter of former Senator Henry F. Lippitt, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lippitt in Providence, R. I., will sail today on the S. S. Majestic for England and will return to her home in Banbury. Before her marriage Mrs. Gage was Miss Helen Lippitt. She made her debut in Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Lippitt accompanied Mrs. Gage to New York yesterday and are at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel for a few days.

Miss Mildred Tytus, who has been at Newport, has returned to Ashintully, her summer home at Tyringham, Mass.

Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis and her daughters, the Misses Margaret and Helen Eustis, are at the Plaza Hotel, New York, for a few days They have been on a motor trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman have closed their cottage at Southampton, Long Island, and returned yesterday to Tuxeden, their home at Edgemoor, Md. During their absence Tuxeden was occupied by a group of senators detained in town by the tariff hearings, among them Senator David Aiken Reed, Senator Walter Evans Edge, Senator Frederic Walcott and Senator Hiram Bingham.

Lieut. and Mrs. H. W. Northcutt and young son, Bryant, are the guests of Mrs. Northcutt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. C. Bryant.

Mrs. Evelsth E. Whiting, who spent the summer in Paris with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Benet, has returned to Washington. Her son-in-law and daughter, Maj. and Mrs. Willis Hale, are again in town after a month's stay at Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Mrs. John B. Heffernan, wife of Commander Heffernan, U. S. N., will be at the Mayflower in Washington until the first of next week and will then go to Charleston, S. C. Commander Heffernan has been transferred from Newport, R. I., to duty aboard the Concord at Charleston.

Miss Elizabeth Morwood, of Belfast, Ireland, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the American Association of University Women at the national clubhouse, 1634 I street, yesterday. The other guests were the executive officers of the national and local clubs, also Miss Anne Kent.

Miss Morwood, who is the house guest of Mrs. William P. Kent, of Wyoming avenue, is a student of Girton College, Cambridge University, and is in America on an English fellowship to study at the University of Oregon. Her specialty is English literature.

Monsieur and Madame Charles I. Liestelle, of Paris, accompanied by their sons, Robert and Philip Liestelle, will be guests at the Mayflower until the end of the week. Monsieur and Madame Liestelle and their younger son have been in this country for three months and with their elder son, Robert Liestelle, who attended Columbia University last season, they have just completed a trip through the West and into Alaska and Canada. The entire family will sail from New York September 20 for Europe. Miss Elvine L. Neeser, of New York City, is traveling with them. Monsieur Liestelle is a member of the stock exchange in Paris.

Maj. and Mrs. Thurston Hughes have returned to the United States from the Philippines and will be guests at the Mayflower until the end of the week, when they will leave for a short visit in New York. They will spend another week at the Mayflower before starting the first of October for Maj. Hughes' new station, Fort Sam Houston, Tex. Mrs. Hughes is the former Miss Katherine Leech, of Washington. Her sister, Mrs. Franklin P. Sackett, of Wynnewood, Pa., who has been in Virginia for the summer, has joined her in Washington, and will make the trip to New York with Maj. and Mrs. Hughes. Mrs. Sackett is the widow of Commander Franklin P. Sackett, U. S. N., a brother of Senator Frederic M. Sackett, of Kentucky.

Maj. and Mrs. Hughes arrived in the States the first of the month and since then have been visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Sarah Thurston Hughes, in Louisville, Ky.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Simon Fullinwider, jr., who have been making their home at the Wardman Park Hotel, will leave Sunday by motor for the West Coast. They will sail from Seattle later in the fall for China, where Lieut. Comdr. Fullinwider will be on duty.

Dr. Foote and Family Back in Capital.

Dr. and Mrs. John Foote and their their son, Mr. William D. Foote, have returned to the city after spending part of the month of August at the Chelsea in Atlantic City, and the rest as the guests of Dr. William L. Clark, of Philadelphia at his summer place on the Sassafras River. Miss Polly Foote, who left for the West Coast last June to be the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Frederic Steigmeyer, in Beverly Hills and Santa Monica, Calif., returned last week.

Mr. Halleck A. Butts, commercial attache to the United States Embassy in Tokyo, who has been on leave of absence in this country for three months, has returned to Washington for a short visit and is again staying at the Mayflower. Mr. Butts and his daughter, Miss Felice Butts, spent the summer together in Milford, Conn. Miss Butts will attend the Catherine Gibbs School in Boston this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kerr, who are spending the summer on the continent, will return October 4 on the S. S. President Roosevelt. They will come to Washington on October 5.

Mrs. Harley Calvin Gage and Miss Margaret Gage are in Atlantic City for a visit and are staying at the Seaside Hotel.

Mrs. C. B. Cassell entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel when there were eight in the company.

Miss M. S. Feeley entertained at dinner last evening at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Dawson And Daughter Again at Home

Both Return From Brazil and Festivities at Roads Congress.

Mrs. Thomas C. Dawson and her daughter, Miss Lilita Dawson, are again at their home in Nineteenth street after having spent several months in Brazil, the girlhood home of Mrs. Dawson, who was Senorita Luisa Duval. After landing in New York they were guests for a few days of the Brazilian Consul General and Senora de Sampaio.

Mrs. Dawson and Miss Dawson were in Rio de Janeiro at the height of the season and shared in many of the festivities for the United States delegation to the second Pan-American Highways Congress. Mrs. Oddie, wife of Senator Tasker Oddie, who was one of the delegates, was a member of this group, and she and Mrs. Dawson were entertained at luncheon one day by Mrs. Claude I. Dawson, United States Consul General in Rio.

Although no relation, Mr. Dawson was a close friend of Mrs. Dawson's husband, Mr. Thomas C. Dawson, a distinguished member of our diplomatic service, and on this occasion the consul general grew reminiscent about a curious incident in which the two had been involved. At one time Mr. Thomas C. Dawson was sent to Nicaragua as a special envoy. An important official fete was arranged in his honor, but, when the time came round, he was too ill to attend and sent the younger Mr. Dawson, then attached to the legation, to represent him. Since the names were the same, there was confusion among the powers that be, who thought the young man was the special ambassador. And years later, when Mr. Thomas C. Dawson died, accounts of his distinguished career were published in the Nicaraguan newspapers—with pictures of Mr. Claude I. Dawson.

While in Brazil Mrs. Dawson visited her mother, Senora Guerra-Duval, and a brother and sister-in-law, Senor and Senora Duval, who make their home in Rio de Janeiro.

Miss Nutt Is Wed To Mr. H. H. Miller.

The marriage of Miss Edna Lorena Nutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Gamble Nutt, to Mr. Henry Heine Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Emory Methodist Church, the Rev. Daniel L. Snyder officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, pink and white forming the color scheme. The chancel was banked with palms and lighted candles added to the impressiveness of the ceremony.

Miss Mabel Loftus sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly," preceding the ceremony, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Dyer, who played the wedding march.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of egg-shell satin, made with a yoke of appliqued lace in v-shaped effect and a draped skirt. The veil of tulle formed a long train and the coronet cap was appliqued with lace to match the gown and trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a shower of bride's roses and lillies of the valley.

Miss Elsie Armitage, of Chicago, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a green chiffon gown and transparent hat and carrying a bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Levi Gamble Nutt, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black chiffon velvet, and Mrs. William Miller, mother of the groom, a gown of black lace.

Mr. Rolland Lee Nutt, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and his two little daughters, Dorothy Lee and Mary Jane, were flower girls.

A reception for the guests was given at the home of the bride's parents, 834 Rittenhouse street, immediately following the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Miller departed on their wedding trip. The bride's going-away gown was a dark blue ensemble of crepe romaine and beige georgette blouse.

Upon their return to Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will live in West Chevy Chase.

Mr. and Mrs. Roi Davis, of Toledo, Ohio, have for several days been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nat Glasser. Mr. and Mrs. Davis motored to Washington from Atlantic City and at the end of this week will return to Toledo, Ohio.

Miss Sarah J. Stevens, of Oak Park, Ill., and Miss Mary E. Dix, of Chicago, have motored to Washington and are at the Dodge Hotel.

Maj. Per Ramee, U. S. A., who is now abroad, will arrive in New York on the S. S. America September 21 en route to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Enes have arrived from Chicago and are stopping temporarily at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mrs. W. R. Durie, of Kinston, Jamaica, is at the Dodge Hotel for several days.

Mr. E. M. Curran and Mr. R. E. Early are among those who will entertain guests on Tuesday evening for the formal opening of the autumn season at Wardman Park Hotel. Many prominent in society are expected to be present on this gala occasion, when Guy Lombardo and his famous Royal Canadian Orchestra will play.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge and Mr. and Mrs. John Davis Lodge will be in Washington for the marriage of Miss Helena Lodge and M. Edouard de Streel, First Secretary of the Belgian Embassy, which will take place tomorrow afternoon with a small company of guests to witness the ceremony. The two men are brothers of Miss Lodge. Mr. John Davis Lodge has but recently returned from Europe, where he has been honeymooning with his bride, who was Miss Francesca Braggiotti, of Boston.

M. de Streel's father, M. Paul de Streel, has come from Belgium for the wedding, accompanied by the bridegroom's brother and sister.

Dr. George Kirkpatrick has returned to Washington after an extended tour of Central America.

Mr. A. Mendez, who has been traveling in South America for the last two months, has returned to town.

Mrs. Hayne Ellis and Miss Martha Ellis, wife and daughter of Capt. Ellis, U. S. N., are at the Barclay Hotel, New York, for a few days, having returned from Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Joerissen are at present in New York and are staying at the St. Regis Hotel.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Church, who as Miss Muriel Vanderbilt was a frequent visitor in Washington, proposes to take several of her famous string of horses to some of the Western shows this autumn, going as far as the Pacific Coast. After exhibiting at the Springfield horse show next week and possibly at the Brockton fair in early October, she will start for the West.

Her plan is to go on a Horse Show Association special train from Chicago to Seattle, and thence proceed to Portland, Oreg.; Kansas City, Wichita, Kans., and Chicago, reaching New York in time for the national show.

Mrs. Church is planning to take Glenavon and Halo, horses that have been big prize winners; her bay gelding Chipmunk, and three or four of her younger horses.

Mrs. Church's mother, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, is now her guest at Newport.

Mrs. Hoover And Son Due Back Tonight

Both to Attend Regatta; President Entertains at Dinner.

Mrs. Hoover and her son, Mr. Allan Hoover, are planning to return from Hot Springs, Va., tonight in order to view, with President Hoover, the finals of the President's Cup regatta, set for tomorrow afternoon. It is expected that they will entertain a party of guests aboard one of the Coast Guard vessels, probably the Apache.

President Hoover had an impromptu dinner party Wednesday evening, having as guests Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and her brothers, Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Mr. Kermit Roosevelt, who have since returned to New York; Miss Florence Wardwell, of New York, who was a White House guest overnight; Mrs. Beulah Hughes, Republican national committeewoman from Tennessee, and Dr. Hubert Work. In Mrs. Hoover's absence, her sister, Mrs. J. H. Large, was hostess.

Saturday Is Children's Day at Underwood's Studio

Now that school's here we've made special preparations for busy Saturdays in our spacious studios.

There'll be romping and shouting and tears shed, too—but we like it, and mothers marvel at our patience and at the wonderful portraits we make.

We have exclusive rights on the famous Beidler double camera. There's no comparing the work of this with others. And prices are agreeably low.

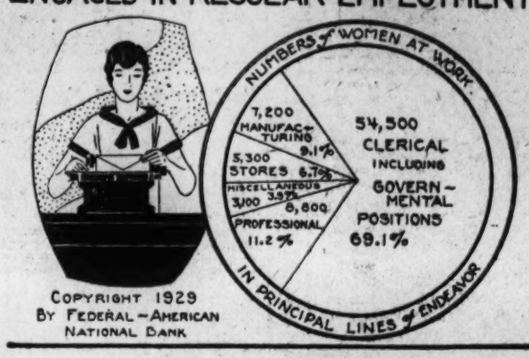
GREATER WASHINGTON

78,900 WOMEN OF WASHINGTON ENGAGED IN REGULAR EMPLOYMENT



COPYRIGHT 1929
BY FEDERAL-AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK

APPROXIMATELY 78,900 women of Washington now are engaged in regular employment, assisting private concerns and Governmental agencies to carry forward those activities which support the existence of the city. The number of women workers is increasing rapidly.

Women now are busy at many tasks formerly thought possible only for men. They are found in virtually every office in the city; in many manufacturing establishments and in practically all trades and professions They appear not only as subordinates but as employers as well in many lines. Not a few own and operate business ventures.

In the neighborhood of 54,000 women are engaged in clerical occupations. This group comprises 69.1 per cent of the total number who work. It includes most of those in offices of the various Governmental agencies of the city, as well as women performing similar work in private establishments.

Professional workers form the second largest group of women workers and number 8,800 or 11.2 per cent of the whole number. This group includes doctors, nurses, school teachers and lawyers. Manufacturing work claims the attention of 7,200 women while 5,300 are employed in trade activities. This group is largely employed in stores. About 3,100 women workers must be listed under "miscellaneous" because of the variety of their occupations.

These data and the total are estimates, believed conservative, and are derived from records of an actual count made by the U. S. Census Bureau.

This is installment No. 13 of a series of special articles now being published by The Washington Post with the cooperation of the Federal-American National Bank. Watch for tomorrow's installment exclusively in The Post.

Searchlight Wind Vane To Be Tested by Fliers

A new device to indicate the direction of the wind on flying fields is to be tested out at Bolling Field tonight, it was learned yesterday. The apparatus includes a wind vane, searchlight and reflector. It operates so as to project a beam of light in the direction of the wind, so that incoming pilots may know in what direction to land.

Tonight's tests will include flights by various officers of the field, in which the beacon alone will be used in determining wind direction.

BIG PLANE HALTED BY BALKY MAGNETO

SECOND ATTEMPT TODAY

While high officials of the Army Air Corps waited inside its luxurious cabin for a demonstration in the air, a huge Condor cabin biplane remained earthbound at Bolling Field yesterday afternoon. For several hours F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics; Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, Chief of Air Corps, and Brig. Gen. William E. Gillmore, assistant chief, waited around for a balky magneto to be repaired. Then Davison and Gen. Gillmore had to leave.

Finally the magneto was repaired, and Gen. Fechet received a demonstration of which he expressed the keenest approval. But the Assistant Secretary and Gen. Gillmore will have to receive theirs today, if they can spare time from their duties.

Burdette S. Wright, local representative of the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Co., manufacturers of the giant plane, explained that not only would it have flown on both engines even with the one magneto dead, but it would easily have flown on a single engine had it been necessary. This was demonstrated by Capt. Ira C. Eaker, who flew the plane on one engine with a full load.

According to Wright, each engine is equipped with two magnetos. With the dead magneto not functioning, he said the chances were that the engine would have continued to run, but that he preferred to risk halting the demonstration rather than take the least chance.

Today an attempt will be made to demonstrate the plane to Davison and other Air Corps officials, as well as to Admiral Will[illegible] E. Moffett, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics. Following the demonstrations here the plane will be flown to Columbus, Ohio, where it will be put into service on the [illegible]nes of the Transcontinental Air Transport, its owners.

The Condor is said to be the largest cabin biplane in the United States. It was recently completed by the Curtiss company as the first of a series of giant cabin transports. A smaller model of the same plane is now in use by the Air Corps as a bomber.

Alleged Chair Collapse Cause of $50,000 Suit

Alleging that she suffered serious injury as the result of the collapse of a chair in the Carlton Hotel, Lillian Klahre, who gives her address as 819 Investment Building, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., seeking to recover $50,000 damages.

The woman asserts that the hotel is maintained and controlled by the Wardman company and that it was the duty of the defendant to see that furniture and fixtures were in a safe condition. She alleges that on March 19, while a guest in the hotel, she sat in a chair which collapsed, throwing her to the floor and against a radiator. She is represented by Attorney T. Morris Wampler.

MARY DELLA

A Serial Story

By JULIE ANNE MOORE.

CHAPTER XXXV.

They clambered into the big car, Mary Della between Robert and George MacKray in the rear seat, the C. E. and Lieut. McMullen in front. The detective drove.

"Did you say West Main street?"

"I said West Main street," Mary Della assured him. "And I said make it snappy! If you don't, you may find you've got another Red Mask murder to grow gray-headed over."

"Too bad they don't supply these police cars with heaters and robes," George declared. "I never had so few comforts in my life."

"Isn't that too bad!" This from Robert. "We couldn't get you a hot-water bottle and a hot chocolate at the first drug store we pass, could we?"

"You could," George replied quickly. "The question is, will you?"

Mary Della, nervously washing her hands in the air, could not resist a smile. "Will you children quit fighting?" she demanded. "You've always got something to argue over. And this is serious."

"Did you mean what you said to Mac about the possibility of another Red Mask murder?" Robert asked.

Instantly the two men turned to her, grave, interested, sympathetic.

"Oh, I don't know, Bob," she answered vaguely. "I don't know anything at all. I've just got a feeling that something terrible may be happening to—to a friend of mine."

"But it came on you so suddenly," George suggested. "Do you know something that gives that—did you say?—feeling? Something that gives that feeling substance? You aren't taking us off on a wild ride on an abstract hunch?"

Mary Della leaned forward and spoke to Lieut. McMullen. "It's the second door beyond the post there—on the left. Let me out, and I'll run in while you're turning around."

To Robert and George she added hastily, "I'll explain as quick as I can. Wait in the car until I come back. I may be on the wrong track."

The car was coming to a stop, but Mary Della, impatient, pushed the door open and jumped to the pavement. The detective glanced behind him and brought the machine about in a wide circle, stopping before the door through which Mary Della had just disappeared.

"This is certainly funny business to me," George told Robert after a moment. "We sit down to discuss the thing calmly, and this child hops up and starts us off madly after something that may be a nut or an escaped canary, for all we know."

"No use to get hot about it," Robert reminded him. "Mary Della knows what it's all about, and she's not the kind to get excited over a canary."

"Sure she won't need us in there?" the detective asked over his shoulder.

"She said for us to wait here," Robert replied, his voice suggesting that there could be no possible appeal from Mary Della's mandates.

Less than four minutes after she had jumped from the car Mary Della came through the dark doorway, breathless.

"She's gone!" she cried, standing by the car, apparently undecided what was to be done now.

"Who's gone?" the C. E. asked bluntly.

"Oga. Olga Svenson. She lives on the second floor there. Her mother said she went out about 20 minutes ago. With a young man, she said. But she dosen't know who."

"Is it important?" the detective inquired.

"You don't know how important. If I only knew where she went. I know who the man was. It couldn't of been anybody else. She said he as going to take her out riding tonight and——"

"Oh, it's Speaks again, eh?" The detective smiled.

"You don't know where this Speaks fellow likes to rest his car?" the detective asked.

"Oh, it might be anywhere. He knows every road around here. Say!" —she was looking at Robert, but the detective knew she was talking to him—"do you mind taking a chance? We may be throwing an hour away, but—well, there's a chance——"

"I got all night, girlie," the detective said lightly. "Get in and let's go. But you're running after the wrong man."

Robert slipped out quickly and assisted Mary Della into the car. The engine roared, the gears rattled, and they were speeding east again.

"This right?" the C. E. inquired, twisting about to look at Mary Della.

"My word!" George exclaimed. "Are we going back to pick up the trail at the scene of the murder?"

"It's a gamble, George," Mary Della told him, trying to control her voice. "They may be anywhere, but if—I wish you wouldn't make me go into details. You see, he wanted to park with me here one night, and there's just one little, tiny chance that——"

"Certainly," Robert declared sympathetically. "Don't explain anything you don't want to. Mary Della. We're taking a chance and it isn't costing any of us anything but time, which has no value right now. Don't talk so much, George," he added loud enough for the hint to reach the ears of the two men in the front seat.

"It isn't that I don't want to tell you what I'm thinking about," Mary Della said to Robert. "But it may be all a mistake and you see what a horrible mess it would get me in if I had told you in so many words what I'd thought."

"Of course I do," Robert agreed. "You keep it to yourself, darling" he whispered. "We'll do whatever you say."

Mary Della slipped her hand out and laid it in Robert's. Then she put her lips close to his ear. "She wouldn't mind if—if she knew that this might be our last hour together, would she, Bob?"

"She....?" Robert frowned. "Who, sweetheart....What last hour together?...." He was deeply and honestly perplexed, and then it dawned upon him what she was thinking. "Why, Mary Della, don't you know—"

Mary Della placed a finger on his lips. "Don't explain, Bob," she whispered. "I understand. I saw it in the paper. But I didn't think you knew...."

"Can you imagine that! She wasn't that sort, darling. Marjorie is a fine girl. But she didn't love me, and her mother insisted on her marrying me, for some strange reason. She wrote me what she planned to do, and why?"

"I'm sorry, Bob. I guessed too quick. She had to be a nice girl if you—if you—liked her."

Robert squeezed her hand tenderly. "By the way," he asked, "don't you know about whom I was talking when I said that George was to be best man at the wedding?"

"Why—no. You were telling me when we went in the police station that you had to announce the engagement. Who is she, Bob?"

"I say, there," George interrupted. "Don't you two know it isn't nice to whisper in public? Turn around here, Mary Della, and talk to Yale's handsomest brunette."

"By heaven, George," Robert laughed; "you've a gift for etiquette, but it'll get you shot some day if you don't watch yourself. I was just asking Mary Della a riddle."

* * * *

"Is this your road up ahead, Miss Chubb?" The C. E.'s voice brought Mary Della to her senses. She stared into the darkness to the left of the highway a short distance before them.

"Yes," she said simply, and there's a car parked on it. Now listen"—she moved to the edge of the cushion and addressed the detective—"we'll just drive by slowly and see if we can make out who's in the car. If I'm wrong, we'll go out the other end of the road and turn back into the highway toward Waterbury. If——"

"That's the important question," the detective pointed out quickly. "If you're right, what next?"

"Gosh, I don't know. You see, I may be wrong about the whole thing —I know what," she added as if suddenly inspired. "We can't accuse him of anything on my suspicions, but we can talk to him and tell him we thought we might trap the Red Mask out here, and while we're talking Bob or George can feel around in the back of the car. The Red Mask used a piece of gas pipe, you know. And there might be a mask hanging around. But we'll have to get them out of the car."

"That's easy," the detective declared. Leave it to me. But who'll search the car while I talk to him?"

They were turning into the abandoned arc of road, still 50 yards from the parked machine, when George MacKray abruptly pushed the door open and stepped on to the running board.

"They don't know me," he said quickly. "I'll drop off here and drag up after you get them out of the car." He closed the door easily, and jumped to the ground.

The police car moved up slowly. Mary Della was rubbing her hands together. . . . Robert put a comforting arm about her shoulders.

The C. E. leaned back over the seat. "Recognize the car?" he asked, barely above a whisper.

Mary Della shook her head. "But that doesn't mean anything now," she said. "Take it easy, lieutenant."

The car was just moving as they came abreast of the other machine. Its lights were out, and though she stared intently at the two forms in the front seat, she could see nothing of their faces.

A few yards beyond the police car came to a stop. "Could you recognize them?"

"I couldn't even see them. . . . Now what'll we do?"

"Best thing I know," said the detective, "is go back on foot and use a flashlight. If you're wrong, we'll apologize. If not——"

He got out of the car and motioned to the C. E. to follow. Mary Della and Robert stepped out reluctantly and trailed behind.

The detective's spotlight roamed about the road and then played directly on the quiet car.

Mary Della and Robert, several yards behind, heard him say: "Sorry to bother you, but I'm a detective and we're looking for some one. Would you mind getting out where we can look at you for a moment?"

There was a stir in the car, and as Mary Della came up to the detective a young woman stepped to the ground.

"Miriam! . . . Miriam! I thought —What are you doing out here?"

"Well, of all things!" exclaimed the startled Miriam. "Honey, what in the world are you up to, trying to scare people to death? I just knew something would happen when Timmy insisted on coming out on this horrible road."

"Timmy . . . ?" Mary Della repeated weakly. "Timmy? Why—Miriam, I thought it was Olga and Joe. We're looking for Joe. He may be——"

"Lo, Mary Della." It was the ever smiling Timmy, standing by the detective. "What kind of a party is this you and the gang are staging? Think me and Miriam was the Red Mask in duplicate?"

Mary Della was clinging to Miriam for support. "I've got to sit down and think, Miriam," she muttered. "Come on. I'll get my breath in a minute. I was so sure it was Joe and Olga."

It was the detective who broke the silence. He stepped over and laid a hand on Timmy's shoulder. "The leading man of 'The Clock Shop Clock,'" he said, suggestive of a compliment.

Timmy smiled modestly. "In person," he said, "and not a radio enterpretation." He shifted his eyes uneasily under the half-humorous gaze of the plain-clothes man.

"And to think," mused the detective, "we find you out here by accident. Can you beat it? Son, I've been looking all over for you the last couple of days. Where've you been?"

"Looking for me?" Timmy was plainly uncomfortable. "You're kidding. I've been at the store days and at home nights."

"Positive? Yesterday, say. Were you working yesterday? Were you home last night?"

"Say"—Timmy drew back slightly. Very slowly his jaws set, his chin stuck forward, his thin eyebrows moved together and down. His voice was even, sharp, cold. "What in hell are you talking about?"

"I was just reminding you," the detective replied, "that you weren't at the store yesterday and you were not at your boarding house last night. What good do you think that'll do you?"

It was almost too quick for the eye to follow. The flashlight struck the ground with a thud and went out. Several voices cried out at once. There was the sound of some one rolling on the ground. And then comparative quiet.

The detective's voice came from the darkenss. "There's another light in the right-hand pocket of the car. Will somebody get it?"

The C. E. got it and waved it in a great circle holding it at last where it revealed two figures ludicrously involved on the ground.

The detective got to his feet and pulled something up after him. It was Timmy. Bareheaded, scowling.

"Folks," said the detective, obviously conscious of the dramatic force at the moment, "here's the answer to the riddle, the Red Mask in person, and not a radio interpretation."

Poem Telling Curse of Rum Wins Prisoner His Freedom

Thomas H. Powers, 70-year-old itinerant poet, was freed in Police Court yesterday after he had handed Judge R. E. Mattingly a fifteen-stanza poem which bears his name as author and which is entitled "Whisky Did It All."

Judge Mattingly was touched by casual perusal of the poem, and calling every one into the courtroom, including a dozen prisoners around the bench, he read aloud the fifteen-stanza line by line, with proper attention to rhythm, meter and sentiment.

Powers was charged with vagrancy. Policeman I. L. Jenkins and T. D. Bacon appearing as complainants. Judge Mattingly imposed a fine of $500 with the alternative of six months, suspending execution on condition the poet leave town.

A few of the verses of the poem follow:

"I am growing old as I face the world cold;
In disgrace and shame I travel, as through the world I roam.
Friends long since have left me,
And now I have no home.

"Now, reader, let me tell you
That this my disgrace
Was caused by bad whisky and now I sadly roam,
Penniless, friend, and that's why I have no home."

"There is Nothing Finer than a Stromberg-Carlson"

A SPORTING PROPOSITION in RADIO

IN Denver, Colorado, an interesting and enlightening contest was staged recently between two radio receivers—one a new Screen Grid Stromberg-Carlson, the other a Receiver of similar specifications, well-known and highly esteemed.

The tests were made in a dealer's home within twenty blocks of stations KOA using a power of 12,500 watts, and KFXF using 500 watts. These stations operate on 830 and 940 kilocycles respectively—a difference of 110 kilocycles or 42 meters between them.

Results were as follows:—

*SELECTIVITY—The Stromberg-Carlson picked up three out of town stations between these two broadcasters—without interference. The other set was unable to tune out the locals and could get no other stations between the two points on the dial where the local stations came in.

*SENSITIVITY—Using a six-foot aerial the Stromberg-Carlson picked up every station the other receiver could get on a 100-foot aerial. The other set using the six-foot aerial, could only bring in the local stations.

*VOLUME—The Stromberg-Carlson with a six-foot aerial brought in all the stations with ample volume. The other set with a 100-foot aerial could not equal the Stromberg-Carlson volume.

To find out for yourself the difference between Stromberg-Carlsons and other receivers, ask a Stromberg-Carlson dealer to make comparative home demonstrations for you.

*Full details of test on request.

Russia Will Avoid Kyoto Conference

Unofficial Observer, However, to Be Sent; Chinese Question Feared.

Moscow, Sept. 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Russia will not take part in the discussions at the conference of Pacific relations at Kyoto, but a Russian "observer" will attend. Roland W. Boyden, former United States observer with the reparations commission; Jerome D. Greene, chairman of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and Edward Carter, head officer of the American contingent, were received by Foreign Commissar Litvinov. They invited him to send a representative.

Two years ago, when the Russians were not invited to the last conference, they protested, because they have tremendous interests on the Pacific. Now they are suspicious, because the Sino-Russian question is on the agenda, and though the conference is unofficial, they prefer not to have a representative discuss the matter.

Varied Experiences Are Lot Of Girl Who Fled Muirkirk

After 13 months of varied experiences in traveling over the country from one end to the other, Liley Rose Lee Smith, 16 years old, is being brought back to the National Girls' Training School at Muirkirk, Md., near the Capital, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Chicago, where the girl was apprehended.

The girl has practiced manicuring, rodeo riding, governing, waiting on the table and married life during her journeys, the Chicago dispatch said. She was arrested by Federal authorities and will be returned to Washington at once.

Thirteen months ago Liley walked away from the Government training school in the middle of an afternoon, officials of the school recalled last night. She was a trusty. Although of an adventurous disposition, she was obedient to the discipline of the school and could be relied on to follow instructions without being watched closely. Her flight was not discovered until some time later.

Liley was married to Henry Obermeyer two months ago in Jackson, Minn., adding one more name to the long list she already possessed. "But he was mean to me," she told Federal authorities, "and I left him."

Capt. Eaker and Aid Back at Bolling Field

Capt. Ira C. Eaker and Lieut. Bernard S. Thompson, whose recent attempt to break all existing refueling records failed after a series of mishaps, returned to Bolling Field yesterday. Capt. Eaker is stationed at Bolling, while Lieut. Thompson is on temporary duty at the local field, his home station being Kelly Field, Tex.

Both officers seemed to regard their unsuccessful flight with good humor. They alluded to their series of misfortunes, which included dropping a can of oil through a wing, catching on fire, and being forced down by a clogged gas line as "bad breaks." They did not indicate that they had any further record attempts in view.

Sudden need for extra help can be met by an ad in the classified columns of The Washington Post.

Large Still Seized Near New Orleans

Plant Similar to Bonded Distillery Operated Only Two Days.

St. James, La., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—One of the largest alcohol plants ever raided in Louisiana, patterned after a bonded distillery, was seized here by Federal prohibition agents from New Orleans today at New Sarpie, near here.

The still was one of 1,500-gallon capacity. It consisted of six 1,000-gallon vats, coils, and a 15-horsepower steam boiler. More than 5,000 gallons of fermenting mash were taken.

The outfit was new, and the Government men said it had been in use only about 48 hours.

Frank Valentino and a Negro, Emile Augrand, were arrested.

Radio Policy For Aircraft Announced

More Extensive Use by Itinerant and Transport Planes Now Expected in Interest of Safety. Program Is Stated.

Following the City of San Francisco disaster, the Federal Radio Commission has adopted a definite policy for the allocation of radio communication frequencies to air transport companies and itinerant planes to insure greater safety in aviation. The available frequencies, now permanently set aside, are expected to result in more extensive use of radio by aircraft.

Government regulations do not yet require that passenger planes carry radio equipment, but this requirement has been under discussion recently by aeronautical experts due to the rapid development of air lines in this country. Heretofore all communication facilities to airplanes have been granted only on a temporary basis.

The allocation program adopted by the commission was prepared by aeronautical experts working with engineers of the Army, Navy and Radio Commission at two conferences held at the suggestion of Commissioner William D. L. Starbuck.

The frequencies reserved for aviation are divided into three classes: (1) for use by aircraft stations on a chain or chains for communication purposes; (2) for distress calls and navigation service, and (3) experimental work. The licensed stations must provide adequate service without discrimination for all and any aircraft.

The order states that frequencies designated for aviation purposes must not be used for point-to-point service, provided that such service is available on wire lines. They may be thus utilized, however, "where the delay in the transmission of wire messages is such as to create a hazard or property and then solely for emergency messages and for meteorological service."

The aviation channels reserved for air transport companies have been divided into four chains—brown, blue, green and red. The air transport companies have them allotted to one or the other of these chains. Separate frequencies have been set aside for Pan-American Airways and Pan-American Grace Airways.

The channels assigned to coastal stations and ships may also be granted to aircraft only for purposes of calling the coastal stations during sea flights. In addition, calling, working, and compass frequencies are reserved for airplanes on oceanic flights desiring intermediate frequencies. Those wishing high frequencies will use those for maritime calling and working.

No aeronautical station will be licensed to use more than one kilowatt power on channels of 1,000 kilocycles and above. All aeronautical stations must maintain a watch on such frequencies and for such periods as the airways division of the Department of Commerce may designate.

That the policy is not inflexible is apparent in a provision that from time to time the aviation companies' rerpsentatives will confer with members of the commission and officials of the Army, Navy and Department of Commerce to the end "that the plan may be modified so as to conform with experience in the operation thereof and the developments in the arts of radio and aeronautics."

The order defines transport planes as "those commercially transporting persons and (or) property and operating regularly on fixed routes," and itinerant aircraft as "those other than transport or Government airplanes." An aeronautical station shall be understood as being capable of giving: (1) ground-to-plane communication; (2) point-to-point communication; and (3) distress, calling, and navigational service.

Besides the frequencies now set aside for use in aviation service, the commission reserved the frequencies 3136, 3142 and 3148 solely for this use.

"Upon proper application of any companies or agencies maintaining or proposing to maintain aeronautical stations," the order states, "the commission is satisfied that the particular applicant is qualified and that the issuance of the license or licenses in question would serve public interest, convenience or necessity, the frequencies will be designated solely for use by all of said stations comprising a continuous series, or chain, along a particular airway. The commission will recognize new or different chains from time to time and frequencies will be designated to them in accordance with this plan."

The allocations to the four chains are as follows: Brown, 5,600 day and 3,484 at night; blue, 3,070, 5,690, 3,460, and 3,015; green, 2,344 day and 1,624 at night; red 5,660 day and 3,142 at night.

The distress, calling and navigational frequencies will be assigned as follows: 278 kilocycles, calling and working frequency from all ground stations to itinerant airplanes (power not to exceed 10 watts); 333 kilocycles, international air calling frequency; 375 kilocycles, radio compass; 500 kilocycles, international calling and distress frequency for ships and aircraft over the seas; 3,106 kilocycles, national calling frequency for all transport and itinerant airplanes.

Senator to Talk Over Air Tonight

Watson to Discuss Tariff Legislation Over WRC. An Evening in Paris at 8; Wagner 10:15; Army Band 7:30 on WMAL.

Senator James Watson, of Indiana, Republican floor leader, will be heard from the studios of Station WRC at 9 o'clock this evening. He will discuss the tariff legislation now pending in Congress. This is the first of a series of discussions on matters of first importance to the Nation by internationally known authorities to be given over the National Broadcasting Company coast-to-coast system.

William F. Hard will deliver the second talk of the new series "Back of the News in Washington," at 6:45 o'clock from the local studios. This program is also sent to a large national network. George F. Hicks will introduce both Senator Watson and Mr. Hard.

Merle Johnston and his saxophone will be featured in a program suggestive of late summer mellowness during the broadcast of the Cities Service concert at 8 o'clock. "Festivities," a representative work from the musical contributions of Stanley, a young English composer, will be played by the concert orchestra. Victor Herbert's "Gems From Algeria," which is not heard as often as some of his other melodies, will also be played. Seletions by the Cavaliers, a male quartet, will intersperse the orchestral program.

"An Evening in Paris" returns to the air for a new series of entertainments at 8 o'clock. Among the selections are "Nuit d'Argentine," suggesting that the Argentines have "gone plantation" in rhythm, introduces the new Parisian four-beat tango. "Allo! Allo! Cherie!" is followed by "Ce N'est Qu'un Mannequin," the advanced French version of the "blues." Franz Lehar, composer of "The Merry Widow" has written a slow fox trot for his newest operetta, "Paganini," said to be a sensation in Europe. It is "Rien, Plus Rien n'Existe" and it will be included in the program. American dances, long favored abroad, will not be neglected.

Excerpts from five stirring operas by Wagner will comprise the program of slumber music which Ludwig Laurier and a string ensemble will broadcast at 10:15 o'clock. These are the overture to "Rienzi," Siegmund's "Liebesleid" from "Die Walkuere," selection from "The Flying Dutchman," prize song from "Die Meistersinger" and a selection from "Lohengrin."

Dolores Cassinelli, soprano, Julian Oliver, tenor of the National Grand Opera Company, and an orchestra under the direction of Ludwig Laurier comprise the group of artists who will be heard during the broadcast of the "Evening Stars" program at 10:30 o'clock. The presentation will be dedicated to Station WDAF, Kansas City, and at the request of that station Milton J. Cross will act as guest announcer.

The United States Army Band, directed by Capt. William J. Stannard, will be heard from WMAL at 7:30 o'clock. Popular dance numbers will again make up the program arranged for Bremer-Tully time.

Two dance orchestras will entertain between 10 and 11 o'clock, preceded by "In a Russian Village."

Fish stories will again be current on the wave length of WOL this evening when the Izaak Walton League presents its weekly feature, "Let's All Go Fishing," at 7 o'clock. This feature is under the direction of Chairman James Armour, of the league broadcast committee, and the condition of the water and the fishing prospects for the week end are interspersed with fish stories.

Donald Thomas, barytone, will be heard in a short recital from the station at 7:15 o'clock.

The new weekly feature, "The Family Market Basket," will be heard again this evening at 6:15 o'clock. Peggy Clarke, studio manager, presents the program in the form of a brief talk in which she reads a letter from "The WOL Market Man," who visits all the markets and tells what produce is available for the Saturday marketer and the range of prices which may be expected.

David Martin, barytone, will be featured from WJSV at 9:15 o'clock, singing "Because," "Sing a Little Love Song," "Bells of the Sea," "I Love a Lassie" and "Love's Old Sweet Song." The Gondoliers will be heard again at 9:30 o'clock. The Columbia Trio is scheduled for 9:45 o'clock. For the next few weeks this program will be under the direction of Fritz Malle, while Miss Katherine Crowley, the leader, makes an extended tour of Europe. She will visit the foreign radio stations in search of new music.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Something Wrong.

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I have a problem I would like you to help solve. I have been going with a man for about a year and have begun to think quite a great deal of him. But he has several ways about him I can not understand—for instance, he has a car and we quite frequently take my sister for a drive. When we come to her home she always thanks him for the ride but he never answers her. Now that is very embarrassing to me and makes me feel badly the rest of the evening—as I know it is not through ignorance.

He seems to be fairly well educated, yet so many times I have spoken to him and he does not answer. Sometimes, about five minutes later, he will answer. He has done that in company and no matter how nice a time we have that spoils it all for me, as I never was used to anything like that. I try to overlook it—but how can I?

He seems to care a lot for me, but when he does those things I think if he cared he would not act that way. Shall I tell him about it? Now tell me just what your opinion on this subject is. Do not spare either of us.

He is a business man and I tried to think that maybe when he does not answer his mind may be on his work. But I think it very discourteous, anyway. Tell me your opinion, as I will wait patiently for an answer.

H. A. M.

By all means ask the man why he is so abstracted. Even pressure of business cares does not ordinarily cause a man to sink practically into a coma. And the tendency to do so is not a very auspicious indication. If it is merely habit, then it would be kindness to help him break the habit—which, by the way, is one that grows.

If, on the other hand, some mental quirk or deficiency is the cause of this unquestionably peculiar behavior, it would be wise to discontinue an association that could mean little happiness and plenty of misery for you. A man practically unconscious of his surroundings could hardly be a satisfactory life companion regardless of the cause of his infirmity. So try to break through the habit, and if that fails, be resigned to the inevitable—and give up entirely. Marked irregularities in behavior are impossible to live with, so take the sane course of avoiding them.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Of course, an ensemble! Why not this green woolen coat, trimmed in black fur, with two-piece dress of georgette blouse and satin skirt? (Courtesy of Mag-Helly, Paris.)

SMART coats for next winter are going to favor the princess line rather strongly. Very "dressy" models will often be of rich fabrics, such as brocades and velvets, and will be of elaborate workmanship.

And while the princess silhouette will be the guiding-point of inspiration, we shall see it treated in a thousand and one new ways. These coat models will be intricately trimmed with bands of flat fur or with ruchings at collar and cuffs.

Fullness will be given these models in a number of ways, sometimes simply through skillful bias cutting but more often through carefully planned incrusted point, and through shirrings.

• • • •

We may also note for winter the probability of a decided departure in sleeves, which up to now have closely molded the shape of the arm.

In a word, balloon sleeves will make their appearance, both for coats and dresses. In many cases the dress will be of plain material and the sleeves printed in harmonizing colors.

The draped sleeve will also make its reappearance but in order to avoid a bunchy look the draping will be between elbow and wrist only.

And, speaking of draping, we might add that draped dresses and coats are commencing to make their appearance. Truly, the days of simple simplicity are over—for the time being!

Clever Fingers Contest.

Didn't you tell Mary just the other day over the phone how to make that cunning little gadget she wanted to know about? Write it down on paper, with funny looking illustrations to help us get the knack—and alors! maybe you've won the first prize, or the second prize or even one of the Clever Fingers Booklets that you'll be so pleased to own. Isn't this just the nicest, easiest contest you have ever entered? Hurry!

So little is really understood about color! We use it everywhere—in our clothing, in our home, in food, in amusements—yet we fail to appreciate its significance, fail to grasp the fact that correct color knowledge is a matter of study, not just a matter of luck or of talent.

In this week's illustrated leaflet we give you the simple fundamental rules of color knowledge which any one can know and understand, should know and understand. Send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it.

A light green woolen fabric coat trimmed with flat black fur, worn with a light green georgette blouse and matching satin skirt, has every reason to be successful if it is a Mag-Helly ensemble. For there are other things that make it lovely!

You should look in The Sunday Post each week for the weekly Dare fashion letter. It's well worth while.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 13 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2:20 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:45 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m.

An inharmonious atmosphere will be conduced by the astrological influence in force on this date. Jealous contention may arise with your close associates, and you are advised to "watch your step." Chance adventures should not be attempted at this time.

Children born on this September 13 will have well-balanced natures. They will be cool-headed, deliberate in their action and careful in their decision. They will listen to reason, but will not be easily influenced against their better judgment.

You are very decisive and outspoken in your speech, and you are often misjudged in your criticism and make enemies. It seems very difficult for you to withhold from talking when something is on your mind, although experience must have shown you that it is sometimes best to reserve your thoughts to yourself. Your sharp criticism of every one else's efforts is a weakness—and a habit—you do not mean to hurt or injure. Silence is a grand substitute for censure. You are executive, fearless and determined in all you undertake. You are usually so positive in your views that all the preaching in the world will not change them one iota. Your mind is intensely quick, and you are ready with an answer to a question or the solution to a problem before the average person has collected his thoughts.

Those of your type are the great workers of the earth, and you seem never to tire yourself out.

Your sense of honor is very keen, and you resent all kinds of deception. You must speak the truth, even when such action is seemingly against your own interest. Women born on this date make very devoted wives and are extremely home loving. They make unselfish mothers.

Successful people born September 13:
William Henry Reinhart, sculptor.
Alice B. Haven, author.
Charles Wachsmuth, scientist.
Anna M. Lea, artist.
Maud B. Booth, philanthropist.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

SEPTEMBER 13.

CLARA JOSEPHINE WIECK SCHUMANN, the celebrated German pianist and wife of the famous composer, Robert Schumann, was born this day, 1819.

Mrs. Schumann was the first pianist to bring Chopin's work to the notice of the public. Besides being a noted pianist, she was a gifted teacher and composer. Some 40 works came from her own pen.

Alice Bradley Haven, whose juvenile stories made her one of the most popular writers of her day with American children, was born this day, 1828.

Other noted women born this day include Marie Baroness von Ebner-Eschenbach, Austrian author, 1830, and Ida Simonton, American lecturer and traveler.

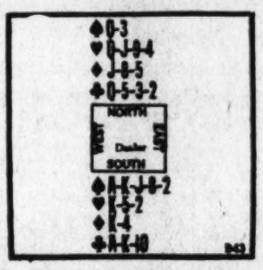
PARTNERS WHO HAVE SADDENED MY LIFE.



MY partner (South) dealt and bid three No Trumps. It will be noted that he had a count of 21 and every suit stopped, making his No Trump a sounder declaration than Spades would have been. I was just one under the requisite 9 count for jumping my partner's three to four, so I passed; and you may be sure that subsequently I was delighted that I had not permitted myself to be too optomistic and jump without the full strength needed.

In the play West led the Four of Spades. My partner played the Trey from my hand, East played the Seven, and my partner won with the Eight. We were now sure of five Spade tricks, two Hearts and three Clubs, with a reasonable chance of a third Heart and a fourth Club. Having nothing to fear from the Diamond suit if the adversaries led it, but knowing that he might not take a trick in it if he led it himself, my partner started by leading a small Heart to trick 2, which my hand won. He returned a heart and won with the King in his closed hand. Then, instead of making sure of his ten tricks and game by shifting to his Spades and Clubs, he led a third Heart, which found East with a four-chette (Ace-Ten), and he cashed two Hearts.

Having to discard from the South hand on the last Heart trick, my partner took it for granted that the adversaries would next lead a Spade instead of opening Diamonds and made the fatal mistake of discarding his Four of Diamonds; but West led a Diamond and our adversaries took the next five tricks, we taking only six on a hand which contained a sure ten. It happened that we were vulnerable, and a little figuring showed that my partner had thrown away 700 for rubber and 150 plus 50 for tricks, besides subjecting us to a 500 penalty.

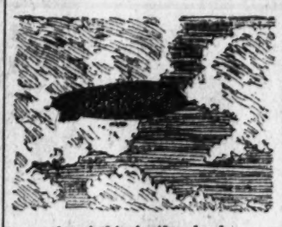
Stories of Invention.

V. THE AIRSHIP

THE voyages of the Bremen over land and sea have brought the thoughts of people to the likelihood of much travel in airships. Of course there will be accidents and deaths if airships become common carriers; but there are also airplane accidents—and how about train wrecks and auto smash-ups? My belief is that within twenty years, air travel will be safer than auto travel.



An airship in the clouds.

The story of the airship goes back to the invention of the balloon. A century and a half ago, two Frenchmen designed a balloon which was filled with hot air and which carried passengers on a trip high above Paris.

In later years, balloon trips became common. They proved fairly safe, but the balloonists had a hard time going where they wanted to go. Winds blew the balloons here and there—the airmen had to trust to luck as to where they would land.

A German inventor, Count Zeppelin, at length decided to try to make a balloon which would go in the direction desired. He built a balloon in the shape of a cigar—or we might say like a long sausage. This was filled with light gas.

Zeppelin's first airship was wrecked, and a dozen others which he built were wrecked; but he kept improving his invention.

By means of propellers driven by motors, the airships were pushed forward even against the wind.

Zeppelin died in 1917, but his work has gone forward. German airships—often called "Zeppelins" have crossed the Atlantic time and again, and you remember the splendid trip which the Graf Zeppelin made across the Pacific last month. It was the fastest trip ever made from Japan to the United States, and the first such trip through the air.

Let time run on a little while longer, and we shall all be using the air as a means of getting from one place to another. The airship will doubtless have its place alongside the airplane for passenger travel; and it may even be that the airplane will take second place.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TREATING AN INGROWN NAIL.

IN a symposium on minor surgical procedures, which recently appeared in the American Journal of Surgery, Dr. H. F. Graham gave some simple advice about ingrowing toenails.

Since pinching the toes, particularly at the front end, is the principal cause of ingrowing nails, he recommends that broad toed shoes be worn. Next to sufficient breadth at the front comes sufficient length. He advises shoes with a soft, high toecap and straight last and a low heel.

To cure ingrowing toenails several methods are recommended. Chiropodists use an emery wheel to grind the top of the nail. A thin nail does not dig much into the flesh. Some golf players with a tendency toward ingrowing nails, have their toenails ground thin in preparation for hard games. Foote recommends pushing a thin pladget of cotton under the ingrowing corner. He soaks the cotton in a 2 per cent solution of nitrate of silver.

Instead of cotton Crane pushes under the nail corner a triangular piece of dentist's base plate, gutta percha. This is softened by heat before being used.

Dr. Graham tells of a spring with a hook used to lift the ingrowing corner. Some cases require operation.

Dr. G. L. Richards discusses foreign bodies in the ears and nose. A live bug in the ear, and occasionally in the nose, may call for emergency treatment. The bug should be killed and, in that way, the case taken out of the emergency class. A few drops of chloroform will kill the insect in short order. A few drops of oil generally suffices when chloroform is not available. A dead insect can be left to be removed under a good light and with proper instruments.

Impacted wax in the ear: Add a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda to a fingerbowl of water. Inject a few drops of this into the ear two or three times a day. Leave it as long as possible. After two days of this treatment the softened wax can be readily removed with a paper clip or other suitable instrument. Some use per-

If a person, and particularly a child, whose hearing was previously good suddenly becomes deaf in one ear, a foreign body should be suspected. If the external ear is lifted upward and a good light falls in the canal, it may be possible to see the foreign body. A foreign body in the ear is not an emergency calling for prompt action. If removal with a hairpin or paper clip is not easily done the ear should be left alone. The foreign body is better removed by some one properly equipped with lights, forceps and snares.

Foreign bodies in nose: A persisting discharge, especially an offensive discharge, from one side of the nose of a child always causes a suspicion of foreign body. The Chicago police first-aid rules say that a foregin body can sometimes be blown out or squeezed out. Sneezing can be induced by tickling the nose or causing salicylic powder or snuff to be blown into the nose.

Foreign body in the nose is not an emergency matter. If it is not easily removed, treatment should wait on good lights and proper instruments.

NEW SELLING WAVE HITS STOCK PRICES

Sharp Downturn Follows an Early Rise as Market Becomes Nervous.

BROKERS' LOANS SOAR

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A black fog of pessimism crept into important speculative circles today, and leading shares were heavily liquidated on the stock market. Scores of stocks closed from 3 to 15 points lower. Selling was in such volume that the day's total transactions again crossed the 5,000,000-share mark.

The heaviness of the market was generally attributed to the uncertainties of the credit situation. It has been rumored about Wall street that administration circles in Washington regard the rapid increases in brokers' loans during the last several weeks with some [illegible]pansion.

The weekly meeting of the New York Federal Reserve Bank this afternoon caused considerable nervousness. It was even rumored that the rediscount rate would again be increased. This rumor gained little credence in banking circles, and proved to be unfounded, but the Federal Reserve weekly brokerage loan compilation, published after the close of the market, was unexpectedly disappointing.

While the large amount of new investment trust financing, including that of Blue Ridge Corporation, during the last week, had dashed hopes of any substantial decline, despite the heavy liquidation on the market during the last few days, most estimates had indicated a small reduction.

Increase Proves Blow.

The increase of $120,000,000 was certainly a blow. Some traders professed to see in this that investment trusts, which generally hold stocks outright rather than on margin, had been large sellers.

A less gloomy aspect of the loan compilation was the disclosure that New York banks, which had been forced to increase their Federal Reserve borrowings to tide the market over the turn of the month, had been able to call $86,000,000 and pay off much of their borrowings. Corporations and individuals were again financing the market, having increased the loans for "others" $149,600,000. Out-of-town banks increased theirs by $57,000,000.

The reserve condition statements showed that holdings of acceptances bought in the open market had been increased about $40,000,000, to a total slightly larger than that for the like period of last year. This, and an increase of about $10,000,000 in Government securities, however, were more than offset by a decline of about $74,000,000 in rediscounting, and the reserve ratio improved slightly.

Brief Bullish Demonstration.

The Bank of England again made no change in its discount rate, and this influenced a brief bullish demonstration during the morning. Business news was largely favorable, including another new high record for car loadings in the last week of August. August copper statistics were not altogether pleasing, however, showing that while production was curtailed, stocks increased a little. It was reported that the recent effort to increase the price red metal to 18¼ cents a pound had been abandoned.

Lack of support for such leaders as U. S. Steel was particularly discouraging. Steel common sold off about 7 points, and rallied only 1½ points from its low. Such issues as American Can, American Telephone, Anaconda, American Water Works, Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, General Electric and Norfolk & Western lost from 3 to 6 points. Westinghouse tumbled about 12, but reduced this loss to 8 at the close. Johns Manville lost 7 points, Commercial Solvents 8½ and Auburn Auto 15.

The market opened with a burst of strength and pools reminded us of the volatile issues in violent fashion as the market began to sag in an effort to stay the tide. American Machine & Foundry rose about 21 points, two-thirds of which was later lost. American Type Foundry was sent up 9 points, but it closed 6 lower. Case Threshing rose 12, but tumbled 18 from its top.

Radio Is Heavily Bought.

Radio was heavily bought for a time, rising to a new high for the present stock at 114¾, but it closed at 108½, off more than a point.

Heavy trading developed in the oils, but Standard of New Jersey encountered realizing on its sharp advance of yesterday, closing off a couple of points. Standard of New York reached a new peak in a small gain, but then reacted. Sun Oil rose 4 points to a new top, but closed at only a point.

Although the utilities were generally heavy, Columbia Gas moved against the trend, rising 5 points to a new high record, and closing near the top. Philadelphia Co. jumped 11 points to a new peak and held its gain.

Commodities were irregular. Corn lost about a cent a bushel, but wheat was firm on better foreign demand. Cotton futures fluctuated widely, but closed a little higher.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Sterling Cables sagged to their low level of the year, $4.84½, and French Francs and Spanish Pesetas were under pressure. Other continental currencies, however, were generally firm.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Early advances in the cotton market were followed by sharp midday reactions today, but prices firmed up again later on trade buying and covering. After selling up to 19.05, December broke to 18.80 or fully a cent below the high level of bureau day, but evidently attracted an increased demand at that figure and closed at 18.94. The general market closed firm at net advances of 2 to 8 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 8 points and after rather irregular early fluctuations, prices sold up on covering or rebuying by recent sellers who were probably influenced by reports of an increased trade demand and comparatively light offerings after early selling had been absorbed.

Relatively steady Liverpool cables encouraged the buying and before the end of the morning active months sold 13 to 16 points above yesterday's closing quotations with October advancing to 18.69 and March to 19.26. The demand then tapered off and the market eased during the middle of the day. The bulges seemed to bring in more Southern selling, while there was some liquidation switching out of October to later deliveries in preparation for the possibility of notices toward the end of the month.

Offerings were not particularly heavy or aggressive, but they were sufficient to send prices down to 18.45 toward October and 19.02 for March, or about 9 to 12 points lower on the more active months. If anything, less hedging was in evidence than anticipated by some of the early sellers, and the market firmed up again late in the afternoon on covering of re-buying.

Closing quotations showed rallies of about 14 points from the lowest. There was not much comment on the weather news and while Southern hedging was reported on the declines during the middle of the day, much of the pressure was attributed to liquidation combined with some local and Wall street selling.

Liverpool cables reported that hedge selling in that market had been taken by continental covering and trade calling and that there was a fair inquiry for cotton cloths in Manchester, although many offers were unworkable.

Port receipts today, 42,183. United States port stocks, 820,234. Exports, 12,049, making 489,071 so far this season.

TILDEN RALLIES TO BEAT VAN RYN IN TENNIS EPIC

Macks Within 3 Games of Pennant

Bing Miller Is Hero; Walberg Pounded Out in Sixth.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Athletics advanced to within three games of pennant certainty this afternoon by taking their second straight from the Chicago White Sox in an eight-inning rally by 4-3.

Blackburne's minions wiped out an early Mack lead when they pounded Rube Walberg out of the box while scoring two runs in the sixth, but in the eighth Bing Miller touched Al Thomas for a single, stole second and scored the winning run on Joe Boley's scratch single through short.

Rommel pitched a fine brand of relief ball in blanking the White Sox after going to Walberg's assistance in the sixth. The victory was the eleventh for the Athletics in twenty games with Chicago, assuring the champions at least an even break in the season's series.

Miller Halts Nats With 7 Hits

Indians Triumph, 5-1, Assaulting Thomas in 5th Inning.

Bunch All Runs in One Frame After Early Threats.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

LEFTY WALTER MILLER simply can not be kept down by the Nationals. He has been poison to them all season, but the Nationals thought they had broken his spell when they pounded him off the peak in Cleveland recently. They know better now after yesterday's test, in which Miller granted but seven well-scattered singles, several of which were of the scratch variety, and gained a 5 to 1 victory, sending the Nats back to sixth place in the race in view of a Detroit triumph in Boston.

Myles Thomas started on the hill for the Nationals and, although the Indians knocked loudly at the door in the first three frames, which netted them two doubles, two singles, three bases on balls and a stolen base, they scored nary a run. Thomas pitched out of a particularly tight hole in the third, which saw Averill open with a single and Fonseca follow with a double. Then Falk popped to Myer, J. Sewell fouled to Spencer, and Hodap grounded to Hayes.

Spencer's Error Aids Winners 'n Fifth.

When this great exhibition of pinch-pitching was followed by a three-up and three-down fourth inning, it looked as though Thomas had finally gotten his bearings, but this proved to be simply the lull before a storm, for the visitors scored all of their runs in the next frame. Only one was earned, however, under scoring rules, for the other four were made after Roy Spencer's excusable error at the plate which would have been the third out. Fonseca spiked the Nats' catcher sliding home, knocking the ball out of his hand after having been called out.

Spencer was forced to retire because the nail on his right thumb was partially torn off and the hits which gave the Tribe their winning margin followed. Spencer was not the only one forced to retire, for Manager Peckinpaugh had been ordered from the field in the fourth for putting up a long argument on a foolish protest that Joe Cronin, at bat, had interfered with Catcher Luke Sewell as Buddy Myer stole second.

After the fifth, it was a rather listless game, for Miller continued pitching brilliantly and gave the Nats no chance to cut down the big lead under which he was working. In the seventh they managed to escape a shutout, but even then they received some help. West led off with a scratch hit and took second when Miller pegged past Fonseca. He was unable to advance on Ruel's safety to Tavener in deep short, but managed to complete the circuit in relays on Hayes' and Pinch-hitter Gooch's infield outs. The only other inning in which the Nats had more than one man on the runways was the first, when Judge singled and Goslin coaxed the only pass which Miller issued. Both were left.

Averill Starts Rally In Seventh

After blowing opportunities in the first three sessions, which saw a total of seven left on bases, the Indians got busy in the fifth to put the game on ice. With one out, Averill singled and advanced on Fonseca's one-baser. Both were held while Judge was gobbling up Falk's roller, but Joe Sewell then singled Averill home. Fonseca started to follow suit and Goslin's good throw nailed him, but he was safe when he spiked the ball out of Spencer's hands. Then followed doubles by Hodapp and L. Sewell and Miller's single, on which the pitcher tried to take two bases, only to become a victim of Sam West's throwing arm.

To all intents and purposes the game ended then and there, for neither team threatened thereafter, despite the fact that Irving Hadley, starting the sixth, granted a single and triple in this frame. The blows did no good, however, because Jamieson, who led off with a single, died stealing as Tavener fanned.

BOAT RECORD MISSED BY FRACTION

VENICE, Italy, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Cutting through the water at a speed of 92.8 miles an hour, Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, of England, fell three-tenths of a second short of equaling Gar Wood's world's speedboat record, when he sent his Miss England over the rectangular course here today in the opening run of Crown Prince Humbert's cup.

His effort, however, to lower the American's record may have proved disastrous for future trials as the bottom of Miss England was split when she ran through the wake set up by other boats while running at more than 90 miles an hour. Maj. Segrave said it would be necessary to replace the entire bottom of the boat but that he believed it would be ready by Saturday for another trial at the world's record.

Crash With Photographers Narrowly Missed.

Several times Segrave narrowly avoided accidents when other craft crossed the course, once missing a photographers' boat by a few feet. The English speedboat king said he could have bettered the record had the course been completely clear.

Miss America V, which will be driven by Phil Wood, brother of the record holder, stated he would send the American boat over the course later in the day. Miss America VII, Gar Wood's fastest boat, is expected to be ready for a shot at the record Saturday.

Gar Wood's Baby Gar, now owned by Count Beistegui, of Spain, was forced to withdraw from the race for the Lloyd Sabaudo Cup race. The event was won by the Italian boat Cabac, of Marini Baglietto. The Cabac also won the second day's race for the grand prize of Venice cup. The third day's race will be run Sunday.

Charest in Semifinals Of U. S. Veterans Play

Special to The Washington Post.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Surviving the quarter-final round here today by defeating S. J. Adams, jr., of Port Washington, N. Y., Clarence M. Charest, District singles champion, moved into the semifinal round of play in the National Veterans singles championships. The one-armed ace from Washington won in straight sets today, 6—3, 6—1.

His opponent in the semifinals tomorrow will be J. B. Adou, jr., of Dallas, Tex., who had a hard battle today before eliminating P. Martin, of Scarsdale, N. Y., 11—9, 4—6, 10—8.

H. H. Bassford, the defending champion, emerged from his semifinal test today with a well-earned 6—4, 6—3 triumph over Irving Wright. Bassford will meet the winner of the Charest-Adou match for the championship.

11 Speed Races on Program Of Regatta Starting Today

ELEVEN events are carded each day of the President Cup Regatta, which opens on the Potomac, off Hains Point, this afternoon. The first heat of the President's Cup race will feature the program today, although the other ten events in the smaller craft classes promise spirited competition.

The events today will start at 1:10 o'clock, when the stock runabouts not over 100-horsepower will compete in a 5-mile event. The first heat of the President's Cup race will start at 3:30 o'clock.

The second and final heats of the President's Cup race and the Secretary of the Navy Cup race will be the top attractions tomorrow. Each heat of the feature event will be over a 15-mile route and the Secretary of Navy Cup race will be 8 laps, a distance of 20 miles. The race course has been marked in the main channel off Hains Point from below the railroad bridge to a buoy in midstream at the end of the point. The schedule of events follows:

TODAY.

1. 1:10—Stock runabouts not over 100 h. p.: 2 laps, 5 miles.
2. 1:30—Class B outboard division; first heat, 2 laps, 5 miles.

LEARY BUOYS G. U. GRID HOPES

Little Elated at Work of Quarter Back Aspirant.

By JACK ESPEY
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—The woe-be gone expression of Lou Little, prompted by the miserable performance of his Georgetown gridmen against Temple's team at Atlantic City yesterday, changed to one resembling joy today. Lou needed some sort of a pleasant dose and got it from a most unexpected source, which made it all the more enjoyable.

Ed Leary, 19-year-old junior, of Naugatuck, Conn., third scoring quarter back last year, bobbed up as the doctor who effected the change in the doleful Little countenance. Where others thus far have failed to impress in the quarter back position left vacant by the graduation of the brainy Ralph Duplin, 1928 field general, young Mr. Leary succeeded today. Taking the signal-barking role toward the close of this afternoon's three-hour practice on the training field here, Leary directed the team with a display of heady play selections and a fiery spirit which urged his teammates on to greater efforts.

In addition, he demonstrated marked prowess in open field running and forward passing, which, coupled with his previously known kicking ability, clearly indicated that he is to be figured as a real triple threat back field man.

Leary Holding Edge For Berth.

It was the first time since the Hilltop pigskin chasers opened practice on September 3 that the quarter back duties were handled in a manner anywhere approaching the standard satisfactory to Head Coach Little and his assistants. Needless to say, Leary today got a tight hold on the position and unless he gave a flash-in-the-pan exhibition it will require a great deal of improvement on the part of the other aspirants to sidetrack him from the permanent assignment.

Adding lustre to his performance was the fact that Leary handled a team composed mostly of green material. Excepting Johnny Scalzi, who played quarter back in the last three games of 1928, this outfit did not number a single man with previous varsity experience. Bob Brennan and Hal Meenan were the ends; Ed Katalinas and Maurice Dubofsky, tackles; George Homiak and Charley Brickman, guards; Joe Zimoski, center;

Griffith Stops Haymann in 4 Rounds

Sioux City Lad Gives Away 8 Lbs. and Wins From Start.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Tuffy Griffith, two-fisted slugger from Sioux City, Iowa, did his bit toward checking the current foreign menace in American heavyweight circles tonight by stopping Dr. Ludwig Haymann, of Germany, in the fourth round of their 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden. The end came after 2 minutes and 35 seconds of fighting in the fourth round.

Haymann, who holds the heavyweight title of Germany, never had a chance with the hard-hitting Griffith. Tuffy floored his man for a nine count in the first minute of the fourth round. Haymann got up and went right back down. Up he came again to take another crushing right flush on the chin, and the referee called a halt.

Griffith gave away 15 pounds to his foreign opponent. He weighed 184 to Haymann's 199.

The Sioux City heavyweight tore into Haymann at the opening gong and never ceased firing until he had him down and out. Haymann caught several hard rights in the very first round, and from then on was on the run and did not land a single telling blow.

Griffith Shifts Attack In Third Round.

It was a crushing defeat for Haymann who had begun his American invasion with two impressive knockouts. And it was a well-earned victory for the Iowa clouter who was knocked out by Jimmy Braddock in his first New York bout last winter.

Griffith flashed a two-fisted attack that simply bewildered Haymann. Tuffy worked his right for the first two rounds and then shifted to a left hook in the third session.

When the fourth round opened, Haymann came out looking for some more of the same and ran into a right that planted him on his back in the middle of the ring. From then on it made no difference. Haymann was finished and it was just a matter of waiting for the finish.

Maloney and Emanuel Matched in Semifinal

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Madison Square Garden Corporation tonight announced the supporting card for the Tommy Loughran-Jack Sharkey 15-round heavyweight bout at the Yankee Stadium on September 26.

Jim Maloney, of Boston, will meet Armand Emanuel, of the Pacific Coast, in the semifinal of 10 rounds. Another bout of the same distance will bring together Tom Heeney, Gene Tunney's victim of last summer, and George Hoffman, the former amateur.

Phils Defeat Cubs, 7-1; Home Run Leaders Tied

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Chicago lost a 7—1 decision to Philadelphia today but moved nearer the National League pennant as New York beat Pittsburgh by 8—5. Three more victories will clinch the flag.

Claude Willoughby hurled great ball to check the Cubs. He allowed seven hits, five of which came in the last three innings after he had a big lead.

Guy Bush, ace of the Cubs' staff, was driven from the mound in the seventh and Cvengros and Carlson finished. Bush gave out eight bases on balls and was touched for ten hits. It was Bush's fourth defeat.

Hack Wilson and Chuck Klein kept up their home-run batting—each got one and remained tied for the league lead, now with 39 apiece.

Hurst also connected for the circuit. A crowd of 10,000 watched the battle despite threatening weather.

"BIG BILL" TRIUMPHS TO GAIN SEMIFINALS; TO MEET DOEG TODAY

"BIG BILL" TILDEN.

Mercur Eliminates Allison; Williams Bows to Hunter.

By TED VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—For a few tense moments this afternoon Big Bill Tilden, gray of face, dripping with perspiration, and obviously worried, stood face to face with defeat in the quarter final round of the national single championship tournament, on the winning which he has set his heart.

Worn from chasing the well-placed shots of young Johnny Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., Tilden found himself trailing at two games to five in the third set after having won in the first set at 7—5 and lost the second at 2—6, as the former Princeton tennis captain drove home his earnest challenge.

Then with the fighting heart of the great champion he always has been, Big Bill rose to the occasion, brought his wavering arm under rigid control, took the set at 9—7, then went on to outplay and finally master his youthful adversary by scores of 7—5, 2—6, 9—7, 6—2.

Big Bill to Face Doeg, Austin's Conqueror.

Another formidable young American challenger must be met and beaten tomorrow if Tilden is to enter the final round of play for the title. Johnny Doeg, young giant from Stanford University, crushed Henry Wilfred "Bunny" Austin, of England, by 6—4, 6—4, 6—3, in another of the quarter finals. In the lower half Fritz Mercur, the polished tennis product of Lehigh University, came through at 8—6, 10—8, 6—4, against Wilmer Allison, the hard fighting Texan. Tilden's friend, Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, N. Y., downed Richard N. Williams 2d, of Philadelphia, the old former champion, in a third straight set engagement, 6—0, 6—3, 6—4.

A gallery of 7,000 watched every move in the epic battle between Tilden and Van Ryn. They saw Big Bill start impressively, not even deigning to remove his sweater, and roll up a lead of 5-1 in games before Van Ryn overcame his nervousness and made it 5-all with a string of four impressive games.

Tilden Outsteadied In Second Test.

From there until the intermission that followed the third set the pace was hot and the match in doubt. Tilden, who is never so dangerous as when pressed, pulled out the set, but the effort told and Van Ryn, outsteadying Big Bill in many of the long deep-court interchanges or finishing off the rallies with a sharp volley or a crisp sideline drive, went to 4-1 and 5-2 in the second set, then captured it at 6-2 with a break through Tilden's cannonball delivery at love.

The climax of the match came in the third set when Tilden, trailing at 2-5, regained his control, took three games in a row and finally nosed out Van Ryn for a 2-1 lead in sets at the intermission.

Swagger and nonchalance, perhaps feigned, helped Tilden carry the deciding set. He came out smoking a cigarette and kept his sweater on for the first two games. Van Ryn, a game fighter, evened matters and in the fifth game Tilden received a "break" in the shape of a high drive which the lineman started to call out, but decided was good. It made the game for Tilden and a break through Van Ryn's service. The ball looked out to many who saw it, including Tilden, apparently. From that stage on Van Ryn was able to take only six more points.

Yanks Turn on Browns After 5 Defeats in Row

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Yankees today conquered the jinx which followed them in five successive games against the Browns, defeating the St. Louisans in the second engagement of the current series by 5 to 2.

Roy Sherid was wild but well supported. Plays by Combs and Koenig, the shortstop, started three double plays. Combs snared Schulte's liner with three on in the fifth, drove in two runs and scored another. Lazzeri hit a home run and a double.

Giants Down Pirates For Third Straight, 8-5

Pittsburgh, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—The Giants made it three straight over the Pirates this afternoon by winning a free-hitting game, 8 to 5. The victory cut the gap between second and third place to three and one-half games.

Melvin Ott drove out his thirty-eighth homer of the season. Fred Leach also hit for the circuit. The drive of the latter gave the Giants a two-run lead in the first inning. Fitzsimmons worked the entire game for the Giants.

SKIRMISHER BEATS GATE, WINS MARLBORO FEATURE

Field Is Left At Post by Gelding

O'Malley Scores With The Code in Easy Fashion in 4th.

By CHARLES A. WATSON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

MARLBORO RACE TRACK, Sept 12.—Skirmisher, 8 - year - old gelded son of Theo Cook, veteran of many hard-fought battles on the turf, gained a hollow victory in the main attraction at Marlboro today when he beat the gate by eight lengths to win as he pleased over the 6½-furlong journey.

The consistent sprinter, with Jockey J. Jones in the saddle, and sporting the colors of J. C. Bennet, was the only horse in the field of six ready when Starter Welter sprang the gate. He made use of the great advantage and romped home in front of Five Oaks and Domineer, which chased the winner in a futile effort to gain a contending position.

Domineer was closest in pursuit for the better part of the trip, but tired badly in the stretch run and gave way to Five Oaks, who looked like the winner had she broken with the top one.

Smock Interfered With Hat Brush, Claim

Jockey Floyd Smock was set down for the meeting for his ride on Evelyn Sawyer.

Evelyn Sawyer and Hat Brush were absolutely last, but the stewards took action when they declared Smock interfered with Hat Brush. It was a severe penalty as both horses never had a chance for victory.

Another banner crowd jammed Jim O'Hara's popular merry - go - round track. The day brought about the defeat of many favorites, with result liberal prices were recorded in several of the events.

Jockey Smock and Billy Bozo proved the winning combination in the first event when they flashed to the front at the rise of the gate and were never headed. Sun Lad and Merry Mack scampered home behind the winner, which paid 7 to 1.

Secrecy, running for the C. Bild interests, awoke from her recent slumber and carried off top honors in the second affair, defeating Tillie and High and Dry. Uncle Hood, an odds-on favorite, finished on three legs far behind the leaders.

J. Y. Christmas sent Appellate back today and the Dick Finnell gelding scored his second consecutive victory in as many days. Jockey R. Baker sent Appellate to the front like a flash and he won easily over Domesticated and Charmaine.

The Code Scores After Topsy S. Wilts

The Code, a McLean cast-off, won the fourth number handily through the efforts of Jockey J. O'Malley, who had the son of The Porter off flying and triumphed going away, with Stylish Mack and Who Knows Me chasing him under the wire. Topsy S. was shipped down from the "Graw" this morning for a killing in this race, but after leading in the early stages chucked the race up in the final drive.

Royal Spring, neglected in the wagering, scored in the 1 1-16 miles feature of the sixth event under a well-judged ride by Jockey R. Hilley. Nancy Byrd, the favorite, finished second, followed by Miss Sand. Hilley, on Royal Spring, almost sent Nancy Byrd to her knees rounding the first turn when he bore over sharply on the favorite, but the stewards took no action in the matter.

Mrs. B. Harris sent Battle Shot postward in the final race in fine fettle, and the veteran mare raced evenly ahead of the field to gain the decision from Slow Poke and Star Falcon.

Roads leading from the track were jammed with motor cars tonight and it was with much difficulty the Maryland State police untangled the mass.

BRIDEGROOM broke well, was held in a pocket to the top of the stretch, where the field went a bit wide and BRIDEGROOM then rushed through and went to the front to win galloping. CORNELIUS was pinched back in the first quarter mile, came to outside and outgamed GREEDY for the place. Latter had plenty of speed for six furlongs, then tired. BYE AND BYE had no mishaps. ABINGTON, well up for five furlongs, quit.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Steeplechase handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:57. Off at 2:57½. Winner, Dorwood Stable's ch. h. EIDER was rated in front, appeared beaten coming to last jump, but came again and was up to win. LEDIGARD moved up very fast in last half mile, led over the last fence, but weakened in last twenty yards. THE ACE II was pinched back and never recovered. CRUMPLER had no mishaps. DEVILKIN fell at the water jump the first turn of the field.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs (Widener course). Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:29. Off at 3:27. Winner, W. Ziegler, jr.'s ch. c. (2), by Runatell—Sisaga. Trained by W. J. Speirs. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 1:11.

HERODIONES rated along in closest pursuit of the early pace, took command when GOLD CLOUD tired and, continuing well under energetic handling, just lasted. LAUNDRYMAN, slightly outpaced early, closed fast through the stretch. BROWN BRUTUS, shut off repeatedly during the early stages, came to the extreme outside entering the stretch and finished well. MACHETE tired.

V. M. I. REPORTS MARKED FOOTBALL PROGRESS

Two Elevens Tentatively Selected

Team Lighter Than Usual But Exceptionally Fast.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 12.—The Virginia Military Institute football sessions now show 75 candidates in uniform on Alumni Field. Four full teams ran signals today, and from now on the Cadet coaches can count on working with a squad of from 50 to 60.

Careful conditioning last week rounded Coach Bill Raftery's gridders into such good preseason shape that scrimmages are planned for the end of this week. The "A" and "B" elevens have been tentatively selected, but almost daily changes are expected until after the opening game with Hampden-Sidney, on September 21. The eleven lettermen who compose the provisional first team have just two weeks to prove to the coaches that the first guess at a line-up was a good one.

The remarkable thing about V. M. I.'s tentative first team is not that every man is a monogram wearer, but that every one is a member of the first (or senior) class.

Present Back Field Light But Fast.

Capt. Al Hawkins and his mates will be playing together for the fourth year theoretically, but Charlie Holtzclaw and Johnnie Biggs in the back field, and Jo Moody at end did not start in the majority of the games last year.

Hawkins, quarter back; Biggs and Holtzclaw, half backs, and Bernard McCray, full back, make up the light but fast back field Raftery is experimenting with at present. The line is also one of the lightest V. M. I. has had in years, with Virgil Grow at center, Bill Haase and Phil Willard at guards, Aubrey Grow and Louis Chadwick in the tackles, and Tommie Scott and Jo Moody guarding the flanks.

In the blocking and charging workouts held thus far, Chadwick and the Grow brothers have impressed Line Coaches Hess and Binish as sure starters at center and both tackles. Aubrey and Virgil Grow seem primed for a star brother act this season, and Stag Binish, himself a star tackle at Wisconsin for three years, regards Chadwick as far above average.

Rosequist Changes Mind Will Enter Ohio State U.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Ted Rosequist, alleged by Coach Ralph Vince, of John Carroll University, to have received an offer to play football at Ohio State University, probably will enroll at the State school this month, he said today.

Rosequist reversed his statement of late yesterday in which he said he expected to return to Carroll, where he was an outstanding candidate for tackle. His announcement that he intended to enter Ohio State came after both he and Hall Ellis, Ohio State senior, denied charges that he had been offered a job and board, room, and tuition free to leave Carroll. Vince had declared Ellis made the offer to Rosequist.

The tackle said he wants to be a football coach and does not feel he can get the proper experience at Carroll.

Coach Sam Willaman, of Ohio State, was reported today as saying that the publicity given Vince's charges would in no way act as a barrier to Rosequist's entering the Columbus school.

KU KLUX KLAN TO PLAY.

The Ku Klux Klan Nine will clash with the St. Elizabeths Team on the latter's diamond, Saturday, at 3:30.

BUSMEN TO PLAY HILLTOP.

The A. B. & W. Busmen will meet the Hilltop A. C. Sunday on its Arlington diamond at 2:30. Wormsley, a southpaw, has been chosen to start against the Hilltops who have their ace, Wesley, ready to go. Wesley has pitched 25 scoreless innings this season, and promises to be troublesome for the Busmen.

Tiger Rookie Defeats Red Sox in 1st Start

Boston, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Arthur Herring, 23-year-old right-hander from Oklahoma City, signalized his major-league debut here today by pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 2-to-1 victory over the Red Sox. Herring held the local club to eight well-scattered blows.

Ed Morris, Red Sox ace, pitched well enough to win most games. What proved to be the winning runs were scored off him in the eighth on singles by Johnson and Alexander, with an error by Scarritt sandwiched between. Herring scored the Tigers' other run after delivering a healthy two-base hit when Johnson, who was as strong in the field as at bat, singled him home.

Helen Hicks Wins Title By 10-Stroke Margin

Chicago, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, of Inwood, Long Island, N. Y., easily captured the first women's 72-hole medal play golf championship today with a total of 320, 14 strokes better than her closest rival, Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago. Maureen Orcutt, of White Beaches, N. Y., and Mrs. Lee Mida, of Chicago, tied for third place with 336.

In winning her decisive victory, the husky 18-year-old New York girl carded four of the most brilliant rounds ever scored by a woman golfer. She scored 78's on her first two rounds, 83 yesterday and ended with an 81 today, a 72-hole total which equaled par for the heavily trapped Flossmoor Country Club course. Miss Van Wie, runner-up in the national championship last year, shot a 79, 1 under par, today to climb from fourth to second place with a 334 total, while Miss Orcutt took an 85 and Mrs. Mida an 87.

ED LEARY BOLSTERS QUARTER BACK POST

Regulars Spared From Rough Session.

Contrary to expectations, Little did not work the so-called first-string in this afternoon's rough session, this in spite of the apparent need of practice in scrimmage with Temple yesterday. Another scrimmage with the Philadelphia squad will be staged tomorrow or Saturday and most likely the Hilltop director sought to avoid losing any more of his varsity prospects through injury, three having suffered bad sprains in yesterday's affair. Joe Gardner who started at quarter; John Hudack, half back, and Sam Cordovano, guard, are the ailing trio.

Leary had been unable to serve in scrimmages for nearly a week prior to this afternoon on account of a sprained wrist. He still wore a bandage but did not seem mindful of the injury. Joe Coppola, sophomore guard, joined the hospital crew as a result of today's scrimmage. Somebody's cleated shoe bounced off his lower lip and he had to take his supper through a straw. Until this happened, Coppola was doing some fine work on defense. Charles McManus, last year's freshman center, also impressed on defense, drawing the serious attention of coaches for the first time.

CHOICES WIN IN GIRLS' JR. NET PLAY

Three Seeded Players Advance; Doubles Start Today.

THREE of the seeded players survived the first day's play in the District of Columbia Junior Girls Tennis championships on the Edgemoor Club courts. The fourth, Esther Jolley, who drew a bye in the first round, will not play her second round engagement until this afternoon.

Helen Thilpitt, seeded No. 1, defeated Catherine Crane, 6—1, 6—0, in the second round. Loveye Adkins, interplayground champion, and seeded No. 2, eliminated Betty Sargent in the second round, 6—0, 6—4. Goldie Crist, seeded No. 3, defeated Katherine Wassamann, 6—1, 6—1, after the latter had survived her first round match by defeating Pinkey Thompkins in three hard-fought sets.

Victories by Marion Butler and Elizabeth Beall featured the first round matches. Miss Butler staged an uphill battle to eliminate Mildred Hook in three sets, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4. Miss Beall, a Central High School girl, advanced to the second round by defeating Judith Fishburn, of Western High, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4.

Doubles Play to Start This Morning

Remaining first and second round matches will be played this morning. All matches must be played as scheduled or they will be defaulted, the tourney officials announced last night.

Doubles play is also to start this morning. The draw for the doubles tourney will be made at 10:30 o'clock and play will be started immediately.

Yesterday's results and today's schedule follow:

FIRST ROUND—Peggy Keyser defeated Margaret Simmel, 6—2, 1—0, default (Miss Simmel was injured and had to retire); Elizabeth Bowie defeated Edith McCullough, default; Marion Butler defeated Mildred Hook, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4; Elizabeth Beall defeated Judith Fishburn, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4; Katherine Wassmann defeated Pinkey Tompkins, 2—6, 6—2, 6—0.

SECOND ROUND—Helen Thilpitt defeated Catherine Crane, 6—1, 6—0; Loveye Adkins defeated Betty Sargent, 6—0, 6—4; Betty Cochrane defeated Abigail Potter, 6—3, 6—2; Goldie Crist defeated Katherine Wassmann, 6—1, 6—1.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.

SECOND ROUND—10:30 a. m., Elizabeth Bowie vs. Marion Butler; Elizabeth Beall vs. Esther Jolley; Helen Clark vs. Elsie Alexander.

Hagerstown Hubs Even Blue Ridge Playoff

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 12.—The postseason series for the 1929 championship of the Blue Ridge League stood a tie at two-all tonight as the result of Mickey Kelliher's Hagerstown Hubs, first-half winners, administering a 9-to-2 lacing to Dan O'Leary's little Macks here today in the fourth game. A crowd of more than 1,000 fans watched the yearlings of Connie Mack go down to defeat.

Frank Wertman, ace of the Hagerstown hurling department, who won the opening game of the series Monday, allowed eight hits and walked four batters, while Mallicky, Griffith and Brown, O'Leary's moundsmen, allowed fourteen hits and handed out eight passes.

Reggie Rawlings put the Hubs in the lead in the very first inning and they were never headed. With one sack occupied, Reggie drove out a long home run.

The fifth game of the series will be played tomorrow afternoon in Hagerstown. The sixth one is scheduled for this city on Saturday and after it will have been played, should the series stand tied, another game is to follow at once.

MARDFELDTS TO MEET.

All candidates for Mardfeldt's Football Team are requested to report for practice 11 o'clock Sunday at Eighteenth and Otis streets. J. Llunn will give signals and instructions to all new candidates.

Ford's Freak Home Run Gives Reds 3-2 Victory

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—A freak home run by Horace Ford beat Dazzy Vance, 3 to 2, and Cincinnati won the second game of the Brooklyn series here today. Ford hit to right in the fourth inning with Sukeforth on first. In making a try for the ball Babe Herman put on a tumbling act instead of making the catch. Herman stumbled against the fence in front of the right-field stand and then turned a complete flip-flop over into the seats, while the ball rolled merrily away and the two runners scored.

The Reds hit Vance fairly hard while Eppa Rixey held the Dodgers well in hand, allowing but five hits. Sensational catches by Rube Bressler and Johnny Frederick saved Vance several times.

Nixon, Noted Canadian Horseman, Dies at 76

Toronto, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—T. John Nixon, 76, dean of Canadian horsemen, died at his home here today.

Mr. Nixon was a picturesque character at Canadian race tracks. He first opened a livery stable in Toronto and bought a string of racers and trotters. Then he transferred his allegiance to jumpers, starting the Wellington Stable, for which stable such well-known performers as King's County, Japonica and Lion Hearted, performed.

The latter horse won many jumping events, including the famous "Beaver," which he accounted for in two successive years at Saratoga.

Southeastern Pennant Is Won by Montgomery

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Montgomery took the league championship for the second consecutive year today, blanking Tampa, last half winners, 6-0, in the eighth and final game. The eighth game was made necessary by yesterday's tie game.

Prince Georges County Title to Be Awarded

A record crowd is expected at Mount Rainier Sunday when the Bowie Motor and Mount Rainier Nines meet in two games which will probably settle the Prince Georges County unlimited championship race. Play will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Other series games carded for Sunday will bring together the Berwyn and Lanham teams at Berwyn and the Capitol Heights and Clinton teams at Clinton. Hyattsville will be idle.

JONES FACES CLEVELAND RECRUIT

Peck Sends Shoffner, Southpaw, Against Nats Today.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAKING advantage of the Nationals' proven weakness against southpaw pitching, although they haven't battled particularly good against any kind in recent games, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh plans to use Melburn Shoffner, a young left-hander, against them this afternoon in the third game of the current set. In the hope of giving his team the edge, Manager Walter Johnson will call on the veteran "Sad Sam" Jones. It is "ladies' day."

The Tribe will end its visit here tomorrow and there is some consolation in the fact that they will not be called upon to face Joe Shaute, another who hurls with the wrong arm. He is out for the season and at his home nursing a sore arm which several muscle doctors have been unable to cure.

Catcher Roy Spencer was not seriously hurt in the Tribe's sixth yesterday when he was spiked by Lew Fonseca trying to score. The fingernail of his right thumb was partially torn off and he will be able to get back on the job again in two or three days.

Braxton to Be Ready To Face Tigers

Garland Braxton, who underwent a minor operation Sunday, reported to Manager Johnson yesterday but did not work out. The three days he spent in bed weakened him slightly but he expects to be ready for an assignment in the coming series with the Tigers.

One thing which seems to puzzle fans throughout the circuit is how First Baseman Fonseca manages to catch balls with his glove dangling half way off his hand. The Indian's explanation is simple, however, provided he sees to it that the glove is not knocked off completely. "When the ball hits in the glove," he explains, "the leather wraps around it and it really makes it almost impossible for me to drop it." This may be all right in theory but it is noted that no other player in the league tries to field balls in this manner.

The Nats' two rookies on option at New Haven are traveling at a fast clip. Last week, Catcher Cliff Bolton cracked out 12 hits in 31 times up for an average of .389, while "Big Jim" Weaver turned in his seventh straight victory, only to have his streak broken later in the week. Both of these players have been recalled for possible service next season.

Wineapple Forbidden to Play on Off Season

President Clark Griffith regards Pitcher Edward Wineapple as such a fine prospect that he plans to warn the big southpaw, who is also a former college football and basket ball star, against playing either of these games during the off-season. Anticipating that Wineapple will receive offers to play these two games professionally, the player's attention will be called to the clause in his contract prohibiting him from so doing.

"Many a good diamond player has had his career ruined by football or basket ball injuries," said the Nat owner, "and I don't intend to let Wineapple or, in fact any of my players take these chances."

"Midget" Joe Sewell, who equaled Eddie Collins' record of striking out only three times during the 1927 season, has an excellent chance to better this mark this season. To date he has fanned but twice, on both occasions during the first month of the season.

Peckinpaugh, Tribe manager, who used to have a sweet disposition while with the Nats, argued too strenuously that Joe Cronin, at bat, had interfered with Catcher Luke Sewell while Myer was stealing in round 4. Finally, he was ordered off of the field by Umpire Harry Geisel. It was the fourth time he had been chased this season, on two of which occasions he was suspended by President Barnard.

Dayton Takes Second Straight Win in Series

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 12.—Dayton crashed through with its second straight victory today in the bi-county series to give Rockingham a 2 to 1 lead over Augusta. The score was 8 to 3. A five-run rally in the seventh with the score tied at three-all, decided the conflict. Cupp, who started for the Cavemen, was knocked out of the box, Shifflett went the route for Dayton. Although touched for nine hits, the Dayton hurler kept them scattered.

Third Big Ten Championship Foreseen for Illinois Eleven

This is another of a series of stories on football prospects at leading universities and colleges this season.

By PAUL R. MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

Backed by eighteen letter men from his title winning teams of 1927 and 1928, together with a group of exceptional sophomores, Coach Bob Zuppke, the pessimistic little Dutchman, has probably the rosiest prospects on the Illini campus in a decade.

Only overconfidence of his players and a new scholastic ruling, whereby a player can be ruled ineligible during the season, present difficulties to the Illinois wizard, who will attempt to pilot his moleskin warriors to their third straight undisputed Big Ten football crown—a feat that never before has been accomplished.

Surplus Backs Form Material for Ends.

If "Zup" has any problem at all this fall it rests in the wings and quarterback positions. During the last two seasons he has been far from satisfied with his ends and may convert a few of the surplus back-field men he has over to wingmen. Carl Bergason, who alternated at full back last season; Walter Jolley a giant from Chicago, who has been on the squad two seasons; J. Lewis, of Indianapolis; Jim Tarwain, the Lithuanian coal miner, and Henry Steinman, of Melvin, Ill., another six-footer and a great sophomore look capable of solving that question, however.

"Gaga" Mills, of Elgin, Ill., whom Zuppke rates as one of the smartest players in the game, undoubtedly will be shifted from his old half-back post to quarter back, although Frank Lanum, of Champaign, the last of the great Lanum brothers and an ingenious line backer and plunger, may get the call.

Eight star pigskin luggers are set to give Zuppke another shifty, fleet, blocking back field. Judson Timm, the Illini's best scorer last season, undoubtedly will get one of the half back jobs, while the other one will be fought for by several veterans. Joe Green, who starred with Red Grange, but who was ineligible last year; Chuck Hall, of Normal, Ill., a great open field runner; Frank Walker, of Urbana, Ill., and a sparkling sophomore, Fuzzy Evans, of Dayton, Ohio, whose blocking and yard-gaining caught Zuppke's fancy on the year-ling squad last year.

Fritz Humbert, regular full back for the past two years, may have a fight on his hands to keep that berth away from Art Schultz, a likely looking soph from his home town of Geneseo, Ills. Schultz weighs but 185 pounds but he has displayed a vicious line punch that even Humbert doesn't have.

Two Giant Tackles Counted Regulars.

A pair of 6-foot-4-inch huskies, Lou Gordon and O. R. Hills, both from Chicago, look capable of handling the tackle positions despite the loss of Capt. Butch Nonnack, while two veterans, Capt. Russell Crance, of Chicago, and L. J. Wietz, of Thorton, Ill., undoubtedly will be at the guard posts.

Filling the center position vacated by Harry Richman, the Illini have a great soph prospect in Eddie Kawal, of Cicero, Ill. Dale Roush, of Blackwell, Okla., who filled in for Richman when he was ineligible last year, also is back for service.

Illinois has a veritable "suicide" schedule this season, however. On successive Saturdays the Illini play Iowa, Michigan, Northwestern, Army, Chicago and Ohio State. The Army game will probably attract 68,000 spectators, and while "Zup" wants to win it he does not plan to do any sacrificing for it and then lose his Big Ten championship chances.

PROMOTIONS TO 7 ARMY GRIDMEN

Piper and Hutchinson Are Made Captains of Cadet Corps.

Special to The Washington Post.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 12.—In orders published here today by Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, seven members of the Army varsity football squad were promoted to be officers and noncommissioned officers in the Corps of Cadets. All promotions were based on a merit percentage system, in which every cadet in the two upper classes was considered.

Piper, full back, and Hutchinson, half back, were appointed cadet captains. This is the highest rank of cadet officers. Murrel, full back; Gibner, quarter back, and Kenny, center, were made lieutenants. Walsh, guard, and O'Keefe, half back, were made sergeants.

Promotions Made Solely On Merit.

Promotions were competitive and based on scholarship and discipline. Out of 100 per cent, scholarship counted for 20 per cent, while athletics counted only 10 per cent. Standing in the demerit system is accounted another 20 per cent. Leadership and drill each received 15 counts, as well as bearing and appearance. General activities counted only five.

The two new cadet captains, Hutchinson and Piper, have been appointed battalion commanders, each being held responsible for the discipline and training of four companies. Piper commands the Second Battalion, while Hutchinson has the Third Battalion. Hutchinson is one of the most outstanding athletes in the military academy, he being the only cadet in the corps with major A's in three sports. In addition to his athletic and military honors, he has also been awarded gold stars for academic distinction.

COCA COLAS TO MEET.

The Coca Cola Baseball Team will meet tonight at Eighth and D streets southwest at 7 o'clock. The following boys are to be present: Sydner, Lombardi, Hall, Megee, Mockabee, Katzman, Murdock, McCracken, Schwartz, Yates and E. Healy.

For games, call Metropolitan 7480 between 6 and 7 o'clock.

GOOD BACKS ON W. & M. SQUAD

Coaches May Use 2 Complete Sets of Ball-Carriers.

WILLIAMSBURG, Sept. 12.—Despite unusual hot weather William and Mary's football squad of 50 ended its first week of practice here on Cary Field yesterday with a light scrimmage.

Since Labor Day Coaches Bocock and Kellison have been conditioning their men with both morning and afternoon practices, consisting of passing, kicking and simple plays, with much emphasis upon fundamentals.

The Indian coaches are blessed with an abundance of backs, and probably will use two complete back fields in games this fall. Capt. Bauserman, Scott, Ryan, Baldacci and Constantino from last year's varsity, and Maxey, F. Mosseleski, McMenamin and Sheff, from the undefeated freshman eleven of last season, should all see action behind the line.

The line presents a much more difficult problem and Linecoach Kellison will have his hands full filling positions, as Fields, All-State center in 1928, and Murphy, a tackle, are the only two veteran linemen from 1928's varsity.

Back Field Vets Showing Up Well.

Baldacci and Scott, brilliant broken-field runners, and Capt. Bauserman and Maxey, hard-hitting backs, all showed up well in today's scrimmage. Darden, Douglas, B. Bauserman, Syer and Swentzel are promising linemen.

The Green, Gold and Silver will scrimmage against Langley Field Saturday. St. John's College, of Annapolis, opens the regular schedule on September 29 in a night game at Williamsburg. However, the team will be pointing for the early game with Navy at Annapolis on October 5.

SHARP WINS JUNIOR GOLF CROWN

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

AN extended struggle marked the final round of the Junior Club championship tournament at the Columbia Country Club yesterday, the event being finally won by George T. Sharp, jr., son of Dr. George T. Sharp, who defeated Joseph B. Trew, jr., on the nineteenth hole.

The contest between the two lads for the championship title was a see-saw, ding-dong affair, neither being more than 1 up throughout the entire round. They were all even at the turn, and when Trew was 1 down on the sixteenth tee he squared the match with a par 3. With the seventeenth and eighteenth halved they went to the first tee for the extra hole.

Trew, who had the honor, was stymied by a tree on his sliced drive, while Sharp hooked his ball into the woods, finally reaching the green with his fourth shot. Trew, in the meantime, had played to the green in 3, having the advantage of a stroke. Sharp, however, holed out a 10-foot putt for his 5. Trew endeavored to gobble a 4, which would have won the hole, but overran the cup by 4 feet and then missed the return, holing out in 6 and losing the match.

Four-Foot Putt Costs Lew Defeat.

J. E. Powell, jr., won the consolation, defeating Walter D. Murphy, 4 and 3. In the afternoon Murphy, who had tied with Clarence Dodge, jr., for the qualification prize, each with cards of 84, played off the tie and won from Murphy easily with a score of 45—41—86 as against Dodge's 94.

At the conclusion of the tournament all the young contestants who had competed, some twelve or fifteen in number, were entertained at lunch by George P. James, chairman of the golf committee. In an off-hand speech he congratulated the boys upon their interest in golf and their low scores and incidentally urged them always to remember the good sportsmanship and the etiquette of the game.

Nevius-Fossan in Tie For "Duffer's" Title.

The tournament at the Congressional Club yesterday for golfers having handicaps of 20 and over, developed into an overwhelming victory for members of the club, a majority of the prizes being won by them. There was a tie for the first prize—a handsome pewter tea set and tray donated by T. M. Nevius—between E. H. Van Fossan, Congressional, 96—25—71, and J. A. Dugan, Congressional, 92—21—71. The other prize winners were:

Third, M. H. Laden, Beaver Dam, 96—27—72; fourth, F. E. Bozardus, Congressional, 99—26—73; fifth, J. H. Shuman, Congressional, 94—21—73; sixth, John C. Wineman, Indian Spring, 94—22—74; seventh, tie, L. L. Nicholson, Congressional, 102—27—75, and Emmett Dewaehy, Congressional, 100—25—75.

Forty golfers competed in the event and the other scores turned in were as follows:

O. R. McGuire, Congressional, 119—36—76; J. W. Green, Harper, 99—22—77; William B. Curtis, Indian Spring, 96—21—78; M. A. Westcott, Washington Golf and Country, 96—20—76; Clarence Dent, Bannockburn, 103—25—78; R. E. Esher, Indian Spring, 102—23—79; A. M. Garner, Washington Golf and Country, 101—22—79; Newton Jeffress, Congressional, 118—36—80; L. E. Causey, Bannockburn, 102—21—80; Fred Schutz, Indian Spring, 107—26—81; Mal C. A. Jones, Congressional, 102—20—82; Charles W. Gerner, Manor, 111—26—85; G. H. Hazard, Beaver Dam, 100—20—85; C. Howard Army, Navy and Marine Golf, 118—27—88; R. P. McCandlish, Beaver Dam, 115—27—88.

CANCEL SERIES GAMES.

The Silver Spring Nine has cancelled the games scheduled with the Kensington National Guards on Sunday and will meet the Brunswick, (Md.) Team at Silver Spring. The Springers will leave the Silver Spring drug store at noon tomorrow to go to Brunswick for a game.

NORTHERNS TO MEET.

All Northern A. C. football candidates are to report tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at Vic's Sport Shop for a blackboard drill. New candidates are requested to report there.

BOND PRICES AGAIN DRIFT IRREGULARLY

FOREIGN GROUP IS QUIET

New York, Sept. 12 (A.P.). — The bond market drifted aimlessly today. Scant attention was paid to prime investment issues, and quotations fluctuated irregularly, with railroad obligations holding a steady course.

Net losses, ranging from ½ to 3½ points, prevailed in the convertibles. After an upward flare during the forenoon the stock privilege bonds suffered with the share list in the later trading, although liquidation was only nominal, and prices closed slightly above the day's lows. American Telephone 4½s had a net loss of 2 points, Atchison 4½s dropped 1, International Telephone 4½s yielded 3½, American International 5½s dipped 1¾ and Allegheny Corporation 5s, 1944, lost ½. Reading Coal & Iron 6s, however, were strong, showing at one time a net advance of 4 points which had been cut in two at the close.

Reports that new financing for the Shell Union Oil Co. would comprise a $50,000,000 issue of debentures sent the listed 5s of that corporation to a new low of 93, a point below the previous minimum. The debentures were supported at the bottom, however, and regained half a point for a net loss of 2. Shell Pipe Line 5s, also freely sold, dropped 1½.

Cuba Cane Sugar issues were depressed on the announcement of the reorganization committee of the receivership for the company seemed inevitable, even though only 28 per cent of the outstanding debentures remained undeposited under the plan for the financial reconditioning of the concern. The debenture 8s went down half a point to 56½, a new low, while the 7s sold off a shade to 57, equaling the previous minimum.

The market for high-grade rails remained thin. Evidence of its general tone was the slump in Atchison 4s, Rocky Mountain division, which fell 5 points to the new low of 84 on the trading of a single $1,000 bond. Chicago & Northwestern general 4s also made a new low of 83 on a 3½-point decline.

Bethlehem Steel 6s sold into lower ground at 104¼ against the price of 105 at which they have been called. Certainteed Products 5½s, which had a sharp rise yesterday, suffered from profit taking. Keith Corporation first 6s featured the specialty group with a spurt of 3 1-2 points.

The United States Government division graded narrowly and irregularly lower. The new Treasury 4¼s were quoted at par and an eighth in the over-the-counter market, a slight premium over their offering price of 100.

New bond offerings scheduled for tomorrow include a $1,300,000 issue of Iowa Public Service Co. first mortgage gold bonds of the 5½ per cent series, due in 1959. They are priced at 97. It also became known that the War Department would soon advertise for bids on a $1,500,000 Philippine Government 4½ per cent 30-year loan.

RIGGS BANK'S STOCK CONTINUES TO SOAR

Price Rises to $620 in Fifth Advance in Five Days of Trading.

LANSTON SHARES ACTIVE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Riggs National Bank stock continues the daily sensation of the Washington Stock Exchange with its steady advance. After a 2½-point break on sales of 25 shares yesterday at 615, a single share, after call, transferred at 620, a 2½-point gain over Wednesday's last sale price and a fifth new high in five consecutive sessions.

The stock, which has risen 40 points since Friday, closed at 615 bid and 630 asked. The only other local bank stock near to the price of Riggs is United States Savings Bank, last sale figure of which is 600.

Heaviest trading in yesterday's erratic market was in Lanston Monotype, sales of 105 shares at 130, last sale price, being recorded. Sixty shares of National Mortgage & Investment preferred moved at 4½, and 30 of Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty at 73½, last sale prices. All other trading was in small lots.

The bond market exhibited slight improvement, the sales total, $7,800, being $1,600 better than the previous day's. The stock aggregate, 278 shares, fell off 246 from Wednesday. Heaviest sales were $5,000 Potomac Electric 5s at 100, fractional rise.

The broadening speculative wave again was reflected in a $120,000,000 rise in brokers' loans, or a total of $6,474,000,000, as shown yesterday by figures of the Federal Reserve Board. This advance was $17,000,000 behind that of the preceding week and lower than the record advances of the last three weeks. This week's total was $1,079,000,000 in excess of that of the week ended September 12, 1928.

Loans for own account for the week were $1,017,000,000, a decrease of $86,000,000 from the week previous, but an increase of $152,000,000 over the comparative period a year ago. Those on account of out-of-town banks were $1,841,000,000, an increase of $57,000,000 over the week prior and one of $242,000,000 over the corresponding period a year ago. Account of others' loans totaled $3,616,000,000, or $149,000,000 more than the preceding week and $1,695,000,000 ahead of the week in 1928.

Reserve Bank Statement.

The consolidated statement of condition of Federal Reserve Banks on September 11, made public by the board yesterday, showed a decline for the week of $73,100,000 in holdings of discounted bills and increases of $39,300,000 in bills bought in open market and $10,000,000 in United States securities.

Cash reserves of the Federal Reserve Banks increased $30,000,000 and member bank reserve deposits $40,100,000, while Federal Reserve note circulation declined $19,100,000. Total bills and securities were $23,700,000 below the amount reported a week ago.

Holdings of discounted bills declined $63,300,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, $7,000,000 at Boston and $6,800,000 at Philadelphia, and increased $11,100,000 at San Francisco. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market increased $39,300,000; of Treasury notes, $7,100,000; of United States bonds, $2,200,000, and of certificates of indebtedness, $800,000. The principal changes in Federal Reserve note circulation for the week included a decline of $9,000,000 at Chicago, and of $6,100,000 at New York.

Advertising Committee Meets.

The advertising committee of the District of Columbia Bankers Association meets this morning to settle details of its proposed general campaign, for submission next Friday afternoon at a special meeting of the association called for the purpose of considering and deciding on it.

With the call for this meeting there will go to every banker an outline of the proposed activity, devised in June, and including combined newspaper and radio advertising features and a monthly essay contest open to the entire city.

Dividends Are Declared.

Dividends of 20 per cent were declared on all policies expiring in November by directors of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. at the regular monthly meeting held in Boston September 11.

A yearly dividend rate of at least 20 per cent has been maintained without interruption since organization in 1912, during which time the company has returned more than $23,600,000 to its policy-holding owners. The company writes workmen's compensation, general liability, fidelity bonds, automobile and kindred lines of insurance.

Certificates Ready for Delivery.

Tri-Continental Corporation has notified stockholders that definitive certificates for its 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock are now ready for delivery in exchange for temporary certificates at the offices of the National City Bank of New York, 52 Wall street, and that definitive certificates for its common stock are now deliverable in exchange for temporary certificates at the principal office of Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co.

The exchange for both classes of stock may also be effected upon presentation of the temporary certificates at the principal office of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston.

L. M. Masius Gets New Post.

L. M. Masius, vice president of Lord & Thomas and Logan, has been appointed managing director of the London office of that agency. Mr. Masius, who was associated with the New York office of Lord & Thomas and Logan, sailed on the Homeric on Friday last to assume his new duties. He succeeds D. E. Brundage, who died recently.

A. C. Flather Returns.

A. C. Flather, comanager of G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., has returned from a three weeks' vacation at Eaglesmere, Pa.

President Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank, will be vice chairman of the general committee arranging a cherry blossom festival next spring.

THIS IS THE MAN UNDER A POSITIVE GUARANTEE
This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, loss or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds, whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.
Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay. Private Studio and Reception Room.

Clarendon 919-J-1.

Chamber of commerce day was celebrated at the Fairfax County Fair yesterday. More than 6,000 people were in attendance.

The morning was spent in judging of exhibits, and an athletic contest was sponsored by the chamber of commerce. The Fairfax chamber was host to the chambers of Alexandria, Arlington, Prince William and Loudoun counties. The Alexandria City Band accompanied the delegaton from that city, and upon reaching the grounds serenaded the local chamber. The several delegations met outside Fairfax, formed in parade and went to the fair grounds in a body.

Winners of the athletic events were: Sack race, Margaret Bladen, of Annandale; three-legged race, Sylvian Burnett and John Rust, of Fairfax; old man's race, George Harrison, of Herndon; ladies' race, Warwick Rust, of Fairfax; fat ladies' race, Mrs. G. Ashley Money, of Colvin Run; fat man's race, J. Maycock, of East Pershing drive, Clarendon; grizzly bear race, Winthrop Robertson, of Fairfax; husband calling contest, Mrs. W. F. Morris, 1854 Ingleside Terrace, Washington, D. C.; rolling-pin throwing contest, Virginia Money, of Colvin Run; 50-yard dash for girls, Helen Webb, of Annandale, and 50-yard dash for boys, John Rust, of Fairfax.

At noon the home demonstration agents, Mrs. White and Mrs. Moon, of the 4-H clubs, gave a demonstration of basket making, and, following this, Mildred Logan and Louise Arnold McLean, 4-H Club girls, gave a demonstration of table service.

The feature of the afternoon was the horse show and races. The judges of the events were: Hunters, Prof. Hunt, of Blacksburg, Va., and H. M. Luttrell, of Delaplane, Va. TRAINING SCHOOLS PLANNED BY CLUBS

SCORING IS CHANGED

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 12.—Directors of the 24 units of the Federation of Rural Women's Clubs, at a meeting at the courthouse, decided to establish training schools where project demonstrators will be trained under the direction of Miss Helen Pearson, county home demonstrator. It was also decided to supply ribbon prizes for girls' clubs exhibiting at the coming fair, October 15, 16, 17 and 18.

Following a discussion, it was voted to change the present method of scoring. The new method will be 25 per cent on attendance, 25 per cent on punctuality, 25 per cent on parliamentary procedure and 25 per cent on answer to roll call.

The training schools will be established in the following centers: Adamstown, Mount Pleasant, Middletown, Monroia, Jefferson and Frederick.

Directors and clubs represented were Miss Mollie Hine, Jefferson; Mrs. Rufus Baker and Miss Lillie Williams, Kemptown; Mrs. Ira L. Davis, Hyattstown; Mrs. A. B. Fisher, Point of Rocks; Mrs. Helen Safrit, Merryland Track; Miss Genevieve Thomas, Adamstown; Mrs. W. S. Wachtel, Myersville; Mrs. John M. TRAIN HITS TRUCK; AUTOIST CRUSHED

INQUEST WILL BE HELD

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 12.—D. Harry Anthony, prominent live stock dealer and business man of Washington County, Md., was killed and his son-in-law, John Kendig, had a leg broken and his body severely cut and bruised late today when their motor truck was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio motor passenger train at Bartonsville, 7 miles from here. They were en route to a live stock sale near that village.

Anthony's body is being held at a morgue here for an inquest. Kendig's condition was reported serious tonight.

Anthony's skull and head were crushed almost beyond recognition, and his right shoulder and arm also were mashed by the impact. The light motor truck was hurled to the left of the track with the men in it. The train had received an orders to stop at Bartonsville station, 50 feet away, and was proceeding at about 35 miles an hour. The crossing was between the train and station.

Resident of the neighborhood said the crossing was extremely dangerous because of the steep grade on the eastern side of the track, and that numerous machines had almost been wrecked there. Anthony and Kendig had left the main Shenandoah Valley pike only a short distance to the east and were on a side road when the crash occurred.

SYNOD CONSIDERS REORGANIZING PLAN

Virginia Presbyterians Select Committee to Map Procedure.

BOARD MERGER PLANNED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 12.—The first step toward a complete reorganization of its machinery since 1788 was taken by the Virginia Presbyterian Synod this evening before it adjourned sine die. A special committee was appointed to make recommendations to the 1930 session. Some offices are obsolete and certain boards and committees can be merged, and there is sentiment for modernization of synodical machinery to meet the needs of the day.

Adjournment was taken with next year's meeting at Richmond under an old custom that the session be held at Union Theological Seminary every second year. The closing function was a memorial service for the four ministers who have died during the year, Dr. E. B. McClure, Richmond; Dr. G. T. Chandler, Winchester; the Rev. J. M. Fontaine, of Potomac Presbytery, and the Rev. J. S. Webster, Hancock, Md.

This morning the synod decided to move with caution toward an overture from the Baltimore Methodist conference and school. On motion of Dr. C. D. Gilkerson, of Winchester, it was referred to a special committee of seven, which is charged with conferring with a subcommittee of the Methodist church and to make a detailed report in Richmond next year.

Finance Method Sought.

If the report is favorable the committee is to suggest methods of operation and of financing. Dr. J. R. Zittinger, steering committee chairman, said this evening it was possible that the conference might become interdenominational and not restricted to Methodist and Presbyterian control. Dr. J. E. Booker, of Hampden Sidney, today resigned the secretaryship of the home missions board, being 80 years of age and having held the post for 30 years. The proposed amalgamation of two church organs, The Presbyterian of the South, published at Richmond, and The Standard, at Charlotte, N. C., was not acted on. Dr. R. B. Grinnan, of Norfolk, presented the stewardship committee report, which showed receipts for all purposes less than last year.

The Union Theological Seminary committee took a strong stand for fundamentalism in its report today.

Speaking on the report which showed a total income of $21,000 from the synods of Appalachia, North Carolina, Virginia and South Carolina, Dr. T. C. Johnson, president of the institution, told of a plan to secure a $1,000,000 endowment for the Walter W. Moore chair of theology. Of this sum $260,000 has been raised or pledged.

Youth Problem Discussed.

One of the outstanding addresses was that of Dr. Taliaferro Thompson, professor of religious education at the seminary, who discussed frankly the problem brought about by the present-day sophistication of young people. How to deal with their emotional life and to assist them solve some of perplexities of life, he said, is one of the present challenges to the Presbyterian people.

Reports of other standing committees and special committees were presented and swiftly handled during the afternoon as the synod worked fast to complete its docket.

Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, of Richmond County, church director in charge of sixteen States, in an address tonight, held that farm relief is not class legislation, since relief to the agricultural class will benefit every other class. The country church today, he said, suffers chiefly from inadequate salaries paid to ministers. Rural church attendance he stated is better than that in cities. A special committee was appointed this evening to bring in a fuller report on interracial cooperation next year.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA, back from vacation, regaled the neighbors with the wonders of her trip.

"Where did you go?" asked Stacey Stillweather's wife, eager to hear the details.

"Oh, any number of places," said Luella, recounting her swing around the circle.

"You had no itinery, then?" asked Mrs. Denis O'Shaunnessey.

"Dear, no," exclaimed Luella. "We traveled light, taking only what was absolutely necessary. There was one place in particular, so lovely, so wonderful, up in the mountains, but, for the life of me, I can't remember its name."

We all pitched in to help her.

"Was it Virginia Beach?" asked one of her girl friends.

"No," said Luella, "nor Buckroe, nor Ocean View. We were at all those places, too—and what a coat of sun tan I got. I'm still peeling. This place, though, had two names, something like Bowling Green, but it wasn't Bowling Green. I don't think we went there."

* * * *

"IT might have been Mount Etna," suggested Minerva Woods, whose husband is a life insurance man. She was probably thinking of Gibraltar.

"No, and not Braddock Heights, either," confessed Luella, trying to recall her favorite camping grounds.

"Tell us what State it is in," urged Mrs. Stillweather. "Perhaps we can help you."

"I think," recalled Luella, "it's in North Carolina, though it may be South Carolina. I always get the Carolinas mixed up. They're so near each other, you know."

"You said it sounded like Bowling Green. That's in Kentucky. There is a place in North Carolina named Greensboro. Is that it?" asked Mrs. O'Shaunnessey.

"It'll come to me in a minute," said Luella, concentrating. "I have a way of remembering. They call it the association of ideas. Let me see, now. I said to Jack, while we were there, 'If you were home you'd be blowing foam off the beer. That's it, Blowing—Blowing—Blowing something—What can it be?'"

"Blowing Wind?" asked Mrs. O'Shaunnessey.

"No, not wind," said Luella, "something more solid."

"Blowing Bushes," ventured Mrs. Stillweather.

"IT wasn't Blowing Kisses, either," said Luella, "though it is a romantic place, and there were lots of lovers there, too."

"Perhaps it's Blowing Bubbles," said Roger Thorndyke.

"Blowing Concrete," put in Don Martinez, joining the group.

"You're the nearest yet," said Luella, remembering the name. "It's Blowing Rock. Blowing Rock, North Carolina."

"So that's where you spent your vacation," said Mrs. Martinez.

"Well, not the the whole vacation," said Luella. "We spent a day and a night, and most of the money we had left. Isn't it funny how time flies, and money with it, on vacation? It just blew away, my dear, at Blowing Rock."

Porch Sleeper, 21, Falls to His Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 12.—Harry Mays, 21, native of this county, but a resident of Staunton for a year, fell accidentally, it is believed, from a third-floor porch, where he was asleep and was instantly killed today. Coroner T. M. Parkins reported that he thought Mays must have landed on his feet, and that death followed when his spinal column was rammed into his skull.

Mays went to a house in the downtown section last night. There was no place for him to sleep, but the head of the house gave him a pillow, covers, and sheet and he made a pallet on the porch. Whether he walked in his sleep or lost his bearings and stumbled over the guard rail is not known. He was partly disrobed when his body was found on the ground, indicating that he may have been asleep.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at Whitehill Church of the Brethren. Mays leaves his father, five brothers and two sisters.

AMNESIA IS BLAMED IN HIT-RUN FATALITY

R. E. Casey Testifies That Shock Caused His Flight After He Hit Woman.

SUPPORTED BY DOCTORS

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 12.—R. Emmett Casey, charged with "hitting and running" in connection with the death here on the night of August 19 when Mrs. E. W. Crowder was killed when struck by an auto, pleaded not guilty today in Corporation Court. His counsel, Col. A. E. Strong and S. Duvall Martin, contended that Casey was suffering from amnesia, resulting from acute mental confusion, following the accident.

The defense rested at 5 o'clock this afternoon, when court adjourned until tomorrow morning, when the State will start its rebuttal.

Defense Is Surprise.

Attorney Martin produced a mild sensation at the opening of the trial when he asserted that the defense would be based on amnesia. Dr. Don P. Scott, of Lynchburg, and Dr. B. D. Tucker, of Richmond, nerve specialists, testified that they believed Casey was not responsible for running away from the scene after he had struck Mrs. Crowder. They said that while his first reaction was one of self-preservation, he nevertheless was not responsible for his act because of acute mental confusion. The alienists testified that the Casey family was neurotic and highly nervous.

Casey admitted striking the woman and running away, but claimed he was so shocked that he did not know what he was doing. He testified that the first person to whom he mentioned the incident was Detective H. W. Gilliam, who did not disclose his knowledge until 48 hours later, whereupon the detective was dismissed from the police department and is now awaiting preliminary trial on a charge of aiding and abetting Casey in his escape.

Tells of Accident.

K. G. Roach, who was in the car with Casey at the time of the accident, testified that just before striking Mrs. Crowder something, he did not know what, blinded Casey and himself. Then he heard Casey shout, "Look!" and for the first time he saw Mrs. Crowder. After striking the woman Casey drove off at a high rate of speed and, after a wide detour, stopped in Orchard street, where he straightened his headlight, which had been dislocated in the collision. He testified that he urged Casey to return and report the accident, whereupon Casey told him he would kill him if he told.

On cross-examination, he said he did not think Casey was capable of knowing what he was doing when he ran away. He judged, he said, from the way Casey acted.

Eight Snakes Killed.

Romney, W. Va., Sept. 12 (Special). Eight young rattlesnakes gave road construction men a merry battle before they were dispatched when their nest was uncovered under an old board at Hogue's Creek, some miles east of here.

FOUR-H EXHIBITION IS HELD AT WESTON

19 West Virginia Counties Send Youths to Fair in Lewis County.

STOCK WILL BE JUDGED

Special to The Washington Post.

Weston, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Hundreds of boys and girls of the Four-H Clubs of nineteen counties in West Virginia have gathered here for the annual Four-H round-up, being held in connection with the annual Lewis County Fair.

Boys and girls from Braxton, Barbour, Calhoun, Doddridge, Gilmer, Greenbrier, Harrison, Lewis, Marian, Monongalia, Pleasants, Preston, Randolph, Ritchie, Taylor, Tucker, Upshur, Webster, Wirt and Wood Counties are attending the annual fall festival which, during its few years of existence, has become as important an event as the State fair. The members are camped at Jacksons Mill (boyhood home of Gen. Stonewall Jackson), where it is being planned now to hold the State fairs of the future.

Exhibits of all kinds, representing various projects of the youths, are on exhibition. Chief among these is that of the "baby beef show," which represents the projects of the members of Greenbrier and Lewis Counties. The winners of the three district junior live stock judging teams will vie for honors, and the winners will participate in the national junior live-stock judging contest which will be held in Chicago, Ill., on November 29. They will represent the State of West Virginia.
